President Appeals for Added Year of Surtax

Nixon Drops Hints

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has given fresh impetus to the growing belief that the private talks he favors for ending the Vietnam war already are under way.

But in doing so, the President made it clear he wants to keep those talks—whether they actually have begun or are about to—as secret as possible.

"That kind of negotiation cannot take place in a goldfish bowl," Nixon told the National Association of Broadcasters Tuesday in an off-the-cuff speech.

The President, however, came to the convention obviously anxious to talk about private negotiations to end the war.

"Real Progress"

"I can tell you," he said, "that it is our conviction and our belief that it is through private talks with the North Vietnamese and others involved that the real progress toward peace will be made."

Nixon went on to say that if anyone in the administration is asked "as to whether private talks should begin, as to what has occurred, we will say nothing."

Although this seemed to indicate fullscale private negotiations were not actually now under way but were about to start, the President commented a little later on:

"We think we are on the right track, but we are not going to raise false hopes. We are not going to tell you what is going on in private talks."

Nixon's comments on secret negotiations were the first public remarks by an administration official since Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told a subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last Friday that peace was being sought "not only through formal diplomatic channels formally in Paris, but privately as well."

The Nixon speech came just a few hours after South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu said in Saigon that his government was ready for private meetings with the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

New Element

Thieu's statement was viewed in Paris as only a slightly new element in that it was made openly.

It also suggested the Front had been dragging its feet—turning around the accusation that until now Hanoi and the NLF had directed at Saigon.

The Hanoi-NLF delegates to the Paris talks had no comment on Thieu's statement, a departure from custom that pointed up still another element in the Thieu statement—that a message actually was passed in Paris from the Saigon government to the NLF. This suggested that at least something was going on backstage.

This in turn, however, points up another possible interpretation of the sparse public comments that have been made: Despite use of the word "talks" what actually may only have occurred up to now is diplomatic "contacts" that would open the way to real discussions.

And there is no way to be certain that the talks or contacts have involved the Washington-Hanoi kind of dickering that is now believed necessary to starting mutual troop withdrawals.

Message to Congress Says Government Will Make Spending Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, declaring that "inflation is a form of economic aggression," proposed to Congress today that the problem be met by extending the income tax surcharge for another 12 months and by making significant cuts in federal spending.

In a special message, Nixon reported that at least half of the budget surpluses envisioned in January by former President Lyndon B. Johnson already have evaporated—in some cases because of inflation and in others because of overly optimistic estimates.

Faced with that situation, Nixon said he will propose budget revisions for the fiscal year starting July 1 that will reduce spending "significantly below the amount recommended in January." He gave no details.

The chief executive, in calling for a continuation of the 10 per cent federal income tax surtax beyond its scheduled June 30 expiration, declared:

"As I have said before, the surcharge is a temporary tax that must be ended as soon as our commitments in Southeast Asia and economic conditions permit."

In the Senate, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the majority leader, said earlier that Congress should insist on a second big spending cut as its price for extending the surcharge.

Nixon left open the possibility that he might call for scaling down or repeal of the surcharge within the year of its extension should the Vietnam war end and inflationary pressures ease.

The surtax is expected to yield $9 5 billion if extended.

In addition, Nixon called for postponement of scheduled June 30 reductions in excise taxes on telephone service and automobiles and enactment of unspecified federal user charges. He said these actions would produce nearly $1 billion in revenue in the coming fiscal year.

Tax Reforms

Touching on another tax matter Nixon promised that the administration, through the Treasury Department, will submit in April its first specific proposals for tax reform. Again he did not go into details.

In these times, Nixon said, the government cannot risk budgets narrowly in balance but must seek meaningful surpluses to put a brake on inflation.

He said this was necessary "because the problem of inflation was neglected far too long."

Just Tuesday the Labor Department reported a new spurt in living costs, bringing the increase during the last 12 months to 4.7 per cent It also reported a stepup in wholesale price levels—usually the prelude to higher prices at the consumer level.

In discussing his approach to inflation, Nixon said:

"Only a combined policy of a strong budget surplus and monetary restraint can now be effective in cooling inflation, and in ultimately reducing the restrictive interest rates forced on us by past policies. This is fundamental economics, and we intend to deal with fundamentals."

He described inflation as "a form of economic aggression against the very young and the very old, the poor and the thrifty." He said his administration is "determined to keep faith" with the victims of spiraling prices.

Anticipated Surplus

In reviewing the Johnson budget for the coming fiscal year, Nixon noted his predecessor anticipated a surplus of $3.4 billion.

He said, however, that interest on the federal debt "will be

Outlook Gloomy

Doctors Say Ike Remains Critical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army doctors reported today the condition of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower remains critical and evidence of his congestive heart failure persists "despite the fact that all appropriate therapeutic measures are being utilized."

A morning medical bulletin read to reporters by Col. John L. Bradley, executive officer of the Walter Reed Army Hospital, also said Eisenhower "slept comfortably through most of the night."

"He continues to enjoy brief visits with members of the immediate family," it added.

Reporters had asked whether use of the word "critical" in Tuesday night's bulletin and again today meant that Eisenhower was "near death." Doctors replied "not necessarily."

But in reply to another question they said it was "uncertain" how long a patient in Eisenhower's general physical condition "and not responding to treatment" could be expected to endure severe congestive heart failure.

Asked to compare the 78-year-old general's condition at the present time with his condition last August—at the time of his seventh and most recent coronary heart attack and when doctors described it as "very critical."—they replied: "His condition is considered to be critical."

They attributed Eisenhower's "remarkable ability to recover from so many major illnesses" to "his inherent stamina."

The physicians also said Eisenhower is always conscious "except when sleeping" and added he is lucid enough to converse easily with those around him.

In their bulletin late Tuesday, his doctors said Eisenhower "has shown no deterioration in the last 24 hours, his condition continues to be critical." This was the first time they had used critical to describe his condition.

Earlier Tuesday, the doctors added to the gloomy outlook when they said it was impossible to predict whether the former president would recover from this latest setback in his 11-month battle against serious heart disease.

They did, however, temper their statement by adding that Eisenhower "has always shown remarkable recuperative power in past illnesses."

The medical bulletins have not been optimistic since doctors announced Monday the general had suffered his second serious congestive heart failure in little more than a week.

An encouraging sign Tuesday was the absence of a late night medical report as had been issued in days previous.

Doctors said Tuesday evening the general had rested comfortably during the day "despite persistence of evidences of congestive heart failure," a condition caused when the heart muscle is unable to pump a sufficient amount of blood through the body. This causes a congestion of blood in the lungs and other vital organs.

The hospital also said members of Eisenhower's immediate family had visited with him for brief periods Tuesday.

Mass Transit's 'Mess'

Vehicle Curbs Due in Cities?

By KEN HARTNETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe says it may be necessary to curb the use of automobiles in the nation's cities unless a mass transit breakthrough is achieved within two years.

"Some type of mass transportation has got . . . to get into operation pretty rapidly or we do face the real possibility that either we have to shut off to rubber tires certain limited areas within a city or charge a fee to come in there," Volpe said in an interview.

The secretary acknowledged the need for new highways but said "we wouldn't be in the mess we're in today" if mass transit systems had been built as fast as expressways

Volpe predicted that the motorist would begin looking for alternatives to being mired in traffic jams.

"If you get down to a point where automobiles have to travel five miles an hour, well, you know how long people are going to use them," he said "They are going to walk to work instead of ride Of course, it wouldn't hurt them if they did, either, I might add."

"Bold new ideas" are needed, Volpe said But he added it would probably be five years before new developments could be in service.

"We can't wait that long for some of these things," he said.

Here are excerpts from the interview:

Q. What veto power, if any, should central city residents have over freeway construction in their neighborhoods?

A. Any responsible group should certainly have an opportunity to voice its opinions strongly and in the clearest terms. I think it is up to public agencies . . . to listen to these inputs on the part of neighborhood groups or citywide groups, action-oriented groups, . . . or whatever they might be.

But in the final analysis it is the elected or appointed officials who have to make some final judgments . . .

. . . Expressways are only one form. I'm convinced that you just don't stop a highway program because, perhaps, a few additional homes will have to be taken.

"Final Judgments"

But, by the same token, you just can't depend on a highway program to do the job completely, because it can't do the job. This has been proven in New York City . . . where over half a century ago—1917, I guess—the pushcart era—the average speed was 11 miles an hour Today it's 7 miles an hour in New York. So we haven't made much progress in over half a century. So something needs to be done. And it needs to be done in a bold and imaginative way . . .

Q. Some urban experts propose a series of user charges to discourage use of the automobile in central cities during business hours. Do you believe it necessary to ration the use of the automobile in some way?

A. Well, either we make a great deal more progress in mass transportation than we've made in the last five years, or within the next year or two, you're going to have to come to some type of restriction on certain areas within . . . the core city on the utilization of the automobile.

It could be the utilization of the trucks. I mean the delivery of goods during certain hours. It could be the separation of pedestrian and vehicle traffic . . . We are going to have to come to some type of solution along those lines . . .

I would prefer to see the alternative of taking some people off the automobile tires if you provide good, swift, safe, economical mass transportation . . .

Q How do you think the highway lobby would greet such a step?

A. I think they recognize the highway user himself is going to become so frustrated that he is going to be willing to experiment with anything rather than spend 13 per cent of his day and, maybe within a year or two, 20 per cent of his daily working hours behind another automobile and taking in all the fumes that come from it.

. . . It means the automobile

Pentagon Won't Put Marines On Planes to Halt Hijackings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has rejected the use of military armed guards to ride shotgun on commercial airliners to prevent hijackings because the potential dangers to passengers and crew are too great.

"The potential danger to the lives of all persons aboard the aircraft, due to possible death or injury to the crew or critical damage to the aircraft itself, will greatly limit the effective use of (the guard's) firearm," officials said.

Also, the Defense Department said, the use of a gun or physical force to deal with a hijacker holding a hostage "is extremely difficult in the cramped quarters of a commercial airliner without placing the life of the hostage in extreme jeopardy."

The suggestion for armed guards was made by Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S C., of the House Armed Services Committee. a Pentagon spokesman said, in the wake of many hijackings of airliners to Cuba.

The Defense Department considered the proposal of furnishing Marines or other military guards on planes carrying government personnel in possession of military secrets.

For Story on Latest Hijacking, See Page A-2

In addition to the safety factor, the Pentagon said "the size of the Marine guard force required to ride the aircraft involved would be very large" because of the many military and civilian personnel having highly classified information travelling on commercial planes.

The Defense Department also noted that "discussions would have to be undertaken with many countries before the United States could authorize the use of armed military guards aboard U.S.-registered aircraft traveling to foreign countries."

It dismissed the idea of transporting classified matter only on government planes, saying this would require possible establishment of a military mail service and an "immense logistic effort."

"There is no evidence that Cuba authorities have tampered with U.S. mail aboard any hijacked aircraft to date," the Pentagon said.

It reported that the State Department "has taken diplomatic initiative" in the matter of hijackings, and that "efforts are being made to gain an international agreement concerning the handling of hijacking incidents."

Army Accused of 'Boo-Boo' on Tank

Weapon Reportedly Rushed Into Production Despite Bugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee has accused the Army of a "billion-dollar boo-boo" in developing a new tank because:

—Although the tank is for reconnaisance, it can be heard three miles away

—It has a "rooster tail exhaust" system that makes it an easy target.

—"Its caseless ammunition is ultra-inflammable, leaves burning residue in the breech which can prematurely ignite a round, and is adversely affected by moisture, oil and rough handling.

—"Due to a problem with fuel-tank leaks, frequent checks for spilled fuel should be made to prevent fires."

—"When operating in jungle or heavy underbrush, vegetation will clog air intake grilles and the radiator, requiring frequent cleaning to avoid overheating."

—"The Shillelagh missile must not be fired when the launch vehicle is in motion."

—"Under extremely dusty conditions, the present air cleaner requires cleaning or replacement every 1½ hours."

These were the findings of a previously classified document that Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., ordered the Army to release Tuesday after six days of secret testimony on the Sheridan tank.

Stratton, chairman of the subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, said "the people have a right to know this incredible story."

Stratton charged that the Army had rushed the weapons system into combat and mass production in order to eliminate its possible cutback or elimination by the Bureau of the Budget and the secretary of defense.

He succeeded during the hearings in winning admission from one Army officer, Lt. Col. Stan Sheridan, that the tank was recommended for production for budgetary reasons although tests had indicated there were many problems.

Later, Sheridan's superiors heatedly denied this, despite an internal memorandum in the subcommittee's possession in which this point was stressed by Sheridan

Higher Minimum Age Sought

Marriage 'No Cure' to Unwanted Pregnancy

MADISON (AP) — Marriage, as a means of statistically eliminating illegitimate children, may do more harm than good, a member of the Home and Family Council said Tuesday.

"Experts tell us pregnancy is never a good reason for marriage," John Devitt, outgoing secretary for the council and a spokesman for Milwaukee County, told the Senate Public Welfare Committee.

"If a couple loves each other they can wait until the legal age and at the time of marriage, the child becomes legitimate," he said.

Devitt spoke in favor of bills to raise the minimum age for females to marry from 16 to 18 and to require a waiting period of 30 days instead of five for a marriage license.

"It's harder to get a fishing license than a marriage license in Wisconsin," he said, "and that's one reason our divorce rate is one of the highest in the world."

Msgr. Edward Kinney of Madison, also a Home and Family Council member, said he found high school students strongly in favor of the proposal to raise the age for women to marry.

"There has been some myth you can cure illegitimacy by marriage," he said, "but the cure may be worse than the disease."

Sen. Arthur Cirilli, R - Superior, chairman of the committee, said it seemed to him the bills would "close the door absolutely" when that might not be wise.

"You can't say that two people can't make it just because they're under 18," he said.

Jack Wild, Artful Dodger in Movie 'Oliver!', Only Human Actor in New Saturday Series

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Oscar nominee Jack Wild looks like an undersized jockey and talks like a cockney bookmaker.

At 4 feet 9, he has not yet reached the height of Mickey Rooney. But since he is 15, there is still hope "Me Dad is tall but me Mom isn't," he explains

In Carol Reed's highly entertaining "Oliver!" Jack Wild plays the Artful Dodger, and his was an inspired piece of type casting Like Dickens' Dodger, Jack is glib, resourceful and fast on his feet He is also a realist.

Would he like to win the Oscar as best supporting actor?

"Indeed I would," he replied eagerly

Chances Slim

What are his chances?

"Not good," he answered sourly, shaking his head

At any rate, he has already won a brand-new career as a star of American television He has been signed by NBC to be the only human actor in a new Saturday morning series, "H R. Pufnstuf" Jack will undergo adventures on an island inhabited by the puppets of Sid and Marty Krofft.

"It's a straight 52-week deal without a pilot film," Jack explained "An' I told NBC programming chief Mort Werner, 'I'll bet ya within three weeks you'll shuft it to nighttime.'"

Actor by Accident

Jack Wild is a London lad who came to acting quite by accident He and his brother were playing in a park when a lady asked them if they would like jobs "We already have jobs—helping the milkman," they replied. She replied that she meant real jobs, as actors in the stage version of "Oliver!"

"Me brother and I decided to try it as a giggle," Jack recalled

He joined the musical cast, but in a minor role, not as the Artful Dodger The part was then played by Leonard Whiting, who later took the role of the star-cross'd lover in the Franco Zeffirelli film, "Romeo and Juliet"

British laws concerning child actors are strict, and Jack could work only nine months in "Oliver!" He had to drop out for three months; he used the time for television appearances, then returned to the musical During his second stand he was tapped for the film version

When I visited the film set in the summer of 1967, there was an air of secrecy about it Jack explained the reason

"The law says kids under 12 can't work in pictures, and Mark Lester, who was playin' Oliver, was only 8. A lot of the other boys was under 12, too. So we had to keep it quiet. No photographs, that sort of thing.

"One day a bloke came in while we was washin' up and asked to take our pictures 'Why not?' we said When the company people found out about it, they went potty They started to hunt for the bloke, and us Fagin boys was plannin' to jump him But they caught him at the gate and took his film away"

Everybody Does

Wasn't the "Oliver!" company breaking the law?

"Sure," said Jack Wild "But everybody breaks the law

"Now they're makin' a new law where kids under 12 can work 40 days a year That's better If ya like show business and your parents let ya, the government shouldn't be able to touch ya"

'Star Trek' Fans Try to Save Show

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The deluge of unsolicited credit cards in Wisconsin may soon be curbed, Wisconsin Assemblymen indicated in an unusually decisive vote Tuesday after spirited debate in which members complained that thousands of persons are being sent such cards who did not ask for them and do not want them

In a vote of 89 to 8, the assembly approved a bill of Assemblyman William Johnson of Milwaukee that would prohibit the issuance of a credit card without a direct request from a person

The vote came after the lower house of the legislature exempted public utilities, and notably telephone companies from the prohibition, and provided for the reissuance of cards already in use by customers of banks, motor fuel companies and others, upon their expiration

Sponsors of the bill said they expected concurrence in the Senate, and the near passage of an identical measure in the 1967 legislature appeared to support their prediction

Have Credit History

Assemblymen explained that the exemption for telephone companies was justified because such utilities have a credit history of their customers on the basis of their previous bill paying habits which guides them in the issuance of credit cards for the use of the telephone.

Assemblyman Cletus Vander-Perren of Brown County expressed the principal objection to the careless distribution of credit cards when he reported that a Brown County judge had asked him to support such legislation because of family finance problems caused by unmanageable debts created through the indiscriminate use of such credit.

Among northeastern Wisconsin assemblymen, the only opposing votes were cast by Jack Steinhilber of Oshkosh and Milton McDougal of Oconto Falls.

Japan Economy Is Growing at Fantastic Rate

Nation Now Among World's Greatest in Industrialization

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A compilation by Lloyds Register of shipping that shows Japan floated 50 per cent of all new shipping tonnage in 1968 points up the nearly incredible postwar comeback of that country.

It was only a century ago that Japan emerged from isolation, only 25 years since its economy was wrecked by war, 15 years since it was an occupied nation.

Last year it launched 8,572,970 tons of shipping, including 19 of 23 ships whose weight exceeded 100,000 tons. Its tonnage production was, in fact, 20 times that of the United States.

It has now become the second largest manufacturer of television receivers, the world's foremost producer of radios, the third largest maker of steel products and the second largest automaker.

While some of the world's oldest industrialized nations are fighting to maintain their export markets, Japan continues to enlarge its share of trade. Last year it had a trade surplus of $2.5 billion.

By contrast, the United States surplus of goods exported compared with imports fell sharply to $725 million from more than $4 billion a year earlier.

Swiftest Growing

The island nation's Gross National Product is the swiftest growing of any industrialized nation. With a GNP now well over $100 billion, Japan's economy is the second largest of the non-Communist nations and is growing at 11 or 12 per cent a year.

Startling evidence of Japan's economic strength is seen in the shops of the United States. Transistor radios carrying American trademarks often are made in Japan. Its camera and optical products have won a name for high quality.

The emergence of the country as a manufacturer and exporter of automotive vehicles has been startling. In 1960 it made less than 500,000 vehicles. Last year the total was about eight times that figure, and many thousands were exported.

In 1968 nearly twice as many Toyota automobiles were sold in the United States as in the year before, a total of close to 69,000. Datsun also increased its sales strongly to more than 40,000 vehicles.

Problem With Inflation

Japan's 100 million people do have problems, but many of them also are the result of economic vigor rather than weakness. Inflation is even greater in Japan than in the United States.

No number of problems, however, can hide the achievements. Japan has, in fact, achieved through ingenuity and trade what it failed to win 25 years earlier by military conquest. It now has its raw materials and markets.

Various reasons are given for the transformation. Japan's people seemingly have the intelligence, spirit and the competitive desire to excel. But several other reasons also stand out.

Japan's renunciation of violence, for example, means that national defense costs less than in other nations. It has modernized its economic system. And it has benefited greatly from American spending.

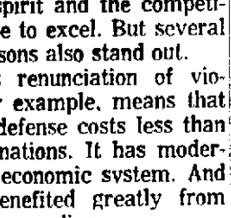

Weakens U.S.

There is irony in this American-Japanese trade relationship, for while the United States has, in the eyes of some critics, weakened its economy through military expenditures, these same expenditures have strengthened Japan.

During the Korean war, for example, Japan received a huge boost to its exports. And the present U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia has resulted, directly or indirectly, in many millions of dollars of exports.

The Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. estimated recently that Japanese exports to the U.S. market, and Japanese exports to various Asian countries, in part a by-product of U.S. military presence, account for up to 45 per cent of all its exports.

Elks to Propose Open Membership

Appleton Lodge Would Eliminate 'White Only' From Constitution

Appleton Elks Lodge 337 urged the national lodge Tuesday night to strike the "white only" rule which has restricted membership to Caucasians since 1906.

By a vote reported at 75-62 the local lodge instructed its exalted ruler to submit a resolution calling for the constitutional change at the national convention this summer of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks (BPOE).

Under BPOE procedure, if the Grand Lodge approves the resolution amending the membership clause — it must then be sent to all lodges in the country for a ratification vote.

Clause 'Archaic'

"The resolution places the Appleton Elks Lodge on record opposing the old, archaic 'white only' clause which many members never knew existed," commented an observer close to the situation.

Elks received advance word the resolution would be introduced by Richard Havilland, route 1, Menasha, who declined comment today.

However, it was learned Havilland gave a brief statement at the lodge meeting in which he outlined his reasons for drafting the resolution and putting it to the membership for a vote.

The meeting attracted an estimated 250 members. Several members abstained from voting on the resolution. The Appleton lodge has 1,181 dues-paying members.

Robert Lindsey, chairman of the board of trustees, would not comment on the meeting, issuing a statement on behalf of the board that no lodge member was allowed to divulge any information concerning what might take place on the floor during a lodge meeting.

Sworn to Secrecy

Elks are sworn to secrecy when inducted.

That the Elks is among some national organizations that restrict members to Caucasians was disclosed statewide last week as result of deliberations at Milwaukee.

The Milwaukee Common Council's license-rules committee, after heated debate, voted 3-2 in favor of proposals which would deny city licenses to organizations and clubs that restrict membership on the basis of race.

The Milwaukee proposal was aimed mostly at that city's Eagles Club while the Elks and others were mentioned.

Ex-GI Given Jail Term on Drug Charge

Appleton Youth's Sentence Includes Period of Probation

A 19-year-old Appleton ex-serviceman who earlier this month was found guilty by a 12-member jury of possessing marijuana was sentenced Tuesday to six months in the Outagamie County jail.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer, of Branch 2 court, also put Robert G. VanDenWildenberg, 1424 N. Richmond St., on probation for an 18-month period following the jail term.

VanDenWildenberg, who was discharged from the U. S. Army Feb. 13, 1969, because of a combat injury received in Vietnam, has served about half his jail sentence while awaiting trial.

In passing sentence, Schaefer warned VanDenWildenberg of the consequences of being convicted again for drug possession. He indicated that he was making the "assumption you're not going to have any further involvement with drugs."

Mother Testified

More Police Power Not Wanted, Says State Patrol Head

Statement Contradicts Judiciary Vote

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MARINETTE — While the State Assembly's judiciary committee was voting 6-2 in Madison Tuesday to grant state traffic patrolmen the powers of a sheriff, the director of the state patrol was telling Wisconsin sheriffs here that his agency does not want increased police powers.

L. V. Versnick, appearing at a meeting of the executive board of the Wisconsin Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs Association stated, "We want to stay in the traffic field. That's where we belong."

The head of the state patrol added, "We have no aspiration of ever getting a state police organization. It's not in the good interest of Wisconsin."

Sheriff's Powers

A bill introduced this month by Assemblyman Frank Nikolay (D-Abbotsford) and endorsed by the assembly judiciary committee Tuesday, would give the state patrol general sheriffs' powers which would permit them to investigate some types of criminal matters.

Under present state law, state patrolman have sheriff's powers only in enforcing the motor vehicle code and motor transportation laws.

Voting against the recommendation for passage in Madison Tuesday were Assemblymen Jack Steinhilber (R-Oshkosh) and William LaFave (R-Peshtigo). LaFave is a former state patrolman.

Discussion at the sheriffs meeting on the proposed increase in state patrol authority was brief, and the entire executive board was in strong accord with Versnick's policy statement.

Excellent Job

The state patrol chief later told The Post-Crescent he felt the sheriffs departments "are doing an excellent job in the field of criminal investigations."

He said that with the serious problems on Wisconsin highways, he wanted the state patrol to remain entirely within the area of traffic law enforcement and accident control.

State patrol effectiveness would be "diluted," if the men would have to take on criminal investigations, Versnick said. He feared that with added duties, the department's accident control program, which he termed of vital significance today, would be "crippled."

Versnick said just such problems arose in other states where the state patrol was given powers of criminal investigations.

Stay in Field

He said the state patrol should continue to maintain responsibility for accident pre-

Flu Hits Appleton Schools

Youngsters' Spring Fever Is for Real

Several hundred Appleton youngsters have been hit with Spring Fever this week — but this one is the Real McCoy.

Administrators in several public and parochial schools have reported higher than normal absenteeism, especially the first two days of this week. It's unusual for flu to hit at this time of the year, they indicated.

However, some schools, particularly Appleton's junior highs, have experienced very high absenteeism. The two parochial high schools have reported absenteeism is about double the normal amount for this time of year.

What it appears to be is a mild flu. Parents have indicated their kids are suffering from sore throats, aches and pains, fever and cramps.

Most of the youngsters are staying out of school for two or three days; some are out a shorter period, however.

Among the worst hit were Madison and Einstein junior high schools. Madison averaged about 200 cases of absenteeism each day this week, which represents 25 per cent of the enrollment, while Einstein had about 85 out Monday, 50 Tuesday and 75 today, from an 800 enrollment.

At Wilson Junior High, between 30 and 35 students were absent Monday, 50 Tuesday and 30 today, which is close to normal absenteeism.

Roosevelt Junior High absenteeism also was "quite high," according to an administrator. About 75 were missing Monday, 69 Tuesday and 55 today, from an enrollment of under 600.

Several public elementary schools and a few parochial schools reported slightly higher than normal absenteeism, but Foster and Richmond schools had significantly greater absences.

Foster had slightly higher absenteeism Monday and today but about twice the normal on Tuesday. Richmond has been about three times above normal for Tuesday and Wednesday.

The two parochial high schools, Xavier and Fox Valley Lutheran, reported absenteeism is about double the normal rate. However, Xavier's attendance was back to near normal today, administrators reported.

Meanwhile Appleton East High School administrators indicated no abnormal increase in absenteeism, with the normal 90 to 100 youngsters missing each day.

Appleton West High School experienced higher than normal absenteeism earlier this week, but it was reported back to normal today.

Committee Recommends City Anti-Smut Ordinance

Measure Covers Sale or Loan Of Obscene Matter to Juveniles

A watered down version of a municipal anti-smut ordinance for Appleton — it now exempts movies which were included in the original draft — received final approval from a council committee Tuesday night.

The welfare-ordinance committee recommended adoption of the ordinance when the council meets next Wednesday night.

City police originally requested local legislation covering periodicals as well as movies.

However, representatives of the chain operating theaters in the Fox Cities, said the industry has adopted a code to police its own films. It results in the committee exempting movies.

Sell or Loan

As it now reads, the ordinance makes it illegal for anyone to sell or loan obscene material to any minor under 18 years of age. Conviction calls for a fine of $1 to $100.

The ordinance, modeled after a New York law which has been upheld by the United States Supreme Court, defines obscenity in detail.

It would make it illegal for anyone in Appleton to sell or loan to anyone under 18 "...any publication, photograph, drawing or other material giving visual representation or image of a person or portion of the human body, which depicts nudity, sexual conduct or sado-masochistic abuse and which is harmful to minors."

The ordinance also defines the type of literature to be covered under the law.

No Charges in Fire Truck, Semi Crash

Decision Made by Appleton Police in Accident Injuring 5

Appleton police said today that no charges will be filed as a result of a fire truck-semi accident Tuesday morning.

The decision was made this morning following a conference between police officials and patrolmen who investigated the accident about 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at W. Wisconsin Avenue and N. Mason Street.

Four fire fighters, including the fire truck driver, Robert Grothe, 32, were injured in the crash. Also hurt, although not requiring hospitalization, was Eugene Roehl, 34, Fond du Lac, driver of the semi-flatbed trailer unit loaded with steel. He suffered a bump on the head.

Grothe was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by the fire department rescue squad for treatment of head cuts. Also taken to the hospital was James Adamski, 30, a fire fighter who was riding on the rear of the fire truck. He complained of a sore back. Both men remained hospitalized today.

Roland Hermes, 36, who also was riding on the back of the fire truck, and Capt. Donald

Post-Crescent News Service

DE PERE — Pealing abbey bells, late Tuesday afternoon announced the election of the Rev. Jerome Gilbert Tremel, O. Praem., as coadjutor abbot of St. Norbert Abbey.

Named and confirmed in a centuries-old ceremony, the new coadjutor abbot will work for the next year in association with the present head of the De Pere Norbertine community. On Jan. 6, 1970, he will become abbot of the institution upon the retirement of Abbot S. M. Killeen.

Abbot Tremel

The 39-year-old Abbot Tremel is a native of Luxemburg who grew up in Green Bay and is a member of the order for 22 years. Until his election he was associate professor of mathematics and chairman of the mathematics department at St. Norbert College.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Tremel, Green Bay, Abbot Tremel was born Sept. 12, 1929. After graduating from SS. Peter and Paul Elementary School and Central Catholic High School in 1947 he received his bachelor of arts degree from St. Norbert College in 1951.

He was vested in the Norbertine Order in August, 1947, just ten days after Abbot Killeen was elevated to the office of coadjutor abbot. He was ordained a priest on June 11, 1954.

Abbot Tremel earned a master of arts degree from Purdue University in 1959 and his doctorate in mathematics-education from the same university in 1963. He has been a member of the St. Norbert faculty since that time, having previously served on the faculty of Premontre High School.

Abbot Tremel was elected on the third ballot of a day-long

A proposal by some downtown merchants to allow left turns at College Avenue and Morrison Street was rejected Tuesday by the city's traffic engineer and the council's public safety committee.

Based on his study of the traffic patterns, Walter Johnson told the committee, "...It would appear a left hand turn would not be necessary at this time and would complicate the intersection."

But Johnson said at a later date a review of the request again would be beneficial.

Johnson, in a report to Police Chief Earl O. Wolff, said the four present parking ramps can be driven to from all directions without left turns.

However, he did recommend additional signs calling attention to motorists of the Soldiers Square Ramp location.

Proponents of the left turn felt it would increase the flow of parkers into the Soldiers Square facility.

Illinois Man Found Dead in Motel Room

Glenn C. May, 50, Princeton, Ill., was found dead on the floor of his room at the Snug Inn Motel, just north of Appleton, about 9 a.m. today.

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said May, a truck driver who left home Monday morning, died of an apparent heart attack. He had been dead since about midnight.

The Brettschneider-Trettin Funeral Home is in charge of local arrangements. Outagamie County sheriff's investigators assisted the coroner's office.

Revised Plan Being Studied

Priests' Pension Proposed

GREEN BAY — A proposal which would help raise money for the priests' retirement fund and would cost about 46 cents per person in the Green Bay Diocese is presently being studied by the board of directors of the Leo Benevolent Association, a retirement fund.

Since January of this year, the monthly retirement pension checks for priests has been $400. This is double the figure it was prior to January.

At present, each parish pays a set amount per priest and in many cases the proposal would not make any noticeable difference. In other cases, especially in small parishes, it is felt that the 46 cents per person would be a reduction from the present payment.

Coupled with that sum would be the mandatory annual payments of $100 to be paid by an individual priest who is a member of the benevolent association; the $520 annual payment by priests outside parish work, such as in hospitals, and an out-of-the-pocket sum of military chaplains or state employes.

There are 17 priests in the diocese presently receiving pensions. According to a new ruling, a priest is eligible for retirement at the age of 65. Mandatory retirement age is set at 70. Full implementation of the September, 1968 decision will be January, 1970.

The Leo Benevolent Association was started in 1879. Its purpose is to provide retirement income and income insurance during periods of disability.

Under the guidance of the now-defunct Priests' Association, a committee was established to study the entire retirement plan. Up to about 10 years ago it was about $100 a month. Under the late bishop, the Most Rev. Stanislaus Bona, the retirement benefits were raised to $200. This was raised to the $400 figure in 1968.

Board of Directors

The board of directors includes the Most Rev. Aloysius Wycislo, bishop, president; the Rev. Norbert Vande Loo, Oconto, vice president; the Rev. Richard Gilsdorf, Oneida, secretary; the Rev. Robert Vandenberg, Green Bay, treasurer.

Newly-created positions on the board are filled by the Rev. Francis McKeough, Oshkosh, who will represent the retirees, and Robert Petitjean, a Green Bay attorney, who will serve in a consultive role.

Such committees as the one in charge of the retirement program are no longer new and follow the edicts of Vatican II, which had stated that parish priests should have more involvement in the operation of the diocese.

Only recently the establishment of a personnel board to make recommendations to the bishop, for the appointment and transfer of priests in the diocese was initiated by the Priests' Senate.

Appointed-Elected

The senate itself is an outgrowth of the former Priests' Association. The distinguishing factor between the two is that the senate is a group partly appointed by the bishop and partly elected by the priests. The association is an independent organization begun by the priests themselves.

Five priests, all appointed by the bishop, will constitute the personnel board of the Senate of Green Bay. Four will be appointed from a list of eight priests selected as candidates by the diocesan priests and the fifth will be named by the bishop himself.

Other committees established by the Senate include the Priestly Education Committee, the Ad Hoc Committee for the Establishment of a Diocesan Pastoral Council and a Constitution Committee.

Waistlines of Northside Kiwanians contributed to Appleton Jaycettes' "Project Concern" Tuesday when Maribeth Hartwig, 1968 Miss Appleton, and a group of Lawrence coeds took measurements and then assessed members according to the number of inches around their midsections. Shown taking the measurements of Wilmer Saiberlich are, left, Mrs. Lowell Leininger of the Jaycettes and Miss Hartwig. (Post-Crescent Photo)

One of the major referendum issues to face voters April 1 will be whether property taxpayers should continue to support vocational schools or whether the expense and control should be shifted to the state.

At present, vocational schools are supported largely by a property levy which ranges up to two mills.

The schools have become so large and expensive, advocates of the change contend, that the state must step in and relieve local governments of the burden. A total of $38.9 million was spent on the system in fiscal 1968.

$85 Million Estimate

However, the opponents estimate it would cost the state at least $85 million to take over the system's facilities and point out that this will have to come from somewhere.

Under a 1965 law, 18 vocational districts were set up, with the provision that all areas of the state be included in a district by 1970.

Proponents of the change claim that the local character of vocational education has been eliminated by transfer agreements and specialized programs which draw from across the state and that the system should, therefore, have a state board, such as that controling the university system.

Five statewide referenda questions will be on the ballot Tuesday when voters go to the polls. While three are advisory, two will bring about changes in state law if they are adopted by the voter. To clarify the five referendum questions, The Post-Crescent has prepared a series of articles, one on each question. Today's article on vocational school control is the first of the series.

In 1968, for instance, they point out, 7,000 of the system's 27,000 students came from outside the area in which they were enrolled.

Question of Control

Opponents, who include many legislators, as well as the state and local boards of vocational, technical and adult education, argue that the issue of control should be decided separately from that of funding.

Joseph Noll, Kenosha, state vocational board chairman, says, "All this does is shift the source of the system's income. The taxpayer's bill will stay the same. The difference," he said, "is that the increase would be in the sales and income tax rather than the property tax."

Noll also noted that the two mill limitation on vocational taxation is "hardly extreme."

Concurring with this, is the local District 12 board, which also has urged the citizens to vote "no" on the referendum.

Tax Increase

According to William Sirek, area director, this area could end up paying more taxes than other parts of the state because the level of income is higher here than in many areas.

The issue of finances apart, however, both local and state board members feel that the area concept should be retained in whatever scheme eventually comes out of the Legislature.

The Legislature has not given local school authorities sufficient time to show they can handle the system, Philip Lerman of the state board, said.

"The board should say to the Legislature and the people that you haven't given us a chance to complete our job and until we have finished our

Supreme Court Race

Hallows, Voss Lock In a Battle of Words

MILWAUKEE (AP)— Wisconsin Supreme Court Chief Justice E. Harold Hallows wants to "keep the team intact."

Circuit Judge Clair Voss of Waukesha, seeking Hallows' seat, calls for election April 1 of a justice who can serve a full 10-year term.

Voss, who is 48, introduced the age issue into the campaign, but Hallows, 64, points out that upon mandatory retirement age of 70 he would be in a position to continue to serve the state—as a reserve judge—if he is re-elected.

The battle of words for votes in the spring election has at times become heated, with emphasis on "judicial moonlighting," the use of mailing lists, and age.

"I think the argument that a man cannot complete his 10-year term because he is over 60 is a disgrace," said Hallows in one talk. "We have a young court and you shouldn't lose its oldest man in age and experience, because he represents the experience you need."

"Judicial elections are non-partisan," he said, "and judges should be elected on their experience, background and qualifications."

The 10-year term is a "basic issue," Voss said last week. "The people should be aware of and know that if the other candidate in this election is elected to the office of Supreme Court justice, he cannot serve out the term but must retire at age 70."

Hallows was appointed to the high court in 1958 by former Gov. Vernon W. Thomson and elected to a full term the following year.

He is a graduate of the Marquette University Law School and practiced law in Milwaukee from 1930 until his appointment to the Supreme Court. While practicing law he also served as a professor of law at Marquette and was president of the Wisconsin Bar Association in 1953 and 1954.

Hallows served for many years as a member of the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association.

Voss is a decorated Marine Corps veteran of World War II and holds the Navy Cross. He has served as both state and national commander of the Military Order of the Purple Heart.

Voss also is a graduate of the Marquette University Law School. He was a practicing attorney in Waukesha for 12 years and an assistant district attorney before being elected to the circuit bench in 1960.

Voss said he entered the race against Hallows "because people should have a choice in a Supreme Court election."

Hallows, however, charged that Voss represents a minority group of judges who oppose the high court's adoption of a state judicial code of ethics.

"These judges contend it is all right for a judge to 'moonlight,' " said Hallows in a speech. He referred to the code which forbids judges from having positions as directors of banks or lending institutions.

"You can't be impartial if you're moonlighting," he said.

Voss criticized the State Bar of Wisconsin for refusing his request to use its addressing machine to mail his nomination papers to 6,000 lawyers. He said the bar's addresses and mailing facilities were used to circulate Hallows' papers.

Philip S. Haberman, executive director of the State Bar, said the judge's request could not be handled in the limited time he wanted it done and that Hallows' organization had requested use of the address equipment as long ago as last November.

"He came into the race late," said Hallows when asked about Voss's demands. "Don't blame me."

On Feb. 19, Hallows challenged Voss to resign from the bench to "equalize the race."

"My job is on the line," the chief justice said. "His isn't. If I lose I'm out of a job." Hallows said he realized, however, that Voss was under no legal requirement to resign from his judgeship.

Voss charged also that Hallows "repeatedly stated" that the chief justice supported a plan for removing the selection of judges from the election process and putting it in the hands of a "select elite commission."

Hallows said this was a false issue.

"We do not employ the 'Missouri plan' of selecting judges, but for over 100 years the citizens have elected them to the State Supreme Court," he said.

Both candidates have called for respect for law and order.

"All judges are for law and order," Hallows said. "But it is up to citizens to see that laws are just—for themselves, for their children, and for their neighbors. It is every citizen's responsibility to see that outmoded laws are re-evaluated by the legislature and modernized to keep pace with the current needs of society."

Voss has called for a reorganization of the Wisconsin judicial system. He proposed realigning the judicial manpower to put judges where they are most needed, where there is a backlog and heavy case load.

Voss proposed an increase in the number of justices on the Supreme Court from seven to nine and said at least once every two years each of the justices should step down to the trial court level to gain additional experience. He also proposed consideration of the creation of an intermediate appelate system to relieve the burden of cases handled by the Supreme Court.

Hallows is the second Supreme Court justice in two years to face opposition from a circuit judge. In 1967, Chief Justice George R. Currie, two years away from the mandatory retirement age, was defeated by Circuit Judge Robert W. Hansen of Milwaukee.

Young Burglars Caught Trying to Fry Chicken

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Policemen caught the burglars red handed. Or was it greasy fingered?

Authorities said five boys were discovered in an elementary school cafeteria Sunday. They had the stoves going and had cooked wieners. Chicken was being fried.

Cudahy Man Elected Head Of State's Young Democrats

GREEN BAY — Ron Smolinski of Cudahy, surviving opposition which hadn't been anticipated, was chosen president of the Wisconsin Young Democrats at the group's annual convention Saturday.

Smolinski had entered the contest as the only candidate after Keith Clifford of Madison announced his resignation. However, delegates began balloting for Cliffrod after he was accused of having been given choice committee assignments by the senior party's conservative units.

Smolinski received 176 votes. Clifford received 148, although his name was not officially in nomination.

Prior to the balloting, the convention was addressed by David Obey, an assemblyman nominated as the Democratic candidate in the 7th Congressional District's April 1 election.

The Wausau legislator accused Gov. Warren P. Knowles of a "fiscal fairytale" by having campaigned for re-election last year on a balanced budget, only to announce later a huge deficit.

Obey said his GOP opponent in April, state Sen. Walter J. Chilsen, erred by supporting Knowles' fiscal policies.

"You can't support a bad tax policy and then go to Washington and support tax reform," Obey said.

Problem for Kimberly

Costs Higher Than Expected for New Municipal Center

KIMBERLY — Construction of a new municipal center has run into a snag. The village board received bids Monday night which run approximately 25 per cent higher than anticipated.

The center was to have incorporated a municipal center estimated to cost $390,000, a library for $180,000 and a fire and police safety building for $130,000. An $800,000 bond issue was floated to finance construction, with an additional $100,000 earmarked for development of a swimming lake and recreation area.

Architects made cost estimates in June, 1968. The rising cost of materials and labor in recent months resulted in bids studied Monday being almost $200,000 above the estimate.

Back to Architects

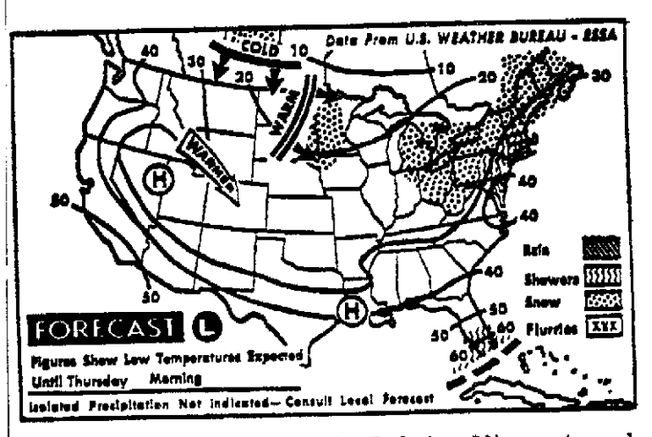

Village President Alvin Fulcer indicated the village definitely could not build on the basis of higher bids. The matter was referred back to Schuette and Mochon, architects, to see if changes in materials or in design could be made to permit construction within funds available.

It appears all bids received will have to be rejected and the entire matter readvertised, Fulcer said. Architects are to submit a new building design for consideration by the village board at the April 7 meeting.

Every effort will be made to give citizens as good a facility as possible and if architects can come up with something somewhere near the original building, a temporary bank loan may be floated to supplement the bond issue and make construction possible, Fulcer said.

Ten bids were received for general construction, seven for painting, nine for plumbing, 11 for heating and plumbing, six for electrical work and two for food service equipment.

Development of the swimming lake and recreation area will continue since bids received on this project last fall were within estimates.

It Will Snow Tonight in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Iowa and from Michigan to Maine, extending as far south as Virginia. Rain is forecast on the East Coast from Pennsylvania through Massachusetts and in southern Florida. It will be cooler from the Atlantic to the Mississippi River, and warmer on the West Coast and in the Dakotas. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Plans for the Proposed $210,000 church and Sunday facilities for Calvary Baptist Church on Green Bay Road in Neenah will be unveiled to the congregation at a meeting Friday in Appleton. The banquet at the Conway Hotel is designed to raise $60,000 for the new buildings.

Rezoning Is Favored

Bowling Complex In Neenah Given Preliminary Okay

NEENAH — Rezoning to allow a new bowling alley at Gillingham Road and Breezewood Lane was given preliminary approval Tuesday night by the plan commission.

The commission voted unanimously to recommend city council approval of a request by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Drucks to rezone the 20-acre site to C-2 commercial. Drucks' have announced plans to build a 48-lane bowling alley complex on the site.

Construction of the half million dollar complex is scheduled to start within a month and completion is set for late summer in time for the 1969-70 bowling season, according to Mrs. Drucks.

5-Year Plan

This will be the first construction in the Breezewood Inter-Urban Development Plat. She said more commercial development is scheduled to be phased over the next five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Drucks are the major developers of the bowling alley and entire complex.

The commission withdrew its objection to a rezoning request by Fred Oskar from R-1 residential to C-1 commercial for a house at Thied and Nicolet. They had turned down the request in its first go-around a month ago.

Oskar, appearing before the commission, said he planned to remodel the first floor of the house to accommodate four offices for his insurance business on the first floor.

Breakfast Will Raise Baseball Team Funds

Funds to help support the new Xavier High School baseball team, which will take the field for the first time this spring, will be raised at a pancake and sausage breakfast Sunday. The breakfast will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Columbus Club.

Both of Appleton's Knights of Columbus councils are sponsoring the fund raising event which is open to the public.

Baptists Propose New Church for Neenah

NEENAH — The proposed $210,000 new church and Sunday school facilities of the Calvary Baptist Church on Green Bay Road will be outlined to the congregation at 7 p.m. Friday at the Conway Hotel, Appleton.

The informative banquet is also designed to raise $60,000 for the building fund.

The Rev. Charles Swoboda, assistant to the president of the Grand Rapids School of the Bible and Music, Grand Rapids, Mich., will be guest speaker. The Rev. William Morrison, assistant pastor of Bethel Baptist Church, Oshkosh, will present special music.

Lester Johnson, Milwaukee, is the architect. The sanctuary will have a seating capacity for 500 persons and Sunday school is designed for 350. The proposed building includes classrooms, sanctuary, den, lobby, offices and lavatories.

Included in the cost estimates are the architects fee, parking lot, landscaping and furnishings.

Informative displays and blueprints of the building will be available for study.

Harlan Hirschy is chairman of the finance committee. He is assisted by Don Berendsen and Robert Erickson. Serving on the building committee are Art Benson, chairman, and Ed Faulks, Harry Levenhagen, Ray Ribble and Gerald Schneider.

Construction is tentatively planned for May or June.

Woman Is Found Dead at Home

Miss Amanda Duerr, 67, 511 N. Division St., was found dead in her apartment Tuesday evening.

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said she died of acute heart failure. She had a heart condition for many years.

Miss Duerr's body was found by her landlady. Miss Duerr had been dead for several hours, Kemps said. The body was released to the Valley Funeral Home.

$911,935 Received for Stamps at Auction

NEW YORK (AP) — A record $911,935 was paid for 264 lots of stamps auctioned here Tuesday night, including $115,000 for a rare airmail block.

The Robert A. Siegel Auction Galleries Inc. said the sale total was the greatest sum realized in a single session of stamp auction.

The costliest item was a block of four of the 24-cent U.S. airmail stamp of 1918 with the airplane upside down. A single stamp of this famous error brought $27,000.

Senator Raps Beer, Liquor Restrictions

MADISON (AP)— State Sen. Wilfred Schuele, D-Milwaukee, Tuesday criticized a ban on beer and liquor in state parks during spring months, saying the ban would prevent outdoor enthusiasts and fishermen from having "a little snake bite medicine to ward off the chill."

The ban, from March 31 through June 15, was designed to prevent vandalism by drinking teen-agers, the State Department of Natural Resources said.

Schuele said there already were laws against those things and the new ban would only "stop fishermen from having a beer with the batch of fish they may catch."

New Neenah West High Core Designed for 1,500 Students

NEENAH — With the exception of classroom space, Neenah West high school is being planned and designed for 1,500 students.

Central facilities, such as the field house, science laboratories, business education, arts and crafts, home economics, music, auditorium, industrial arts, administration, and utilities are all being built for a building that will hold 1,500 students.

John Shaver, of Shaver and Co., the Salina, Kan., architects retained to design the $4.5 million building, said the extra 11,500 square feet of academic area would up the rated capacity by 500 students.

Open Space

Under the open-space school design, there are no classrooms as such, instead there is space alloted to each department with moveable partitions within the department to allow for maximum flexibility, Shaver explained.

The 176,000-square foot facility is being designed to eliminate about 50 per cent of expensive corridor space. "In a conventional building, corridor space usually takes about 22 per cent of the gross floor plan," Shaver said.

"By incorporation of the open space concept, we have been able to hold this down to about half of what it has been," he explained.

He pointed out that by elimination of the walls within department areas, the doubling of circulation areas, has also been eliminated. "The major portion of the building now turns into functional area," he said.

Specifications

To allocate square footage to departments, the architects took the educational specifications as outlined by the staff of the present high school and interpreted them in terms of design and floor area instead of classroom space.

Two lecture rooms with seating for about 140 students are designed on inclines similar to movie theaters for maximum visability. A third would be built when the extra academic area would be added to provide lecture space for the 500 extra students.

Upkeep Costs

Shaver claimed the new design is not only cheaper to build but also to maintain. "Maintenance costs," he said, "are lower for carpeting than tile. And by eliminating windows for the most part, maintenance cost is also cut."

Steak House in Neenah Given Building Permit

NEENAH — A $75,000 building permit has been issued to Eugene Van Gorp for a Black Angus Steak House on Gillingham Road directly south of the Fox Valley Roller Rink.

The one story building will have a field-stone facing with a total seating capacity of 126 on the first floor and a dining room in the basement for 182.

Plans call for a bar, rest rooms, dining area and office space on the first floor. The full basement will have storage facilities plus the large dining area.

The 52 by 70 foot building will sit on a 1½-acre site on Gillingham Road between Byrd Avenue and proposed Appleblossom Lane.

The area is zoned for light industrial development to serve as a buffer zone between U.S. 41 and the Green Acres residential development.

'Impetus to Redevelopment'

Officials Applaud Downtown Plans

NEENAH — Plans announced Tuesday by Neenah merchants to inject a bright, fresh look into the downtown area were met with enthusiasm today at city hall.

Mayor Donald Hassler applauded the move. "This shows real enthusiasm and initiative by the downtown merchants."

A plan sketched out by Karl Moe, of Aspen Design Studio, Neenah, showed uniform paint jobs, striped awnings, removal of protruding signs plus flying red, white and black flags to facelift the downtown area.

The move would be a temporary measure until redevelopment plans get off the drawing boards and into the construction phase.

Hassler said, "This looks like an excellent move by the retail people. There is much that can be done in the way of face lifting and brightening up the area."

"This should actually provide impetus to the redevelopment effort," the mayor added.

Merchants have tentatively set six months to get the work done.

They discussed the possibility of getting it done the same time as recapping Wisconsin Avenue.

Wayne Bryan, public works director, said plans are to recap Wisconsin Avenue from the Neenah Theater to Torrey Street and Commercial Street from Doty to the bridge. The work is scheduled in midsummer "to make sure we have good, hot dry weather," Bryan said.

The fact lifting, according to the plan, would be confined mainly to painting and improving the appearances of the buildings.

Earl Page, city assessor, said as long as the work does not go beyond what is considered normal maintenance, permits would not be required.

Moratorium

The city council has declared a moratorium on all building and remodeling in the downtown because of its being in the redevelopment project area.

All the stores, both sides of Wisconsin Avenue from Commercial to Church streets, fall in the redevelopment area.

"If it goes to new store fronts and things like that," he said, "it would require permits, but not if it only involves interior and exterior painting."

Hassler explained he was 100 per cent behind their proposal and added, "Redevelopment is a more comprehensive move to coincide with the Schellie plan and I can't see where this would interfere with the long-range plan."

"It is in line with the redevelopment effort and has the same basic aim — to improve the shopping climate in the downtown," the mayor concluded.

Mortars Strike Base 40 Miles From Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy mortars struck a major U.S. base south of Saigon early today, blowing up 500 tons of ammunition, wrecking scores of buildings, destroying three helicopters, killing a few Americans and wounding more than 60 others.

Shelling of the headquarters base of the 9th Infantry Division at Dong Tam, 40 miles south of Saigon, was one of 30 rocket and mortar attacks by the Viet Cong on the 32nd night of their spring offensive.

North Vietnamese troops followed up one of the attacks with an infantry charge that carried them to the barbed wire perimeter of another American base 45 miles northwest of Saigon. Before they were driven off eight American air cavalrymen were killed, 17 were wounded and only two enemy bodies were found on the barbed wire.

Ammunition Lost

Col. Ira Hunt of McLean, Va., chief of staff of the 9th Division, estimated that as much as 500 tons of ammunition, mostly small arms, went up in the attack on the Dong Tam base.

"We were expecting it because we had information from a prisoner," Hunt told AP photographer Max Nash.

Hunt said about 13 rounds of 120mm mortars, the biggest in into the base an hour and a half before midnight but caused little damage.

"We thought that was it," said Hunt. "Many men had left their bunkers after the first attack."

Second Barrage

Then came another barrage about midnight. One of the first shells hit an ammunition storage pad, triggering a series of explosions in at least half a dozen more pads. After that the Americans couldn't distinguish the incoming rounds from their own exploding ammunition.

Two crews got their helicopters off the ground but were knocked down by the exploding shells A third helicopter was destroyed on the ground

The 9th Division base has been shelled more than a dozen times during the enemy's spring offensive.

Scores of helicopters and hundreds of tons of ammunition and fuel have been lost, but the U.S. Command has never disclosed the exact amounts

"They don't like us," said Col. Hunt. "We've killed 2,800 enemy troops so far this month"

Children Killed

South Vietnamese headquarters said five mortar rounds killed three children and wounded four soldiers in Quang Tri City, 19 miles below the demilitarized zone.

More ground action also was reported along the northern frontier

U.S. Marines and Army tanks were credited with killing 34 North Vietnamese soldiers along the southern edge of the buffer zone. Two Americans were reported killed and 10 wounded.

American forward observers reported another 10 North Vietnamese soldiers in the southern half of the DMZ near the coast at dusk Tuesday. The observers called in artillery fire and said they sighted seven bodies afterward.

Food Haul

At the other end of the DMZ near the Laotian frontier, U.S. Marines on Operation Maine Crag dug up another 400 tons of rice, bringing to 1,000 tons the total haul of North Vietnamese food in the past four days. This is enough to feed 14,000 enemy troops for a sustained offensive of three months.

In four brisk fights north and south of Saigon Tuesday, American forces killed 95 enemy soldiers, spokesmen said, while U.S. losses were four killed and eight wounded.

About 200 North Vietnamese tried to ambush a 100-vehicle convoy of the 25th Infantry Division 33 miles northwest of Saigon. Lying in wait in palm trees and bamboo stalks on one side of the highway, the enemy opened up with machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades. Military Police with the convoy retaliated with .50-caliber machine guns mounted in groups of fours on 2½-ton trucks. Then U.S. tanks with 90mm cannon closed in from two sides on the North Vietnamese, sending them fleeing.

5 Minutes

"They didn't have a chance to get off more than five minutes of fire before we ran them out of the area," said a 25th Division spokesman.

The infantrymen and tanks pursued the retreating enemy to a recently established base camp. There, American bombers and helicopters gunships took up the fight.

A U.S. spokesman said a sweep of the area turned up the bodies of 55 North Vietnamese, and five wounded men were captured. They said they were from a main force Viet Cong Battalion made up mostly of North Vietnamese.

Two Americans were reported killed and four wounded in the day-long fight. In the convoy only two cargo trucks were slightly damaged. One was loaded with 8-inch howitzer shells, and a rocket-propelled grenade smashed into them. But the shells did not blow up

Legislative Probe

UW Unrest Forecast Until Blacks' Demands Are Met

MADISON (AP)— Legislators probing student unrest have been advised that classroom boycotts may be resumed on the University of Wisconsin campus unless the administration agrees to black students' demands.

The prediction was made Tuesday night to a joint legislative investigating committee by David Joranson, a graduate student in social work.

Joranson, formerly of Appleton and now of Madison, said he participated in a classroom boycott in support of Blacks' demands last month but could not condone violence which erupted during the protests.

Investigate Disruptions

The committee was created to look into campus disruptions and determine if new legislation is needed. Madison Police Chief Wilbur Emery and University Police Chief Ralph Hanson are to testify when the hearing resumes tonight.

Joranson said he and a majority of his fellow students in social work "were in sympathy with the principles of the black demands" which were submitted to UW administrators shortly before the strike.

The demands called for creation of an autonomous black studies department, a black cultural center, and admission of 90 Negro students ousted last fall following a disruption at Oshkosh State University.

Demands Dramatized

Sen. Gordon Roseleip, R-Darlington, asked Joranson why he thought the black students presented the list of demands and declared them non-negotiable.

"They felt a need to dramatize" the demands, Joranson answered.

"If the demands are not met," Roseleip asked, "do you think we'll have another strike?"

"Yes, sir," Joranson replied.

In response to another question by Roseleip, Joranson said he did not believe in violence as a means of achieving an objective.

Joranson said he believed it was wrong for the UW administration to ask Gov. Warren P. Knowles for National Guard troops during the protests.

"I had a fierce gut reaction to the presence of the Guard," Joranson testified. "Their presence gave momentum to the student movement" and helped "polarize people who had not been able to take a stand before."

OSU Racism

Joranson said he believed Oshkosh State University was guilty of "racism" because it ousted only black students after the November protest.

He said two white students "who were involved are still in attendance" at Oshkosh.

But Assemblyman Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, told Joranson the white students were not present when a university office was damaged.

Doug Morris, a graduate student from San Jose, Calif., and David Keene, a second year law student from Ft. Atkinson, also appeared before the committee.

Keene said black students were often responsible for maintaining order during the demonstrations.

He asserted that "white, radical members of the Students for a Democratic Society" caused the violence.

far more than was estimated" by Johnson, that farm price support payments were underestimated and that the Johnson administration was far too optimistic about receipts from offshore oil leases.

The result, he said, is that his experts now figure the Johnson budget, unless reduced, now could be expected to yield a fiscal 1970 surplus of just $1 7 billion.

"Thus," he said, "half of the projected 1970 surplus has disappeared before the year begins. Similarly, more than half of this year's projected surplus of $2 4 billion will not be realized—and for the same reasons.

He said it will not be easy to "cut expenditures while retaining revenues" But he pledged himself to do so.

"By proving government's serious intent to counter the upward spiral of prices and wages," he told Congress, "we will create conditions which will encourage the private sector to stop assuming a high rate of inflation in long range planning."

Nixon said that "courageous government action will modify the inflationary psychology which now afflicts business, labor and consumers generally" He acknowledged that the course he proposes is "distasteful" in many respects but is essential for the future health of the economy.

Mansfield said in an interview that, if Congress goes along with the President, it should "impose a $10 billion cut in requested appropriations and a reduction of $5 billion in actual expenditures as a price to be paid for continuing this heavy taxation"

Laying down a Democratic position, he said cuts should be made in defense funds, and in spending for overseas bases, deployment of the Safeguard antimissile system, the space program and for research and development.

Social Security Boosts Hinted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration sources said today proposals to increase Social Security benefits are under active study and they hinted it might be possible to boost benefits without raising payroll taxes.

These sources emphasized that a wide range of suggestions for higher Social Security benefits were being considered but that no final decision had been made on a package to be presented to Congress

At this point, they said, there was no guarantee President Nixon would act this year to seek higher benefit payments, although such a move is widely expected.

Nebraska Minors Become Adults

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Under a state law enacted two weeks ago, Nebraska 20-year-olds have assumed all the rights and responsibilities of adulthood except one:

They can't play bingo.

Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer's office Tuesday said the bingo statute, unlike those governing contracts, drinking or horse racing, sets the minimum age at 21.

The other laws simply exclude "minors."

manufacturer, the gasoline producers, the retail distributers are going to be faced with a situation of reduction in the utilization of the product which gives them their living unless something is done to bring about a better situation than that which presently exists ... If you get down to a point where automobiles have to travel five miles an hour, well, you know how long people are going to use them. They are going to walk to work instead of ride. Of course, it wouldn't hurt them if they did either, I might add.

... You are going to need highways as long as there's a United States of America.

But you are going to need mass transportation a great deal more and it's got to catch up. If we had gone along with mass transportation ... at the same speed and started it about the same time we did with the highway stepup, we wouldn't be in the mess we're in today.

And that is why I feel so strongly that we've got to do something by way of public transportation to try to catch up somewhat and minimize these tremendous delays and congestion which are taking place, which are just going to choke the economy of our major cities.

Out of Ghettos

Q. What can be done now to get people out of ghettos to work in suburban factories?

A. This is, of course, another one of the problems. The dial-a-bus, of course, that's being worked on, the many other factors that are being worked on, the express bus transportation ... There may be a better way to do it but we have a few examples I gave there recently.

One in New York, for a ghetto worker to get from Harlem to Long Island-Farmingdale. What is it, an hour and 45 minutes each way? From Watts to an aerospace center, 16 miles, but an hour and a half each way and three changes, transfers, and so forth.

Now, if we are going to get some responsible work, and not just menial work, for these ghetto workers ... Then we've got to provide a means of transportation for these people to get these jobs and we can't wait five years to get the answers.

Transit Trust Fund

Q. Sen. Harrison Williams of New Jersey has proposed creation of an urban transit trust fund to be financed out of automobile excise taxes. What is your reaction to such a proposal?

A. As far as I'm concerned, I believe the trust fund concept is one way to finance it. I believe it's the surest way I have heard of. Someone may come up with a better answer. I haven't seen a better answer yet.

... It is one good way in which to make sure you will be able to finance over a specified period of time a specified number of miles of mass transportation that has been spelled out—similar to the highway program as it was spelled out in 1956 with a cost factor and a time factor to get it simultaneously completed in each state in the Union.

Q You would hope to have Congress act on some kind of trust fund this session?

A. Well, I would hope that we could get some, if we can't get the trust fund concept, at least a substantial increase made in the number of dollars available to get the program started in a little higher gear than it's going right now ...

Automobile Tax

Q. Do you think a tax on automobiles would be wise?

A. There have been some published reports that said the highway lobby would fight this because this would be taking money away from the highway trust fund. But the excise tax funds ... do not go into the highway trust fund. Now it doesn't make a great deal of difference what particular tax you take these trust monies from. As long as you have a specific tax, it's all going to the same pot right now, the general fund. So whether you take it out of the automobile tax or you say 10 per cent of the cigarette tax, as long as you take a known tax provision now in the law and you say 10 per cent of that, depending on how much that brings in, or 5 per cent or 15 per cent or 20 per cent of it In other words, the only way you are going to be guaranteed that you'll have the money to do the job and get it completed over a specific period of time ... is through that kind of an approach.

Latest Hijacker Wanted to Get to Venezuela

By BEN FUNK
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP)—A young, curly-haired Latin who said he was trying to get to his home in Venezuela hijacked a Delta Air Lines jet carrying 114 persons to Cuba today.

After nearly eight hours in Havana Capt. William Wood flew the airliner to Miami and a score of FBI agents spent more than one hour questioning the passengers as they remained aboard the craft at Miami International Airport.

"We were about 15 minutes out of Dallas bound for San Diego when we heard a sharp rap on the cockpit door," Wood said.

In Late 30's

Wood said the hijacker, a man about 5-feet-5 and in his late 30s, said he wanted to go to Santiago or Havana.

"He said that he wanted to try to get to Venezuela eventually," Wood said. "He said that that was his home and he had been in the United States for years."

Miss Cheatam was forced to sit in the observer's seat in the cockpit and the hijacker stood behind her the entire trip, Wood said.

Because of the necessity for going through Customs after the Cuba flight, the passengers were kept aboard at Miami during a long grilling of the crew by FBI agents.

At one time a Delta representative came off the plane and said, "These people want a cold beer. Try and get a couple of cases."

From time to time a passenger was escorted off by an FBI agent for a quick trip to a restroom.

The hijacker arose from a front seat in the tourist section to put the gun on Miss Cheatam and walk her to the cockpit.

The stewardess said she attempted to question the man on his reasons for taking over the plane but said she could make little sense out of his conversations.

"All I could tell," she said, "was that he wanted to go somewhere."

Partially-Built House Burns

Fire Might Have Started in Paint Rags, Officials Say

Fire that burned out a house under construction on the far southeast side early today may have started in paint rags, Appleton Fire Department officials said today.

The blaze was reported at 2 a.m. by a resident living near the partially constructed house in the 1500 block of Plaza Drive. Fire fighters said flames were shooting out of the frame structure when they arrived with four units. Some fire fighters were at the scene about two hours.

The house, being built by Vero Construction Co. of Appleton, is owned by Sylvester Smits, 1824 N. Outagamie St. A spokesman for the construction company said the burned out shell will have to be razed and construction started anew. He valued the house at about $25,000. The loss was covered by insurance.

Started in Kitchen

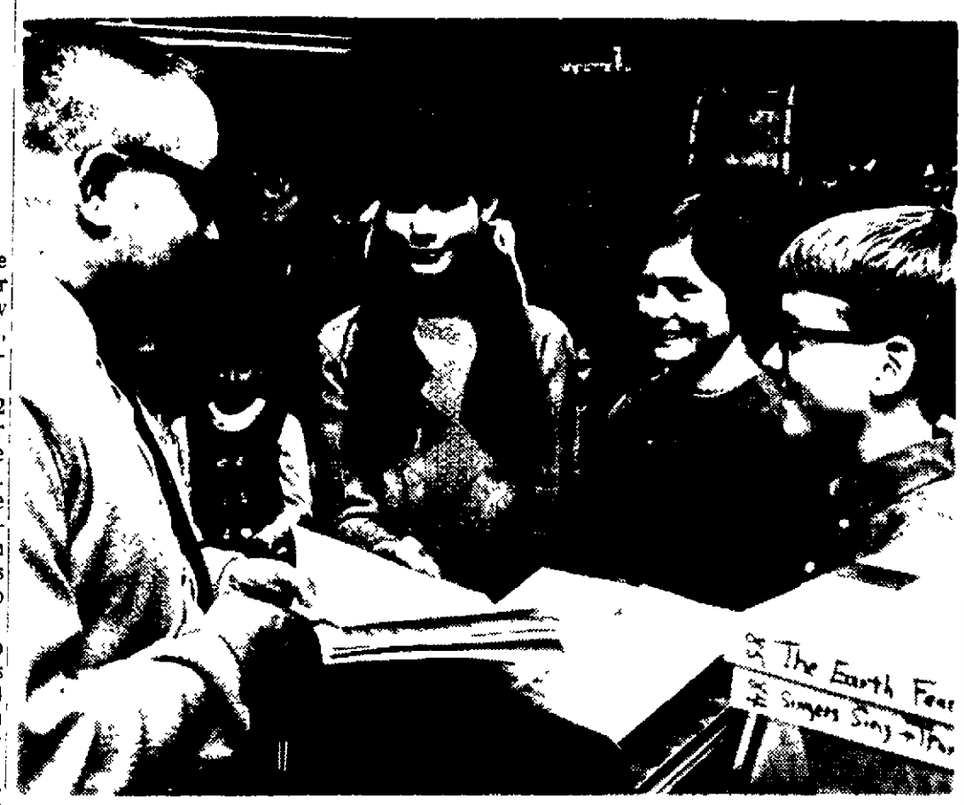

The blaze apparently started in the middle of the kitchen floor of the ranch-style house.

Deputy Fire Chief Harold Kramer said that electrical wiring and a furnace that was in operation were ruled out as possible causes of the blaze. He said that most of the wiring was not hooked up

Officials said it is possible the paint rags in the kitchen became overheated and ignited.

They said that while there was no evidence the fire was a result of arson, inspectors are continuing to check on the possibility of vandalism in connection with the blaze.

The house was to have been ready for occupancy in about a month, it was learned.

Taxi Question Is Postponed By Committee

Action Delayed on Denying License to Kimberly Operator

Is the City of Appleton encouraging a local taxi cab service monopoly?

The question — posed in recent weeks at city hall — won't be answered for another two weeks.

Meeting Tuesday night, the city council's welfare-ordinance committee decided not to take up its recommendation to deny a license to a Kimberly cab company.

The matter had been referred back to committee by Ald. George Schwarzbauer (10th) at the last council meeting, but he was not able to attend Tuesday night's meeting.

William H. Derks, owner of Community Cab Co., Kimberly, was on hand to argue why his application for a license should not be denied.

Lloyd Doerfler, an Appleton businessman and owner of local cab companies, also was present.

It was agreed by all parties concerned to postpone further action on the matter for two weeks.

The committee has held in denying Derks' license application that a necessity for additional cab service does not exist.

On another matter, the committee was informed by City Atty. David Geenen that a Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) regional building code containing a penalty clause was illegal.

State Patrol Head Says He Wants No More Police Power

vention and traffic enforcement, and should not start becoming involved "in barking dog complaints and family squabbles," which he said are part of the overall criminal investigation area.

Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin L. Spice today lauded Versnick's stand against increased powers for his 375 men.

"It could eventually lead to a state police force, which would replace local law enforcement agencies," Spice said.

Spice, immediate past president of the state sheriffs association, said local law enforcement agencies are in a better position to serve the public in the criminal investigation field than is the state patrol. ". . .because we're closer to the problem areas and to the people."

Create confusion

"We know where to go and what to look for," Spice said. He explained that with several agencies conducting an investigation, "confusion is the only result."

"The state patrol has a big enough job to do in traffic work at the present time without taking on an added load." Spice declared. He noted that the patrol is seeking more men now to do nothing but traffic work and accident control.

Spice said he wanted it understood that he is not against the state patrol or against increased law enforcement.

Versnick said that the only exception he would make to his policy or not wanting increased state patrol authority would be when a state of emergency is declared, necessitating the use of other than the regular police forces.

Ex-GI Given Jail Term on Drug Charge

Norman VanDenWildenberg testified at her son's March 10 trial that her three-year-old daughter found some of the drug in a sewing box in an upstairs room.

The defense counsel argued that if VanDenWildenberg was incarcerated for a long period, his 30 per cent disability qualification would be in jeopardy. He must take an annual physical examination to maintain eligibility, the attorney said.

"He would lose a valuable right given him by the United States," the attorney argued. He noted it was more difficult to re-apply.

Schaefer turned the defendant over to the State Department of Health and Social Service for two years probation after staying a two-year sentence to the reformatory at Green Bay. The first six months will be spent in jail with Huber (work) Law Privileges if VanDenWildenberg desires.

Wiese, 44, who was riding in the cab, suffered lesser injuries and were not hospitalized.

The fire truck was northbound on Mason Street, enroute to answer an alarm at a house on N. Elinor Street. The call involved a problem with a hot water heater. Another fire truck was dispatched to the residence after the accident.

The fire truck was going against the red traffic light, but witnesses said it was not moving at high speed. Emergency lights and sirens were in operation.

The semi was eastbound on Wisconsin Avenue and slammed into the left side, including the cab, of the 1950 fire truck. The two fire fighters on the rear of the fire truck were thrown off in the collision.

Fire Chief Roland Kuehnl estimated damage to the pumper unit at $12,000. He said it has not yet been decided if the truck will be repaired.

There was extensive damage to the semi cab.

Mrs. Irene Pasek Dies In Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Irene Pasek, wife of Leonard E. Pasek and a former Appleton resident, died in Washington, D.C., on Monday.

The Paseks resided in Appleton until two years ago when Mr. Pasek retired as director of public affairs with Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah. He is now a trade association executive in Washington.

Pasek formerly served as Outagamie County Republican chairman, and was active in the Appleton Chamber of Commerce and Appleton Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Pasek is survived by her husband, a daughter and son, one grandson and two sisters. Memorial services were conducted today in Washington, D.C.

McCarthy Group Wants Service In Courthouse

Use of the Outagamie County Courthouse lobby May 4 to hold services commemorating the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy has been requested by Milwaukee attorney Samuel Murray, chairman of the Friends of Sen. McCarthy Committee and vice chairman of the Joseph R. McCarthy Foundation.

State Sen Gordon Roseleip, R-Darlington, would be the speaker for the program which would be held in front of the McCarthy bust in the courthouse.

Graveside services also are planned in Appleton by the group.

A similar courthouse service was held in 1967. Graveside services last year were interrupted by members of the Students for a Democratic Society. Earlier in the year a mock services was held with Allen Ginsberg.

job, I would oppose any legislation of this type," Lerman said.

The fact that local autonomy would be lost in a day when the general feeling is that the state is taking over everything, was the main objection of the local board members as well as VTE-12 officials.

"This idea isn't good for local communities," said Frank Sprister, Appleton. "Now the people know who to turn to and the staff and board can work more closely and understand each other's problems."

"After all, we are serving the immediate businesses and industries and a local board is much more sensitive to the needs of the community," added Donald Steinfort, Oshkosh.

All the board members felt that policies can't be dictated to cover everyone. "Every area has its own problems that only those close to them can appreciate," said C. G. Russell Johnson, board president

The bill seems to be even more distasteful now because of the many problems the state university board of regents has faced lately

Deeper Problems

Indicative of this were comments such as "The people serving on the boards are too far away to really evaluate the local problems and we may be struggling with something deeper than what it looks like on the surface."

Gaylord Unbehaun, a VTE-12 board member from Brillion, felt that many of the equipment and facility needs in vocational and technical education are unique to parts of an area and need local members to appreciate them.

"Many areas need strong unified guidance, but there comes a point where you can remove the governing bodies too far from the people and this may be just such an area," Johnson said.

Knowles Veto

Even if approved by the voters and passed by the Legislature, the measure may still run into trouble, because Gov. Warren Knowles has warned that any measure which does not include a funding proposal will be vetoed.

The only mention of money was advanced by Sen. Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, who proposed the state's selective sales tax be increased to finance the state cost.

It was defeated by a vote of 20 to 2 in the Senate.

But for many legislators, funding is a distant concern with the immediate problem that of securing a voter mandate for the general concept of state control, which is only advisory.

election that began about 10:45 a.m. Tuesday. Although officially three ballots were cast by 158 professed members of the order assembled from all over the United States, there actually were four

The opening ballot was declared invalid when a mistake in counting resulted in two more votes than the actual number eligible.

Although the actual vote count was not publicly announced, Norbertine statutes require a majority on either of the first two ballots or a plurality on the third.

As soon as the results were announced in the closed election chapter of the order, the new coadjutor abbot was asked by the presiding officer, Abbot General Norbertine J. Calmels, worldwide head of the order, if he accepted. The reply being affirmative, Abbot Killeen gave his approval and Abbot General Calmels issued the confirmation required by Rome

Lorge Medical Education Bill Solidly Backed

Cigarette Tax Would Produce Funds for Schools

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — With a strong financial shot in the arm, State Sen Gerald Lorge's medical education bill gained substantial backing Tuesday when it was announced that the measure will produce over $31 5 million for training doctors during the coming two years

The Bear Creek Republicans proposal to finance expanded medical education opportunities in the state through cigarette and cigar taxes produces so much revenue that new buildings called for could be directly financed rather than constructed through the more costly sale of bonds, the committee was told.

Lorge's Labor, Insurance, Taxation and Banking Committee, considering the measure, got the first look at a revenue estimate prepared by the state Department of Revenue and it startled even Lorge, the bill's author

So much money may be earned through the proposal that the tax on cigars might be dropped through an amendment, he announced

Lorge's proposal calls for a 3 cent hike on cigarette taxes and a 2 cent cigar tax for medical education purposes

The bill calls for the construction of a third medical school somewhere in Wisconsin — with consideration of Green Bay, Marshfield and Milwaukee among the sites — as well as expansion of University of Wisconsin medical school facilities and program, and state aid for the failing Marquette School of Medicine, Inc

The Marquette aid provisions lifts wholesale the provisions for a $3.2 million aid package pending before the Senate, awaiting the outcome of a state Supreme Court test case The Lorge proposal suggests a funding mechanism for the aid plan proposed by a special state task, for on medical education

That task force also pointed up the need for the expansion of facilities at the UW, and the rapid expansion of the Marquette and UW medical school entering class size from 100 students each to 160 students

The Lorge bill also provides funding for such a move

The UW board of regents and the state Building Commission would be responsible for site selection for the proposed third medical school that would train an additional 100 doctors a year

Fred Hiestand, a budget officer in the state Department of Administration, reports on the revenue estimates In the first biennium of operation, he said, the tax plan would produce $31 552,000

He backed the broad outlines of the Lorge proposal, saying that Gov Warren P Knowles certainly can be expected to support the aim of the bill to expand medical education in the state

While that money is collected, said Hiestand, immediate operations aimed at improvement of the UW and Marquette programs will cost $5.8 million, resulting in a net surplus in tax funds.

The 1971-73 program, including $30 6 million in collections, would leave a surplus of $56.3 million at the end of that biennium, if bonding for buildings is used, said Hiestand Following the 1973-75 biennium, there would be a surplus of $70 9 million, using the same assumption

Lorge said after the hearing that in light of the revenue figures, he may favor direct financing of the buildings called for at the UW in aiding the Marquette program, and in the third medical school

The only major opposition to the proposal came over the taxing scheme devised, with tobacco-related lobbyists appearing in opposition

State smokers would be paying $110 million a year in cigarette taxes if this bill is adopted, along with Knowles' suggestions of a broad sales tax and a 2 cent hike in cigarette taxes, said Anthony Madler of the Wisconsin Food and Tobacco Institute

The committee withheld action on the measure so that amendments may be prepared Included will be a provision opening other forms of medical education — such as nurses' training — to the provisions of the bill Also covered will be a plan for boosting aid for interns doctors in residency and post-graduate trainees, as well as a directive that all three medical schools should be concerned with the training of general practioners

Disaster Just Comes Naturally to Chile

BY THOMAS BRADY

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The race is on again this year between wages and huge jumps in prices and again the man in the street is caught in the middle

There is plenty in Chile to distract him, between pay days and purchases, from the worries of inflation, a chronic problem as familiar to his father and grandfather as it is now to him

If he is a pessimist, he can anticipate the next natural disaster. Chilean history is a chronicle of earthquakes and drought

If he likes politics, he can follow the endless rounds of polemics and infighting among parties ranging from MBarxist to right-wing

If his passion is sports, he can join the Sunday crowds which consider soccer the prime reality in this republic of 9½ million persons.

And if his tastes run to wine and women, then he was born in the right country. Chile has an ample, excellent supply of both

Chile's problems with inflation began late in the 19th century and have continued with few pauses until the present. No signs appear that wearisome rounds of price increases and currency devaluations are in sight

The manner of dealing with inflation has become as ritualized as the goosestep march of Chile's German-trained army

Annual Raises

Employers are ordered annually to pay wage increases equal to the previous year's rate of inflation Thus private sector employes in January received a mandatory 27 9 per cent wage increase, the amount the government says was the rate of price increases in 1968

But the first days of the new year also brought new price increases One type of bread went up 32 per cent, vegetable oil rose 37 per cent, flour jumped 39 per cent in price. And so on

Deviation from this pattern of pay increases can cause trouble The government decided this year to pay some public employes less than a full 27 9 per cent increase, and ran into a Marxist-backed one-day strike The walkout was less than effective and the administration of President Eduardo Frei is tentatively sticking to its guns.

Major Tinkering

Last year Frei decided on some major tinkering with the ritual To take a measure of consumer-buying pressure off the economy, he asked Congress to hold back a part of mandatory pay boosts in a system of forced savings

In the political battle that followed, Frei lost two treasury ministers in a series of Cabinet upheavals A one-day protest strike left five dead, an unusual occurrence in recent times in Chile where political violence has seldom reached such a pitch

Frei ended up dropping his savings plan and cutting back many other inflation-trimming measures

"Chile is a nation of economists, maybe that's way we have inflation," says one Santiago editor He means that many persons theorize about the causes of inflation and few do anything about it

Too Much Money

Marxists blame it on "capitalist exploitors and their North American imperialist partners" More classical economists trace inflation to the volume of money which they say has far outgrown the rate of actual production Still others say a lack of any tradition of savings helps inflation along

"What is earned today is spent today no matter what the price" is their explanation

And why not spend now? is an often-heard rejoinder A crippling earthquake may be around the next corner. A quake in 1960 killed 5,700 persons in southern Chile And in 1939 aboout 30,000 persons died when a quake leveled the southern city of Chillan Chile is part of the Pacific seismic region that travels the rim of the ocean from New Zealand to Chile to Alaska

The great earthquake and fire of San Francisco killed 450 persons in 1906 An earthquake in Valparaiso, Chile killed more than twice that number two days before

Worst Drought

Recently Chile has faced another form of natural disaster, its worst drought in history As much as inflation, it threatens to undermine the many of the reforms of Frei's moderately leftist government

Hundreds of thousands of sheep and cattle have died and the harvest of many basic crops has declined significantly. Government funds that might normally go to one or another Frei-backed reform are being diverted to drought relief

Despite government efforts to control prices, the drought is expected to be one more spur driving prices higher this year than last

"It is," Frei has declared, "Chile's worst disaster."

Copper accounts for up to 75 per cent of the nation's foreign exchange income just as nitrates once played a similarly important part in the economy until a method of producing them synthetically was perfected during World War I

One-Product Economy

First with nitrates, then with copper, Chile's economy has been disproportionately dependent on one export product for almost 100 years.

Some economists claim this dependence has kept Chile from developing a more balanced economy, one not so tied to the ups and downs of prices on the London Metal Exchange

Whatever Chile's problems, her citizens turn to politicans, not to generals, to solve them

Chile is an island of democratic muddling—through in a continent where military men often intervene in elected governments and try to provide quick, dictated solutions

The Andes to the east, the Pacific to the west, the Antarctic and treacherous Cape Horn to the south and the barren desert wastelands of the north separate Chile geographically from her neighbors

"European Nation"

And a fairly continuous tradition of democratic rule separates Chile from her neighbors politically Chileans like to define how they differ from many other Latin Americans. "We are a democratic, European nation," is a remark often heard by foreigners in Santiago

Every shade of political opinion is permitted

Socialist leaders periodically issue declarations that violent revolution is the only way to power for Marxists in Chile. But there are no signs of a revolution in the offing "Socialists are always crying 'to the barricades,' but they always go back to their books," says one longtime observer here

The Communists here are generally considered to be to the right of the Socialists The Socialists, who may like Fidel Castro or Mao Tse-tung or the late Ernesto "Che" Guevara or all of them, privately describe the Communists as slightly shopworn hewers of the Moscow party line When the Soviet Union led the invasion of Czechoslovakia Chile's party backed Moscow to the hilt. Chile's party is thoroughly organized and highly disciplined Outside Cuba, Chile has the largest Communist Party in Latin America

"The Christian Democrats, Catholic-based reformers, came to power in 1964 on Frei's pledge of "revolution liberty" Frei has made major gains in reforming education and in obtaining for the government a direct share in copper production. But his program of agrarian reform is running into resistance as his administration tries to distribute land once in a relatively few hands and at the same time works to rise the standards of living and education for backward, often direly poor peasants. The ruling party is increasingly split with a younger, more radical wing impatient with the pace of Frei's reforms.

Alliance With Reds?

The Radicals, a middle-class party, are often portrayed as being the opportunist of Chilean politics. Although some radicals abhor the idea, party leaders toy with the idea of an alliance with the Communists to back a Radical candidate for president in the 1970 election.

Then there are the Nationalists, a coliation that includes the old Liberal and Conservative parties, former antagonists who joined in 1966 as their right-wing views found less and less favor among Chile's electorate. The Nationalists have fought most of Frei's reform programs—most violently agrarian reform. The Nationalists are now pinning their political hopes on helping to elect Frei's predecessor, Jorge Alessandri, to a second presidential term in 1970. Alessandri, an independent, will be 74 on election day.

Whatever the political situation, Chileans continue going to soccer games. "Three thousand persons will attend a political rally, 50,000 will go to a soccer match," is the way one man sums up the relative importance of politics and sports in the average Chilean's daily life.

Headline Stories

The firing of a soccer club manager, injury to a key player, results of a major match will drive politics off the front page of Santiago's nine daily newspapers.

Wine is another distraction. This slender nation — 2,600 miles long, seldom more than 100 miles wide—produces 100 million gallons annually. A gallon of a respectable table wine costs the equivalent of $1 50. Few meals are eaten without a good accompanying wine.

The range of beauty of Chilean women generally starts with basic Spanish stock, descendants of the early conquistadors or later Spanish immigrants.

Many also have Indian blood, perhaps that of brave Araucnian warriors whom the conquistadors never really conquered. Or English blood, daughters of the merchants and adventurers who controlled much of Chilean commerce in the 19th century and whose children still have a major voice in Chile.

German Importance

There is also German blood, from the farmers and businessmen who form an important part of life in southern Chile. German is heard more than Spanish in some southern communities. Or perhaps even Irish blood. Bernardo O'Higgins, the son of a Spanish viceroy in Peru, is Chile's liberator and national hero.

Whatever the mixture, most Chilean women are pretty and many are beautiful.

For years, total nudity has been a staple of local strip-tease houses, often with unusual touches.

A visitor to a recent performance watched as a young woman appeared on stage in what must have been her mother's best formal gown. She mounted a platform, played a slightly off-key version of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and coyly bowed. Then, within 30 seconds, she took off all her clothes, smiled at the audience and walked off the stage, to the cheers of bald culture lovers in the front rows.

Rescued Miner On Free Vacation

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — William (Buck) Jones, the 61-year-old miner who hit the headlines recently when he survived an eight-day ordeal trapped in a Lark, Utah mine, is on vacation

Officials of the U.S. Smelting, Refining and Mining Co., offered Jones and his wife a week's vacation with all expense paid—anywhere in the world

Jones left earlier this week for the trip And he selected southern Utah and northern Arizona, just a few hundred miles away.

A relative said Jones "always thought Utah was as great a place as any to travel in."

High Court Decides Adopted Grandson Has Equal Rights in Will

TRENTON, N J (AP) — An adopted grandson and a natural grandson are entitled to equal shares in a $3 2 million estate left by Middletown Township philanthropist Mrs. Geraldine L. Thompson, the State Supreme Court ruled recently

In dispute was whether the word "issue" in the will of Mrs. Thompson's late husband, Lewis S. Thompson, referred only to her natural grandson, Peter Van Gerbig of Boston, Mass , or included the adopted child, Roger Boone of Lincroft.

The court said it could not suppose that the writer of the will used the word "with an awareness of the problem and a purpose to exclude a child whom a child of the testator might later adopt."

PASSOVER FOODS

By Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

Next week marks one of two springtime festivals that call for special foods, holiday foods to mark a joyous occasion. Both are religious festivals, both meaningful, and because of their closeness on this year's calendar, foods for the holiday which starts first, the Jewish Passover, are being featured first.

Passover is a 3,500-year-old celebration which focuses on the age-old story of the delivery of the Jews from slavery in Egypt. The family-Seder . . . or feast . . . opens the holiday with a combination of ritual and ancient symbolism in even the foods served for the joyous, yet solemn occasion. The word "Seder" in itself signifies "order" and there is a definite order or pattern to every Seder.

First, the head of the family reads the Haggadah, the ceremonial book telling the Passover story and the meaning of the foods on the Seder plate. There is the horseradish representing the bitterness of slavery . . . the roasted egg which is the symbol of perpetual life . . . the roasted lamb shank for the ancient Passover sacrifice . . . and the blend of chopped nuts, fruit and wine called charoses, which symbolizes both the sweetness of God's kindness and the mortar the Jews made for the bricks they manufactured for the Egyptians under the whiplash of slavedrivers.

How Not to Crusade for Women's Rights

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I owe a lot to Betty Friedan Before she wrote "The Feminine Mystique" I was just a plain, ordinary housewife and mother who thought she knew who she was, where she was and were she was going.

Now, thanks to Betty I don't know who I am, where I was, and I'm too miserable to make the trip whenever I'm going.

Betty, however, is still undaunted in her fight for equality among the sexes. A few weeks ago, she and 14 other members of the National Organization for Women (NOW) marched into a Manhattan hotel dining room for men only and demanded to be served. The waiters ignored their repeated cries for service and the ladies were eventually forced to retreat. Undaunted, they plan similar starve-ins in Washington and Los Angeles.

As I told my bridge club last week, "We can't go on letting Betty fight our battles. While she is trying to conquer the business men's lunch, why don't we stage similar raids in male areas here at home."

"You're right," said Velma Schnock. "Where do we begin?"

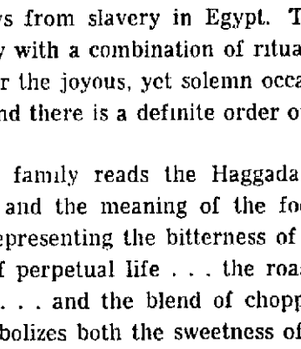

"Right at the heart of discrimination. . .the American barbershop. We are going to march into that male sanctuary of cigar smoke and bay rum and demand a haircut!"

The next afternoon found Velma and me entering Stag's Barber Shop. A hush fell over the room as we walked in. We dared not look, but we knew every eye in the shop was on us The silence was interrupted only by one young boy who was panting over the center section of a magazine, probably a science-fiction. The longer we sat there, the more the tension mounted. The next few minutes would determine whether or not we had scored a decisive victory for womanhood.

You're Next

"Okay, sir, you're next," said the barber motioning me to his chair.

I winched as I slid into the leather seat.

"What do you think of Jerry Grote signing on with the Mets?" he chirped.

"If he can sing, why souldn't he?" I said dryly.

It was his turn to wince. "What'll it be, buddy? A ting? Hairpiece? Styling? Bangs? Sideburns? A flip? What?"

I just got off my report to Betty. "Just for your records, we won that one — I think! Velma got a neck trim and a piece of bubble gum. I got a scalp treatment for my bald spot and am subbing next Tuesday for Ernie in the Brewery Bowling Tournament. There appears to be no discrimination here. P.S. If you want to stage a swim-in at the YMCA, you can get yourself a new boy. . . I mean girl!"

The Hemline Dilemma And How to Solve It

Right after World War II a decree went out from Paris, from the great Dior. "Hemlines will go down below the calf!"

This left women in a sea of seam bindings and bastings in an effort to salvage their above-the-knees wardrobe.

But at least the Dior followers knew where they were going. Or where hems were going.

Today, we have no guidelines. Hems may go up this year — and hems may go down!

Fashion prophets are no help. A typical statement from one might read: "It is my firm opinion that hemlines will continue their upward trend. On the other hand, there is some indication of a downward trend."

But upward or downward, there are some consoling thoughts. We don't have to follow one fashion trend, since we have a variety of fabrics and fashions that lend themselves to the seesawing hems. Also, we have modern developments, such as iron-on hem bindings and sizing to make hem adjusting easier.

For example, if you want to shorten your skirt here is a quick and easy way.

Use a small strip of cardboard instead of a ruler, measure the amount you want, to take up from the bottom of the strip Notch the cardboard at that point. Then, using the notch as a guide, mark the new hem. Turn up at the pin lines and baste lightly. Remove pins, and press. At this point you'll find sizing a big help in getting the old hem to lie flat. Simply spray along the old line and press. Sizing helps remove the crease. And since you do not use a press cloth you can see the old hemline disappear as you press.

In Case of Change

But what happens if the fashion masterminds spring a Dior on us again, and hemlines drop?

Simply follow the same procedure, except make your pin markings below the original hem line. Then press out the old hem, before you baste in the new one. This insures a more accurate measure, and a more even line.

Here again, an aerosol can of sizing is a life-saver, or at least a skirt saver.

WINE On the Table

By William Clifford

What wines can you serve before dinner with dinner, and after dinner? What goes with what?

These questions occur to everyone who plans meals at home or orders in restaurants.

A favorite before-dinner wine, either with appetizers or by itself, is vermouth. Actually vermouth is two wines, one dry, one sweet.

Both vermouths are made from white wine strengthened with alcohol and flavored with an infusion of herbs, roots, barks and peels -- up to 50 of them. Among the more frequently used are cloves, nutmeg, lemon and orange peel, quinine bark, calamus and orris root, rosemary leaves, camomile, gentian, cardamom, anise, elder flowers, and wormwood.

DIFFERENCE NOTED

An important difference between European and American vermouths is that the wine for European vermouths is well aged before being fortified and flavored. The wine is not aged for most American vermouths, a notable exception being the product of the Christian Brothers, who age their wines three years for sweet (Italian law requires one year), a year or more for dry.

The exceptionally light color of Christian Brothers dry vermouth is achieved by picking the grapes early rather than by the common practice of bleaching

Lovers of dry martinis frequently order a favorite gin but seldom pay as much attention to the vermouth, which gives the flavor. For a revealing taste test try the same gin with a dry vermouth from France, one from Italy, and the American four-year-aged.

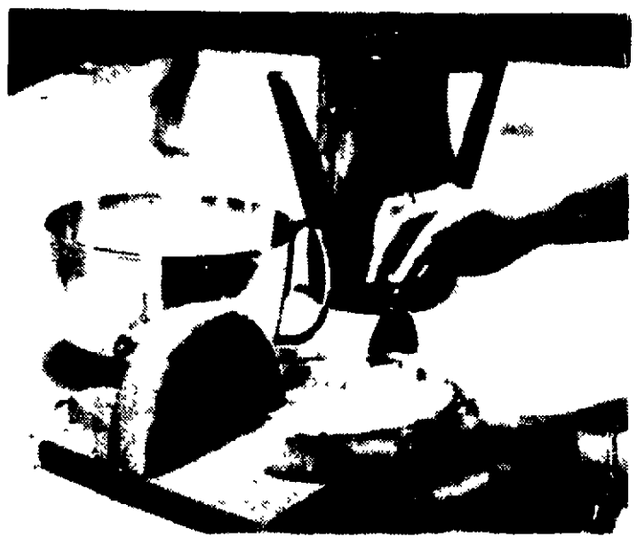

Sweet vermouth's most popular use is in the Manhattan — a cocktail that's even better with lighter bodied brandy in place of whiskey.

But today more people are drinking it straight, chilled or on the rocks, with a twist of lemon peel. That has long been the European way with sweet vermouth, and a very pleasant way it is to get ready for dinner.

Palm Sugar Comes From Sap of Tree

Palm sugar, common in the East Indies, comes from the sap of "toddy" of some tropical palm trees. The juice is highly in sugar yield, but it is also high in impurities — too high to be produced as efficiently as sucrose from sugarcane and sugar beet plants.

Convenience Pet Foods Raise Family Food Bills

The cost of pet foods can increase a family's total grocery bill considerably according to Rosemary Stare, consumer marketing specialist at the University of Wisconsin. The increasing number of pets plus more use of commercial pet foods contribute to a rapid rise in pet food spending

Sales of pet food in retail stores during 1968 reached $890 million This is a gain of 10 per cent over 1967. Ten years ago annual sales of dog and cat food were less than half this amount.

Today more people are purchasing convenience foods for their pets. This demand has promoted a rapid increase in the variety of products available Some recent innovations in pet foods include semi-moist foods which need no refrigeration, plus easy-to-open packages

Hidden Costs

You may be paying a lot for water or moisture in these products The moisture content varies from about 10 per cent for dry foods to 75 per cent for canned and frozen forms Soft-moist varieties average about 20 to 25 per cent moisture Sometimes packaged pet foods are more expensive than economy cuts of fresh meats such as hamburger or pork liver

Some canned pet foods have the U.S. Department of Agriculture's seal of inspection printed on the label This means that the product was packed under rigid, sanitary standards and will have the designation "Packed Under Continuous Inspection of U S Department of Agriculture"

Consult Veterinarian

All such labels must include a list of ingredients named in order of their predominance in the product and a net weight statement The name and place of the manufacturer, packer or distributor also appears

A dog or cat needs a diet that contains the proper proportion of protein, carbohydrate, fat, vitamins and minerals Neither meat nor table scraps constitute a balanced diet. Your veterinarian can give you reliable information on what and how much to feed your animal.

A pet decides early in life what he likes to eat. You may be paying for these more expensive pet foods in the years to come if you pamper him now with such products. It's worthwhile to shop around for the kind of food best suited to your pet's needs

New Clocks Add 'Timely Touch' to Bath

Within a few short years, there's been a dramatic about-face in the average homemaker's attitude toward the bath and powder room.

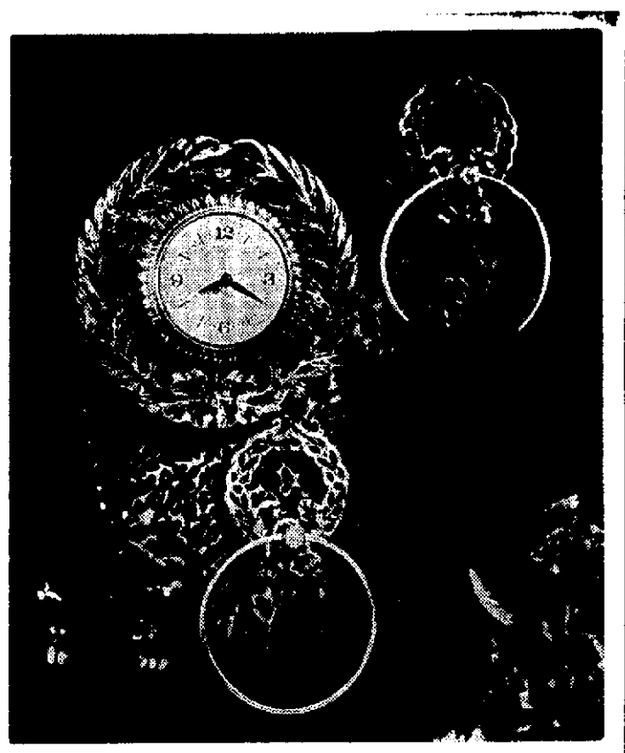

"Dressing up the bathroom" used to mean putting out some embroidered guest towels and pretty soap when company was coming, while "decorating" generally meant applying fresh enamel to walls and perhaps replacing a worn-out shower curtain.

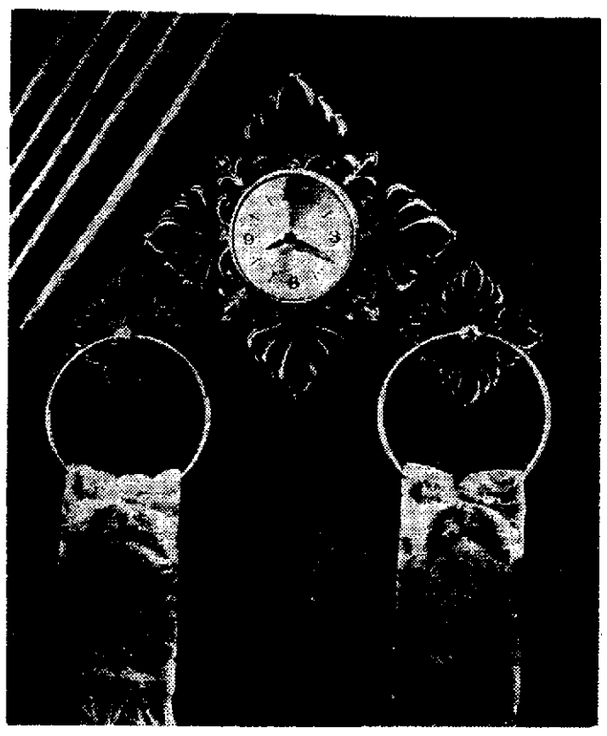

"If it was clean and the plumbing worked all right, in other words, any bathroom was considered perfectly acceptable," observed interior designer Mary Ann Wills, who serves as decorating consultant for Arabesque, a wall accessories manufacturer.

Just where, when, or why the revolution started is hard to say, nor would it be safe to guess where it may yet lead. The "bathroom beautiful brigade," comprising millions of homemakers and new recruits joining up daily, is constantly on the watch for something new and different in the way of decorating ideas.

The answer for many will be found in battery-powered clocks. A number have been color co-ordinated to the more popular colors used by top towed manufacturing mills. And of course all of the cordless clocks have an added advantage in that they won't use up precious electrical outlets.

Now arriving in furniture, department and gift stores, these clocks can add a delightful "dress-up" touch to any bath or powder room, as well as to the boudoir or dressing room.

Laurels to the Lady who's always on time! Her secret could be elegant battery clock above with matching towel rings, created just for the bath, powder room or boudoir. For the bath that lends itself to the gracefully geometric, there's the cordless clock at left with matching solid brass towel rings suspended from matching openwork escutcheons. Both ensembles are from Arabesque of Traverse City, Mich.

Quick Tricks Keep Lipsitck From Smearing

Lipstick is for your lips — not your clothes, teeth or towels. To help you keep lip make-up where it belongs, remember these quick tricks with facial tissues.

The first step is to put lipstick on scientifically. Most make-up experts advise you to outline your lips with a lipstick brush. If that's tricky for you, try applying it straight from the tube first by following your natural lip lines. Then smooth out and contour afterwards with a lip brush.

For long-lasting, nonsmearing results, blot with a tissue, powder, reapply and blot again.

Wandering lipstick stains turn up most often on towels and washcloths. Before washing your face or taking a shower, completely remove your lip make-up. First rub lips with cold cream. Then wipe clean with facial tissues.

The same rules apply away from home when you're a guest at a friend's house or a hotel. Never remove lipstick with a towel or washcloth.

When dressing or trying on clothes, hold a tissue between your lips to prevent smearing your lips to prevent smearing and to protect garments.

Thrifty Soup Jar

Thrifty homemakers keep a "soup jar" in the refrigerator. This catches all vegetable juices and leftovers too small to be served again. These, combined with dry soup mixes, make a tasty and "different" soup.

Parents and Children

By Arnold Arnold

It's Not Enough to Tell the Kids About the Birds and the Bees

Sex education of children is, and always has been, a bit of a problem. Kids and parents have considerable hang-ups about the subject. Public schools are only now beginning to make a sincere effort to give children the straight dope at earliest grades. The idea is not to make children sexually precocious, but to prepare them, gradually, for the information they will need. They should get this, progressively, from authoritative sources. Most of the "street" dope they otherwise pick up is inaccurate and misleading.

But it's not just a question of "facts." Sex information is as much, or more, a matter of instruction in ethical behavior. Many of the gym instructors, nurses and even teachers, to whom sex education is assigned in most schools, just aren't equipped to handle the ethical problems. Kids' perfectly legitimate questions often throw them into a dither. They aren't prepared or able to answer many of them. But summer university workshops in sex teaching methods have increased from 12 in 1967 to 52 in 1968. A total of 10,000 teachers attended these last year. Soon there will be enough trained teachers to perform these teaching tasks adequately.

There is considerable divergence of informed opinion about how the ethical considerations of sex should be met in school and in the home. But there are major areas of agreement among professionals. Psychiatric, educational and religious attitudes have changed considerably since you were a child. So perhaps you had best brush up on what and how to tell children at various ages. This, among other matters, has not been handled well or beneficially with the last few generations. The ideas of many of today's youths are as mixed up as any in Victorian times. They may be less inhibited. But the kids are still not clear as to what is permissible and what isn't. It's just the other side of the same coin.

So it's not merely a matter of going along with popular trends. At the same time, we aren't living in the 19th century. If you duck the essential issues of sex, while giving your kids "the facts," you might as well not bother to inform them. It's like teaching them to drive a car without giving them the rules of the road.

If you want to inform yourself about the best ways to teach your child in all matters pertaining to sex, regardless of his age or her age, write to me, Arnold Arnold. Dept. Cl, c-o this newspaper, asking for "Childhood Information." Enclose a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope. I'll see to it that you will receive, free, the excellent reading list, prepared by Siecus, that suggests books to help you instruct your child properly, from pre-school through teen ages.

Ever burn rice? You can make the scorch taste disappear quickly if you take a piece of fresh white bread and place it on top of the rice. Put the cover on the pot and within a few minutes the scorch taste will completely disappear.

Updated Prepackaging Can Cut Produce Costs, New Survey Reveals

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study by the Agriculture Department shows that three ears of sweet corn—wrapped in neat plastic—could cost nearly four cents less if the packaging were done on a modernized assembly line at a warehouse instead of at the retail grocery store.

The report, based on 1965 survey data, shows that food stores could trim total costs of retailing fresh produce by more than $13.6 million a year by adopting updated packaging methods.

In 1965, retail sales of fresh vegetables and fruit totaled $5.2 billion of the $85.8 billion Americans spent on food that year.

About one-third — $1.7 billion worth—was produced prepackaged at the retail-store level.

Comparisons

The study made by the Agricultural Research Service and released Monday, shows that the lowest costs for packaging produce after it was shipped in bulk to stores averaged 7.2 cents a package.

If the packaging had been done at warehouses, using streamlined methods, the costs would average 4.8 cents.

Research officials said one survey showed 77 per cent of all retail produce departments were self-service.

One out of three supermarkets sell all—or nearly all—produce pre-packaged.

Trend Stays Up

The trend to prepackaging continues to rise. It is expected that by 1970 from 60 to 75 per cent of all fresh vegetables will be packaged before they arrive at retail food stores.

Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin's reported preference for a hearty breakfast, including steak, has produced an enthusiastic reaction from the National Livestock and Meat Board.

"Whether it's steak, bacon or lamb chops," reports the Chicago-based board, "we'll take it as a point of encouragement that he regards good protein as animal protein."

Grate Old Cheese

Don't waste that hardened cheese. Instead, grate it and refrigerate it in a tightly covered container. It's great in omelets and sauces.

Crack in Sink Can't Be Repaired

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: I have a crack in my new bathroom sink close to the drain area. This happened when a large jar of cold cream was accidentally brushed off the shelf of the medicine cabinet above. Is there any inexpensive repair for this? — Milwaukee.

A: If I knew of such a magic healer, I'd certainly tell you, but I don't. An epoxy type paint could fill the crack but you'd certainly see it, even if it were a perfect color match. The only real repair is a new model, or learning to live with the crack as is.

Q: After 15 years of waxing and polishing, the top of my mahogany dining table has become streaked and spotty from the built-in wax. Is there any way to remove all this? I wish to avoid having to refinish. — San Francisco.

A: You can get excellent wax-removing preparations in just about any good supermarket or hardware store. Patience and turpentine are also pretty good for this.

Q: I recently bought a farm house in the country. At present it is covered with asphalt-base imitation brick siding. I would prefer wooden ship-lap siding. Can I put this on over the imitation brick and thus add insulation value? — Quebec, Can.

A: Provided the present siding is in reasonable condition, there's no reason why this addition won't be an excellent adder of insulation. Be sure you use nails amply long to take care of the extra thickness.

Q: Who can give me information about continuous hot water? — Worcester.

A: Write to Plumbing, Heating, Cooling Information Bureau, 35 East Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60600.

Consumer Unit Plans Program

The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture's Consumer Advisory Council is planning an extensive program of activity for the year ahead.

Claire Jackson, administrator of the trade division and secretary of the council, said the group of 16 state citizens will continue to advise the division on matters relating to its consumer proctices programs.

The council has named a subcommittee to work with the Department of Agriculture in reviewing its procedures of communicating with consumers. The council also requested a department study of retail food store price changes in the inner-city area of Milwaukee and asked for a further review of the council's role in the area of consumer legislation.

Albert Gallatin School District in Fayette County, Pa., has resumed prayer reading, despite a Supreme Court ruling. In the classroom scene above, Mrs. Jessie Clark reads from the Bible to her first-graders at D. Ferd Swaney Elementary School, six miles south of Uniontown, Pa.

Crafts Help Child Chase Away Boredom

When children recouperate from colds and flu, they get "the bores" at home. "The bores" are easy to diagnose — when the children wander aimlessly about, when they search for something to do, when they look downhcarted — they've got "the bores."

"The bores" are easily cured with games and challenging fun. An interest in art has often developed when a wise mother cured "the bores" with pen, paint and brushes.

Clay printing is an art form any age child can enjoy. Supply the child with modeling clay, paints, brushes and porous point pens in a rainbow of 10 colors. He'll need paper too. Later, he might like frames to preserve his creations for all to see.

Cover his working surface with newspapers so accidents won't happen. Now he's ready to start his art and get rid of "the bores."

First he should decide on a simple subject. He might select a fish or a bird . . . a yuonger child would be content with a circle or square. Show the child how to mold a piece of clay into his desired shape, making sure that one surface is absolutely flat.

Now, with a brush, teach the child to mix colors on the flat surface of the clay. Use just enough water to keep the paint from drying too quickly. Press the painted surface of the clay onto the paper; then lift the clay straight up from the paper so as not to smear the colors.

Repeat Pattern

Explain to the child that he can repeat the pattern all over the paper. Now let the paint dry a bit.

With porous point pens — in red, black, blue, green, purple, turquoise, orange, yellow, brown and pink — add the finishing touches. If the child has used a fish design, for example, he'll use a pen to draw the eyes, scales and gills. If he's selected a circle, he might want to draw in squares and triangles.

"The bores" will be curd and the art of clay printing discovered. It's fun and it's challenging.—The best medicine to chase away "the bores."

Plug Open Syrup Cans

If you plug the openings of chocolate syrup cans and evaporated milk containers with a ball of aluminum foil, the contents will stay fresh for a longer period of time.

Re-Use Cinnamon Stick, Vanilla Bean

You can re-use a cinnamon stick just as you would a vanilla bean. Remove the cinnamon stick from the mixture in which it was heated, rinse in water and allow to dry. Wrap it tightly in plastic wrap and it will be ready for another round of service.

Lovelier You

New Shadows Play It Cool

There's more than a touch of wonderment in lovely eyes these days The look is soft, wide and candid A pool of cool!

Would you care to make it yours? The technique involves a sheer, delicate shadow and a subtle hand There can be no streaking or smearing, no blatant or obvious effects. The finish appears like nature's finest effort

And here's where new cake shadows come to your aid Based on the same principle as an artist's water colors, shadows have water power to create the sheerest smoothest kinds of makeups

Application is very easy. You simply mix the color and water with a special brush Then you apply the mixture with the same brush in broad, blending strokes

As for the shades to choose, here are a few professional eye-deas Try Nile green clear as water, above brown eyes For blue eyes, the blue of the Riviera seas is suggested Green eyes want for a hint of a churning gray wave The hue of a sea pearl and gray eyes are made for each other The power in those choices is contrast, the fascinating and flattering interplay of color

With a water-color shadow in water-color color, you're as cool to look at as they come

You are not lost to youthful beauty because of dark circles, puffiness, or wrinkles around the eyes These problems can be brought under control by proper skin care, cosmetic applications, health habits and facial expressions Methods are detailed in my leaflet, The Eyes of Youth To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Post-Crescent, enclosing 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope

School Health Volunteers Mark Anniversary at Tea

School Health Volunteers marked their fourth year of service in Appleton schools at a tea Monday at the Red Cross Chapter House Mrs Martin Weber, chairman, and Mrs Robert Petersen, chairman of volunteers, capped Mrs Wesley Ring, Mrs Richard Platt and Mrs George Dannenbaum, three volunteers who have served this year

The School Health Program is active in six schools Madison Junior High, Einstein Junior High, Appleton High School-East, Appleton High School-West, Huntley Elementary School and St Joseph School

Mrs Weber discussed ways to recruit new volunteers who are so desperately needed.

"We are sure there are some mothers in Appleton who would enjoy joining our group, if we can only reach them," she said 'We are hoping to schedule a new training course in early September which will take place at the Red Cross office"

The training consists of a san dafdrtir shrdlu s shrdlu standard first aid course, two hours of home nursing and orientation both in Red Cross and school policy Volunteers are scheduled one-half day during each week that school is in session

Organized Closets Can Be Attractive

Back in the golden days of radio, it was a good Fibber McGee joke But, to your family, the catch-all closet is probably something less than funny

Organization and easily - applied decorative coverings can be the key to success in closet strategy

Finding a home for each closet item is half the job Making the closet a real eye-catcher is the other side of the coin

Change Closet Lock

Cluttered, unorganized, and generally unappealing, this closet is often a home's last stronghold against the wonders of modern decorating and organization What better time is there than spring cleaning to change the look of the closet?

For a really up-to-date closet look, follow the trend of top decorators and let all those containers, shelves and even the smallest chest take on a wood-grained look There are wormy walnut, mahogany, walnut, light oak, blue forest, canary wood, and avocado wood-grained coverings to choose from

Contrasting Covers

For a contrast you may want to cover several containers with solid color or the new Cane covering, introduced this spring Inch-by-inch markings on the back of the adhesive-backed coverings make measuring a snap

Study your family's closet needs and then begin work by locating containers, shelves, and racks to hold every item in place Storage containers can easily be fashioned from old dress, hat, and gift boxes Perhaps an old chest can be tucked into a corner of the closet to hold other items An array of hooks can be attached to a wall area, and shelves can be bracketed up to further organize the closet

When the job is finished, it will be a pleasure to open that closet door

Your Problems

Husband Brings Home Third Retriever

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS My husband has gone crazy over Golden Retrievers He brought the third one home yesterday Every evening after supper he goes out to run the digs I'm stuck in the house all day with two small children At night I m dying to hear an adult voice And he goes out to fool around with the animals

Feeding those hounds is darned expensive I could have had an ermine jacket with the money he has spent on dog food, shots and licenses these last two years When I tell my husband he should get rid of the dogs and pay more attention to me and his sons, he says I'm a nag and to keep quiet because he won't do it

I have discussed this with my mother my two sisters, my [illegible] neighbors on both sides They all agree I am right What do you say? — Dog's Life

Dear Life: You may have won the poll, kiddo, but you're going to lose the guy if you don't muzzle the complaints. Considering what some married men do for recreation you have little to complain about. Look to the day when you husband can take the boys hunting and kwitcherbeefin'.

DEAR ANN LANDERS I am an 18-year-old who wants to know how much of a say-so in my life my parents have

According to law in this state an 18-year-old can leave home, get married, and work at any job But my parents don't feel that I have the right to decide which college to attend

They say that since they are paying the bills I must go to the college of their choice It so happens I prefer another college — say it is — future and my life and I am the one who will have to do the studying and make the grades. They say college is a privilege and I should be thrilled to go to any place they select.

I am willing to work my way through if necessary, but first I want you to tell me if my parents have the right to make the selection If you think my folks are right I will rethink the question. — Independent or Stubborn?

Dear Independent: The choice should be left to the student. Work your way through if you feel so strongly about it. You'll probably do better than if you go to a school you don't like — Expenses paid.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Mom is a nice person, works in the church, helps the relatives and neighbors, and is well thought of. But Mom is not what anybody would call a pretty woman.

When people say to me, "You look just like your mother," I become irritated. In the first place, I don't look like her. Our coloring is similar and my eyes are almond-shaped like hers, but to put it honestly, I am much better looking. I feel like a hypocrite saying "thank you." What can I say and still be truthful? — Lake Forest.

Dear Lake: Your main problem is a case of galloping vanity. But since you insist on being brutally factual, try something noncommital such as, "I've been told that before. . ."

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Then there is the bit of green . . . the parsley on the plate placed there as a reminder and hope of the ever-returning springtime, dipped in salt water to signify the Israelites' tears for their condition of slavery. Three matzoth . . . unleavened bread . . . are separated and wrapped in a delicately embroidered napkin to represent the hurried flight of the Israelites from Egypt. They were unable to allow the bread they took with them time to rise. Thus, no leavened bread or food is served during the eight days of Passover.

During the Seder, each person's wine goblet is filled four times in four-fold promise of redemption as in the Book of Exodus. A special place is set for the wayfarer and a special goblet honors the prophet Elijah. In many homes, the first-born son or eldest child poses the ritual of questions which helps unfold the story of the season.

Since the Seder is a joyous meal that follows the rituals, the food is particularly festive, prepared with great care and served on and in dishes kept only for the holiday.

The food for the Seder and for meals throughout the holiday come from traditional recipes and sometimes from newer sources . . . new adaptations. But whatever the source, each Jewish homemaker really shows her culinary ability at this time of year to make the family Seder and all the holiday meals that follow bountiful ones. Here are a few recipes which all cooks might like to try to prove the deliciousness of Jewish cookery.

ROAST CAPON WITH FARFEL STUFFING

- 2 capons, 6-7 pounds
- Instant tenderizer

* * *

- ⅓ cup schmaltz (chicken fat)
- 2 large onions, chopped fine
- Chopped giblets
- 1 cup celery, chopped fine
- ⅔ cup chopped walnuts
- 6 to 8 matzoth, broken or
- 4 cups matzoh farfel
- 1 teaspoon seasoned tenderizer
- 2 eggs
- 1¼ cups clear chicken broth or water
- Freshly ground pepper

Rinse capons thoroughly inside and out with cold water; drain off excess water. Sprinkle seasoned tenderizer evenly, like salt, into entire cavity, using about a half-teaspoon per pound. Do not salt. To insure penetration and to retain juices, pierce kitchen fork into capon flesh from cavity side, under breast bones, into thighs and legs without going through outer skin. Capons are ready immediately for cooking; refrigerate if stuffing is not ready.

To make the stuffing: saute onion in schmaltz or chicken fat in heavy skillet; saute until onions golden. Add giblets and celery; saute until tender. Add remaining ingredients; heat through and remove from heat.

Stuff the capons just before roasting. Spoon Farfel Stuffing lightly into the breast cavity, through the neck opening first.

Fold neck skin onto back; fasten with skewer. Fold wings back to lie flat. Stuff body cavity of capons, but do not overstuff. Close cavity by placing skewers across opening and lacing with white strings.

Tie drumsticks together and bind to tail, holding close to body, cross cord over back and catch around wings; pull close to body and tie. Brush skin with schmaltz, melted.

Place capons on V-shaped rack in shallow pan, breast side down. Cover with thin cloth, large enough to drape down sides; moisten cloth with schmaltz. Roast at 325 degrees about 22 to 25 minutes per pound, about two and one-half to three hours cooking time.

Do not cover; do not add water. If cloth dries out, moisten with pan drippings. When three-quarters done, remove cloth and turn birds breast side up in pan to brown. Baste frequently with pan drippings.

PASSOVER TAIGLACH

- 5 eggs
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ to 1 cup coarsely chopped nuts
- 2 cups Passover potato starch, or more, if necessary
- 4 cups honey
- 2 teaspoons powdered ginger
- ¾ cup boiling water

Beat eggs and oil; add sugar, raisins, nuts and potato starch. Mix well. Dough should be consistency of noodle dough, if not, add more potato starch.

Lightly flour board with potato starch. With hands, roll dough into long ropes about half-inch thick, with sharp knife, cut into three-eights-inch pieces.

Meanwhile, bring honey to a boil in large quart kettle; turn heat low but keep honey boiling slowly. Add pieces of dough to boiling honey. Cover; reduce heat; cook over low heat 20 minutes. Sprinkle ginger over bubbling honey, stirring constantly. Continue simmering gently about 40 minutes longer.

The longer taiglach cook in the honey mixture, the better they are — in eye appeal and taste!

Taiglach are done when golden brown and sound hollow when stirred with a spoon. (When checking color, raise cover only high enough to peek in.) Remove from heat, add boiling water and stir again.

With perforated spoon, remove taiglach from honey; arrange on large platter in clusters, or in tea-size fluted paper baking cups, about five to eight taiglach per cluster. Allow to cool.

They will dry and become glossy. Do not store in an airtight container, since they will become moist and sticky. If a moister taiglach is desired, store in honey they were cooked in.

FRUIT-FILLED CHREMSLACH

- 4 eggs
- ⅔ cup water
- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
- 2¼ cups matzoh meal
- peanut oil for frying
- Filling

In a mixing bowl beat eggs. Add water, 2 tablespoons peanut oil, sugar, salt, pepper and ginger. Beat again until well blended. Stir in matzoh meal. Cover and refrigerate at least 30 minutes.

Divide mixture in half. On a board lightly sprinkled with matzoh meal, roll half of mixture to a one-eighth to one-fourth-inch thickness. Using a round biscuit cutter cut 10 circles, re-rolling dough if necessary.

Top circles with a generous tablespoon of filling. Roll out remaining meal mixture and cut out 10 circles; place over filling and firmly pinch edges together to seal.

Fry in about one-fourth inch of peanut oil at medium heat just until golden. Drain on paper towels. Serve hot or cold. If desired, top with cinnamon-sugar or honey and slivered almonds. Recipe makes about one dozen.

APPLE-RAISIN FILLING

- 1 cup grated apple
- ⅓ cup dark seedless raisins
- ¼ cup honey
- 2 tablespoons matzoh meal
- ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon

Matzoh Apple Pudding

Combine ingredients, blending thoroughly. Let stand at least 15 minutes before filling chremslach.

APRICOT-ALMOND FILLING

- 1 cup apricot preserves
- ¼ cup blanched almonds, chopped, toasted
- 1 tablespoon matzoh meal

Combine and let stand 15 minutes or more before filling chremslach.

PRUNE CHARLOTTE RUSSE

- 24 lady fingers or strips of sponge cake
- ¼ cup Passover wine
- 1 pkg. Passover lemon gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 cup cold water
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 12 ounces pitted prunes, slivered
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- 1 container (8 quart) kosher dessert whip mixture
- Whole prunes for garnish

Line sides of a two-quart spring form pan with lady fingers or strips of sponge cake. Sprinkle with wine.

Empty gelatin into a deep bowl and stir in boiling water. Stir until dissolved. Add cold water, lemon juice and rind. Chill until syrupy.

Prepare kosher dessert whip mix according to package directions. Beat gelatin with rotary beater until fluffy. Carefully fold in two cups of prepared dessert whip. (Refrigerate the rest) to use as a topping.

Fold in slivered prunes and chopped nuts. Turn into lady finger-lined mold. Chill until set. Remove sides of pan and top with reserved dessert whip. Garnish with whole prunes. Recipe makes 12 servings.

MATZOH APPLE PUDDING

- 3 square matzoth
- ¾ cup water
- 1 jar (15 oz.) apple sauce
- ½ cup slivered almonds
- ¾ cup raisins
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1 cup well packed brown sugar
- 4 tablespoons melted vegetable fat
- 4 eggs, lightly beaten

Break up matzoth in bowl, pour in water and toss. Let stand a few minutes until water is absorbed and matzoth are soft. Add remaining ingredients and combine thoroughly. Pour into a 1½-quart greased casserole and bake at 350 degrees for one hour or until pudding is set in middle. Recipe makes six to eight servings.

How to Lose Your Shirt In Chinchilla Business

BY SYLVIA PORTER

The news a couple of days ago that Neiman-Marcus of Dallas had paid $2,700 for one skin of a new strain of mink fur — an all-time record, more than double the 1967 high of $1,100 and the base for a fur coat to retail for $150,000 — easily could set off a new boom in fur animal-breeding rackets. The rackets are already flourishing furiously in chinchilla, muskrats, minks, etc., and this sort of news is a built-in bonanza for the come-on artists. For instance, how does a deal like this strike you?

You invest $2,000 to buy five pairs of chinchillas to breed in your garage. Your income from this sideline will be $5-10,000 within five years. The firm advertising this deal promises not only professional guidance on chinchilla raising for profit, but also guarantees that the animals he is selling will reproduce.

Tempting, yes? Tragically, though, tens of thousands of naive Americans are losing their shirts on the typical investment of $2,000-$2,500 in four or five pairs of chinchillas — which is two to three times the going price charged by legitimate breeders.

Public Being Bilked

The Federal Trade Commission in Washington estimates that chinchilla breeding rackets are now bilking the American public out of $50 million a year.

At least 200 firms are operating in this area today, grossing up to $3 million apiece a year, the FTC believes.

In case you are even mildly tempted to set up your own chinchilla breeding business — or if you have an elderly relative or ambitious teen-age youngster who might fall for this come-on — here are the gypsters' key claims, countered by basic facts put together recently by the FTC:

Claim: Chinchillas produce one to four offspring about three times a year — for an average total of four or five live young per female each year.

Fact: The chinchilla is a relatively slow breeder and even in the hands of professionals, produces an average just under two live young per year. One in five female chinchillas is sterile.

Claim: You can sell chinchilla pelts for $30 to $60.

Fact: The current price for chinchilla pelts at fur auctions is about $13-$14. Less than ½ of 1 per cent of pelts now being sold brings as much as $60 and many are refused altogether. After the costs of feed, pelting, marketing, veterinary fees, special equipment, etc., have been met, a net of about $3 per pelt is considered "realistic" for an amateur.

Claim: Mutation (white or silver) chinchillas for breeding are worth up to $350 apiece and their offspring sell for anywhere from $80 to $200.

Fact: Mutation pelts are almost never sold — at any price.

Claim: An amateur breeder can achieve a profit of $10-15,000 within five years.

Profits Are Small

Fact: A more realistic prospect would be profits of a few hundred dollars — if there are any profits at all.

Claim: You can raise chinchillas in your basement or garage.

Fact: Most successful chinchilla breeding operations involve special cages, controlled temperatures (sometimes requiring heating or air condtioning units), humidity control, ventilation and sanitation. The combination of high heat and humidity is frequently lethal to chinchillas and these animals also are susceptible to pneumonia and other diseases.

Thus, before you embark on any chinchilla breeding venture, the FTC warns, do these three things:

Investigate the experiences of others who have bought chinchillas in past years from the firm now attempting to sell them to you;

Consult a legitimate, professional chinchilla breeder for his evaluation of the claims being made to you and the actual current value of chinchilla breeding stock;

Ask your local Better Business Bureau for its report on the firms advertising or promoting the chinchilla operation.

Players Can Learn Morality

Some old-fashioned people think that playing cards are instruments of the devil and that those who play card games are immoral. Actually, contract bridge teaches you the old-fashioned virtues. Bridge players know what many modern people have forgotten: You cannot spend what you don't have.

and king, and then led a low club from dummy. West won with the king of clubs in order to draw a third round of trumps with the queen. West then resumed the hearts.

Declarer won in dummy with the ace of hearts and cashed the ace of clubs, discovering that the suit could not be established. Since dummy had only one trump left, South could not ruff two diamonds with that one trump. South therefore had to lose two diamonds. Down one.

South's contract depends on ruffing two diamonds in the dummy. He must therefore avoid using up dummy's low trumps, and must also prevent anybody else from using them. To put it another way, South must not spend dummy's trumps unwisely.

Declarer should win the first trick with the ace of hearts and can afford to draw precisely one round of trumps. Then he should duck a low diamond, allowing East to win with the jack or West with the queen.

If West wins the diamond and returns a trump, dummy wins. Dummy's low trumps are still unspent. South takes the ace of diamonds and ruffs a diamond in dummy. Then he gets to his hand with the king of hearts and ruffs his last diamond with dummy's remaining trump.

West can ruff in with the queen of spades, if he likes, but he cannot interfere with South's plan.

Daily Question

Partner opens with 1-NT, and the next player passes. You hold: S- 9 7 6 4 2; H- K 7; D- A 8 7 3; C- 8 3. What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades. Since you have only 7 points in high cards and only mediocre distribution, you cannot force to game. Partner will probably pass you at two spades, which will satisfy you well enough. If partner has strong spade support and 17 or 18 points, he will raise to three spades, and you will accept the invitation to game.

Raynaud's Disease Causes Cold Fingers

By George C. Thosteson, M. D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please for heaven's sake give me some information on Raynaud's phenomenon disease. I just spent a week at the hospital. I want to know just how serious this disease is. I don't want to just sit and worry if it might be curable. In other words, is it always a fatal disease or is there a chance for me? I am taking a circulation medicine for it. — Mrs. Z. J.

Dear Doctor: What causes Raynaud's disease and what chances are there of getting over it? — K. L.

Raynaud's is what I call a nuisance disease, uncomfortable but not fatal. Circulation is reduced in the fingers (and occasionally the toes) and they turn white or dusky. There is a sense of coldness in the fingers, and some numbness.

Keep in mind that Raynaud's disease and Raynaud's phenomenon are not the same thing. The symptoms are the same, but the phenomenon, as distinguished from the disease, is secondary to something else. It may follow injury, or frostbite, or pressure on certain nerves emerging from the neck spine, or from a condition involving certain muscles in the neck (scalenus anticus syndrome).

But in any case the result is spasm of the small blood vessels of the fingers (or toes) with impairment of circulation and hence the symptoms.

In the case of the phenomenon, treatment of the underlying condition is, obviously, the proper course.

With Raynaud's disease, the situation is a bit different. The exact cause is not known. However, that does not mean that the condition can't be helped.

Cold usually precipitates an attack. Therefore, to avoid chilling of the fingers is the proper procedure. Dress warmly in cold weather and wear mittens rather than gloves.

Since smoking causes spasm or constriction of the small, peripheral blood vessels, stop smoking.

Many times vasodilators (drugs that tend to relax and thus expand the small blood vessels) will prevent spasms and thus help circulation.

In a few cases certain components of the blood are unduly sensitive to cold (cryoglobulinemia) — chilling causes changes in the blood and, hence, retarded circulation. Special blood tests will show whether this is part of the problem.

However, by and large Raynaud's disease is seen in nervous, high-strung women, and from the tone of Mrs. Z. J.'s letter, I would suspect that she is in that category. For that reason, sedation or tranquilizers often are very helpful.

Some women have the symptoms appear only at menstrual times. With others, and this is less common, a glandular disorder (sometimes a thyroid deficiency, sometimes a menopausal problem) is involved and can be successfully treated.

In very extreme cases, which are rare, spasm of the blood vessels may be so prolonged that ulceration of the finger tips may develop. So in severe cases a surgical method is used, sympathectomy, which means severing certain nerves which control blood vessel tone. This lets the vessels relax, preventing spasm and thus preventing the attacks of reduced flow.

Braves Get Catcher In Deal With Cards

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

For a short time this week, General Manager Paul Richards of Atlanta might have been considering a comeback as a player after he had traded the Braves into an acute catcher shortage with the season opener only two weeks away.

Richards looked like the only man in the Braves' spring training camp with major league experience behind the plate—in the 1940s—following the departure of Joe Torre and the rumored retirement of Bob Tillman.

But Richards found himself out of the competition today and back in the front office when Tillman decided to return and Richards acquired journeyman receiver Dave Adlesh from the St. Louis Cardinals for utility infielder Bob Johnson.

Out With Injury

Until, then, the only catchers on duty in the Braves camp were Walt Hriniak and Bob Didier, both without major league experience, and Hriniak out with an injury.

Tillman, who had been excused from spring training for 13 days for personal reasons, now looks like the starting catcher for Atlanta, despite a mediocre career. Adlesh will be sent to the minors.

While no other team found itself caught that short, several were mulling over the loss of key players to injury.

Roberto Clemente, Pittsburgh's four-time National League batting champion, was the most important, leaving the Pirates in a worried state after he flew to his Puerto Rico home Tuesday for treatment of an ailing left shoulder that bothered him much of last season.

Clemente injured the shoulder about two weeks ago diving for a fly ball, and has not seen action since.

The San Francisco Giants lost slugging left fielder Jim Hart for at least five days when he stumbled chasing a foul fly in the Giants' 12-3 victory over Oakland, injuring a groin muscle that hampered him in 1968. Willie McCovey drove in four runs, two with a homer, in the game.

Cleveland lost catcher Duke Sims for three to four weeks as he dislocated a ring finger on his right hand when hit by a foul tip in Cleveland's 6-5 triumph over Seattle on Tony Horton's ninth-inning homer.

Tom McCraw, Chicago White Sox first baseman, will be out

Al McGuire, Marquette University's head basketball coach, will be the principal speaker for the April 14 all-Fox Cities altheltic banquet, sponsored by the Little Chute Junior Chamber of Commerce at the Darboy Club.

Members of the All-Fox Cities football and basketball teams, selected by The Post-Crescent, will be honored at the annual banquet. (The basketball selections will be announced shortly).

McGuire has given MU three straight 20-or-more win seasons for the first time in history. In 1966-7, the Warriors compiled a 21-record and were runnersup in the National Invitational tourney. Last season, MU posted a 23-6 mark, including two out of three in NCAA tourney play.

Over-all, in five seasons at MU, McGuire-coached teams have won 90 and lost 50.

Born in New York

Rookie Hayes Wins Scoring Title in NBA

'Big E' Averages 28.4 in 82 Games; Monroe Runnerup

NEW YORK (AP) — Elvin Hayes, the Big E of San Diego, became the first rookie in nine years to win the individual scoring championship of the National Basketball Association.

Final statistics released by the league today showed the 6-foot-9 star scored 2,327 points in 82 games for an average of 28.4.

Not since Wilt Chamberlain, then with Philadelphia, did it in 1960 has a rookie won the NBA scoring title. Chamberlain scored 2,707 points in 72 games that season.

Hayes beat Earl Monroe of the Eastern Division champion Baltimore Bullets. Monroe had 2,065 points in 80 games.

Billy Cunningham of Philadelphia was third at 2,034, Bob Rule of Seattle fourth with 1,965 and Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati fifth with 1,955.

The breakdown on Hayes showed he played 3,695 minutes, made 930-of-2,083 field goal tries, 467-of-746 free throws, grabbed 1,406 rebounds and handed out 113 assists. He drew 266 personal fouls and fouled out of only two games.

Refused Service

Wills Discriminated Against for First Time in His Career

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Maury Wills, Montreal Expos' Negro shortstop and the National League's one-time Most Valuable Palyer, said Tuesday "for the first time in my big league career I have been discriminated against."

Wills said he had been asked to leave two bars last Friday "because they said they didn't serve colored people."

Wills, noted for base stealing, said he entered the bars with a newspaperman and a photographer, both white.

"We decided to go there because it was suggested that it would be a different atmosphere in which to discuss the story rather than the ball park," Wills said.

Game of Pool

"We went into the first bar because it had two pool tables and we decided to shoot a game of pool.

"After a couple of games of pool, the people in charge of the place let us know that they didn't want me in there. They told me,' 'We don't serve colored people here.' So, I wasn't welcome in no uncertain terms."

Wills said they went to another bar. "At first, I was reluctant to go in," Wills said.

"But then I felt that surely the same thing wouldn't happen twice. So, we went in and we sat down to order. Then, I heard those exact same words, 'We don't serve colored people.' That was enough and we left.

"Finally we went to the Negro neighborhood and visited for two hours. We had a fine time and were accepted as human beings.

People in Charge

"Things like this bite at me inside but in no way cause me to lose my dignity or act in the same manner as the people in charge of the establishment.

'As far as the law against racial discrimination is concerned, it is on my side. But it means getting a lawyer and making frequent trips to court.

"Believe me, if I had the time, I would have prosecuted in both cases. But being a ballplayer I am always on the road," Wills said.

"Nothing like this has ever happened to me in the major leagues before. In the minors, though, I remember having to stay on the team bus while the rest of the players ate at restaurants along the route."

Pick Brennan Badgers' New Track Coach

MADISON (AP) — Assistant University of Wisconsin track Coach Robert W. Brennan will become head coach July 1, succeeding Charles "Rut" Walter, it was announced Tuesday.

Brennan

The 35-year-old Madison native has been an assistant to Walter, 62, since 1964.

Brennan's appointment was recommended by Athletic Director Elroy Hirsch and approved by the athletic board and administration.

Brennan is a graduate of Wisconsin where he was a member of the 1954-56 track teams.

Battle With Nets

No Surprise—Bucks Want Lew

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks—to no one's surprise—announced Tuesday their first round draft pick will be towering Lew Alcindor of UCLA.

The expansion Bucks finished last in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division and got the crack at obtaining Alcindor's services by listening to Phoenix make the wrong call when a half dollar was tossed.

Phoenix, also an expansion club, finished last in the west.

"We're convinced the young man is going to play in organized professional basketball and so we'll go after him," Bucks' General Manager John Erickson said Tuesday. "We realize it won't be easy but we're going to do everything we can to sign Alcindor. We've notified League Commissioner Walter Kennedy of our decision."

Milwaukee could be in for a real battle with the New York Nets of the rival American Basketball Association. The Nets finished at the bottom of the league's standings and say they would like to get 7-foot- 1 Alcindor.

The Nets have one apparent advantage over Milwaukee, Alcindor has said he would like to play in his home town—New York. He also reportedly is asking a salary in the $1 million class.

Celtics Clash With 76ers as Playoffs Open

Knicks at Baltimore, Warriors Visit LA in Other Semi-Finals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Basketball Association playoffs open tonight and for perhaps the first time the spotlight shines on a fourth place team, the Boston Celtics Can they pull it off one more time?

The Celtics will be trying to salvage their most miserable season since 1949-50 when they begin the Eastern Division semifinal best-of-7 series at Philadelphia

San Francisco plays at Los Angeles in the Western Division semifinal opener

The New York Knicks invade Baltimore and San Diego opposes host Atlanta Thursday night in the other semifinals

The Celtics, who have won nine NBA titles in the last 10 years, finished a dismal fourth this season, their lowest placing since they finished last in 1949-50. They hadn't been below second since a third place finish in 1954-55.

Seek New Start

"We have to redeem ourselves," says John Havlicek of Boston.

"I'm looking forward to the playoffs as a new season," adds Sam Jones, who is retiring after the playoffs

With Jones leaving and age creeping up on player-coach Bill Russell, Satch Sanders and Bailey Howell, this might be Boston's last shot at an NBA championship in the near future.

The Celtics did have a 5-2 edge over the second-place 76ers during the regular season, but it was an evenly played series with two of the games going into overtime

Los Angeles, with superstars Wilt Chamberlain, Elgin Baylor and Jerry West, are favored to oust the third-place Warriors and then go on to win its division final and finally sweep the title.

"We have the best basketball team we've ever had in Los Angeles," said West after the Lakers won their division by seven games over Atlanta.

However, the Warriors are not about to concede. When they are healthy—and they appear to be for the playoffs—they can go against anyone, and they have Nate Thurmond to help offset Chamberlain

Los Angeles won their season series, 4-3

Curran Rates Best Amateur Goaltender, Mayasich Says

By GEOFFREY MILLER

STOCKHOLM (AP) — John Mayasich, playing coach of the U.S. ice hockey team, claimed today that Mike Curran of the Green Bay Bobcats is the best goaltender in the amateur world championships here.

This was after the Americans' seventh straight defeat in the tournament, 1-0, against Canada Tuesday night

U.S. team is bottom of the standings and in grave danger of falling out of the world championships A group altogether.

Mayasich, general manager of Curran's club at home, said: "Without wishing to belittle our defenders, Curran doesn't get much help.

"The goalies in the other teams don't have to do so much on their own. Curran is the most consistent goalkeeper. He's doing a fantastic job."

Curran is one of the shortest men in the championships at 5-foot-8, made another 44 saves Tuesday night.

But another goalie came on the scene—Ken Dryden, 6-foot-3 giant from Cornell University, who stepped into the Canadian team as substitute for the injured Steve Rexe and started with a shutout.

Dryden, brother of Chicago Black Hawks star Dave Dryden, is the tallest man in the championships.

Russia and Czechoslovakia are battling for the title, each with 12 points in seven games. Czechoslovakia defeated Finland 4-2 Tuesday.

At the other end of the standings, Finland has two points, having defeated the Americans 4-3 in the first game last week, while the Americans have none.

The two teams meet again on Sunday, the last day of the tournament. The Americans may not know until then whether they will play in the 1970 world championships in Canada. The bottom team will be relegated to Group B.

Keep Kids in Gyms Instead Of Jails

Normally, you don't turn to this space to find out how to vote. I leave that to the deep thinkers, like the guy driving in front of me the other day who had two bumper stickers. "Abolish Capital Punishment," it said on the left side "Legalize Abortion," it said on the right side.

Well, as the fellow said, it's nice to have it both ways. But I would like to make a political pitch to you today. I have a candidate for the April 1 primaries.

No, not Tom Bradley or Sam Yorty. My candidate is the only one who doesn't let you down. My candidate is money.

A vote for Proposition B is a vote for the Rose Bowl, the Davis Cup, USC baseball, the Munich Olympics, NCAA basketball

It seems the school board has come up $31 million short in its budget. You know what that means. That means they cut out athletics. That means they shorten the school day. That means they turn 25,000 bored, restless, half-educated, uncounseled, resentful kids loose on the community everyday That means they cut down the baskets, tear down the goal posts, padlock the gyms

Prison Bonds

The nice thing about saving $31 million is that you can put it into prison bonds a few years from now — a new gym for Folsom or San Quentin, boxing gloves for Chino, a driving range for Tehachapi.

SC will have to start getting its football players in Pennsylvania, track-and-field can go back to 4-minute miles, 14-foot pole vaults, and 2-week marathons.

Now, don't get me wrong If this were the worst mischief this $31 million saving would perpetrate, it would be bearable, but it will also do away with such non-expendables as school nurses, audio-visual education, bus transportation. Twelve million dollars worth of teachers will be sent packing along with $650,000 worth of afterschool coaches.

The dropping of skilled athletic teams will affect 25,000 members of girls' drill teams, to say nothing of bands, cheerleaders, student managers, ticket-sellers. At a saving of a dime-a-day per person you can take the glass slipper off of school, and turn it back into the fireside drudge it was in the days when everyone quit after the seventh grade out of boredom.

But, cheer up. All is not lost. The competitive instinct dies hard in man. And Phil Pote, former coach at Fremont, has come up with alternate events for frustrated athletes:

1) Instead of throwing the javelin, throw bricks;

2) Instead of tackling a ballcarrier, mug a drunk;

3) Instead of stealing second base, steal watches;

4) Instead of leading the school in assists, lead it in arrests;

5) Instead of making a team, make a gang;

6) Instead of speed on a track, speed in a pill;

7) Instead of push-ups, pushers

Let's not make L.A. an athletic slum; let's keep our kids in gyms instead of jails.

Vote for Updating County Government

Shall Sections 23 and 23a of article IV of the constitution be amended to provide that the requirement for uniformity of county government shall not apply to the administrative means of exercising powers of a local legislative character conferred by the constitution upon county boards and that the legislature may provide for all counties to have an elected chief executive officer with veto power?

Yes (X) No ( )

This is one of the referendum questions which will confront state voters in the polling booths April 1. And we can't blame them if the language sounds confusing Because it is.

Actually the proposition is relatively simple.

Our state constitution says that county government must be uniform throughout the state.

A number of years ago the legislature enacted a law allowing counties to appoint or elect a county administrative officer to carry out duties prescribed by the county board. But no county in the state has yet taken advantage of the law. One reason is thought to be that it might be challenged on constitutional grounds.

The first part of the above question, "that the requirement for uniformity of county government shall not apply to the administrative means of exercising powers of a local legislative character conferred by the constitution upon county boards," would clearly make the appointment or election of a county administrator constitutional. It would clear up any doubt about the constitutionality of the present county administrator law, or any future amendments to strengthen that law.

The second part of the question, "and that the legislature may provide for all counties to have an elected chief executive officer with veto power," would allow the legislature to enact a law providing counties with the option of electing an executive head of county government.

Some years ago the constitution was amended to grant Milwaukee County this authority. This amendment would give the same authority to other counties in the state.

The uniformity clause in the constitution as it applies to this matter is clearly antiquated It can no longer be argued that the same structure of county government is adequate for urban counties like Outagamie or Brown or Winnebago or Dane as may be adequate for small rural counties like Forest or Florence. It is high time the constitution is amended in this respect.

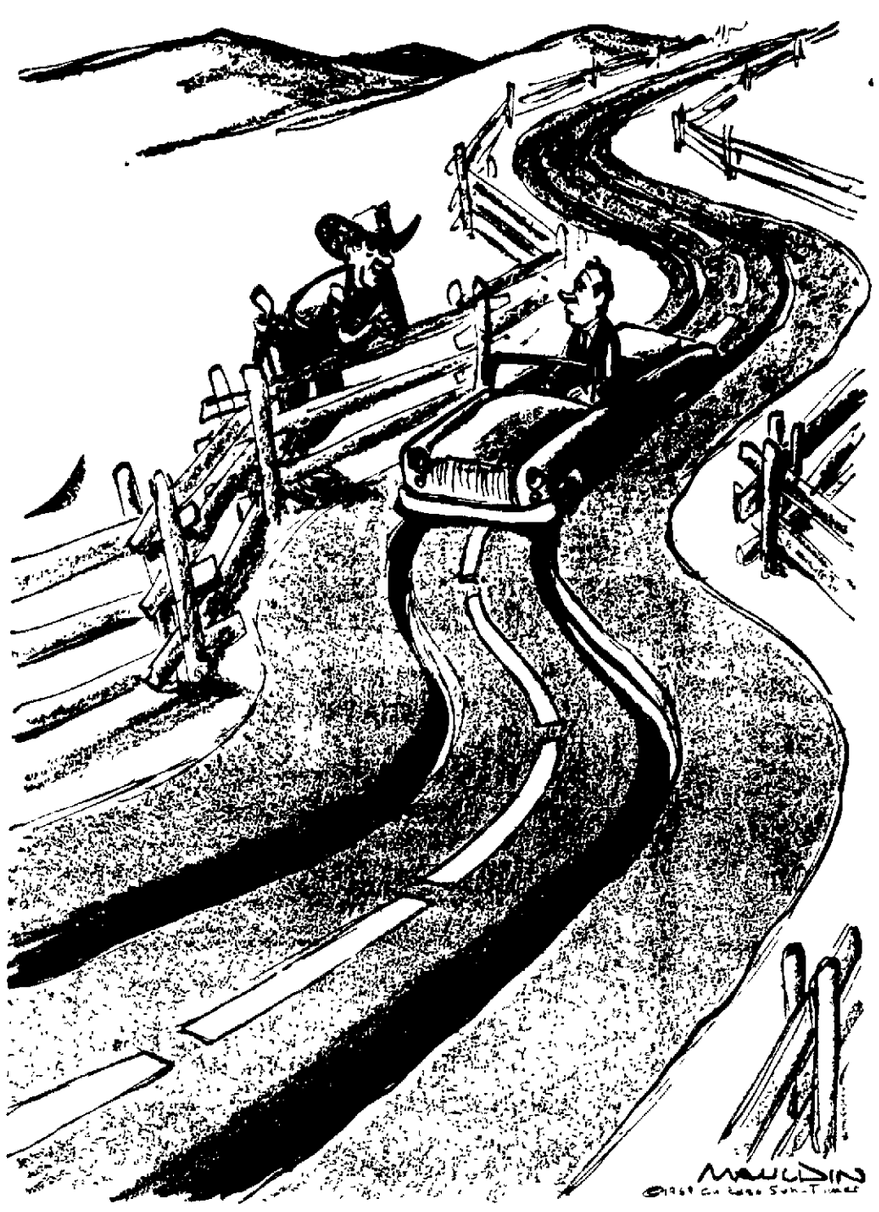

Providing counties with the option to appoint or elect an administrator or executive was one of the major recommendations of the Tarr Commission The commission would have preferred a more explicit referendum question on the ballot, but this one had already been approved by the 1967 legislature and drafting a new question would have delayed putting it to the voters another two years

Town and county governments are the only units without an executive head like the president of the village, or the mayor of a city, or the governor of the state. When the constitution was adopted in 1848 towns and counties were envisioned as rural governments. But now many counties in the state have become in effect metropolitan governments handling complex administrative services. Counties operate mental hospitals, airports, huge highway departments, sports arenas. Yet the administration of such services is handled under the present structure by committees of the county board consisting of part-time officials meeting at best at weekly intervals, more often monthly.

And looking into the future the governmental functions of urban counties are bound to expand. As the population of urban areas has spread beyond city boundaries into suburban towns, villages and cities, it has become more and more logical for counties to perform municipal services for residents of the metropolitan area. Library service is a good example.

This trend is actually one answer to the property tax crisis facing the cities. The tax burdens of the cities can be relieved by passing the responsibility for such services over to the county with its broader tax base.

For better governmental service in Wisconsin at the local level the taxpayer would be doing himself a favor by voting Yes.

'Glad to see you getting some use out of the old ruts, Dick.'

A Seabed Arms Treaty?

It might have appeared that the suggestions by both American and Russian representatives to the Disarmament Conference in Geneva that a treaty be worked out to ban the installation of military equipment on the seabeds were remarkable in their unanimity But as usual it's difficult to tell what the Soviet Union means.

The United States recommendation is that nuclear weapons and other weapons of mass destruction be barred from the ocean floor. But the Russian proposal included the prohibition of "military bases, structures, installations and other objects of a military nature" This is far more comprehensive than the American proposal and just possibly more dangerous, odd as it may seem And United States rejection of the Russian version stamps it as such.

The Soviet Union currently has the world's largest fleet of submarines, between 350 and 400, and is building a fleet of Polaris-type nuclear powered subs as well. It is well known that the Soviet subs — like the American ones — are used for surveillance as well as a hopeful deterrent to attack. But the United States has a rather extensive system of devices mounted on the ocean floor around the world aimed at detecting the approach of submarines Submarines have distinctive sounds for each type that can be classified by computer assisted analysis. Are the Russians trying to insist that such warning devices be dismantled — and if so what about their own? In their probably well-grounded suspicion of every Soviet suggestion, Pentagon officials point out that an interpretation of the Russian proposal could even mean that military messages could not be transmitted by cable

Despite the variance, talks on such a treaty should be pressed in Geneva. Currently other nation's representatives at the conference want to give first priority to seeking a ban on underground nuclear testing, something which will not hearten American officials who are now testing a two megaton warhead for the Spartan missile, the long range interceptive device in the proposed Safeguard ABM system. But American officials have further suggested that perhaps discussions on both treaties could be held simultaneously

The Americans and Russians have managed to agree on treaties concerning the use of nuclear weapons in Antarctica and outer space An agreement on prohibition of the vast ocean floors for military purposes certainly would be further progress.

Nixon on Campus Disorders

Once more President Nixon took a moderate course.

In commenting on student disorders, he was stern "Almost by definition, given the present tactics of disruption, anyone so convicted (of violating criminal statutes) may fairly be assumed to have been assaulting the processes of free inquiry which are the very life of learning. Any society that will not protect itself against such assault exhibits precious little respect for intellect"

But the only role the federal government will play in such disorders is the Congressional withholding of financial aid from those convicted of violating the law and an investigation by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to find "new initiatives toward easing tensions in our educational community."

As President Hesburg of Notre Dame hastily pointed out to the President a few weeks ago, the campus disorders are essentially the business of the university. Federal intervention is not only likely to encourage more students to side with the dissidents but to alarm faculties, always jealous of academic freedom and the rights of protest, as well It has been a major tactic of the extremist elements to find some valid issues for protest and so enlist far more demonstrators that would generally agree with all the protests or the methods. Over-reaction of administrations has increased the possibility of more converts to the extremist cause

But in general college and university administrations and faculties have come to recognize the differences between valid issues for protest and those which are really aimed at destroying the university. They are also learning to act according to the differences More and more are ordering crackdowns on the vandals while at the same time trying to improve communications and work toward remedying the errors.

Cutting off financial aid to those who are convicted of breaking laws is a reasonable decision But of much greater importance — and far less costly in money and talent in the long run — is preventing the disruptions in the first place.

City Schools Should Teach German

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Post for March 4, 1869.

The proposition to start a free German - English school in this City now is engaging the serious attention of the German population here. A large meeting of Germans was held in Turner's Hall last Sunday for the purpose of considering the matter, and we learn that the most perfect unanimity of sentiment was manifested

A provisional organization was effected by appointing Mr. Alexander president and Mr. Ruhlander, secretary.

In this connection we take the liberty of suggesting to the school authorities whether it would not be possible for them to make an arrangement with the Germans that would secure to them what they justly are entitled to, and render the expense of a separate school organization unnecessary.

At least one-third of our population is German, and probably one half the juvenile population has German parents who pay a large proportion of the taxes which support our common schools

Taylor Writes

More Automobiles Are 'Born' Than People These Years in U.S.

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

Millions who want to buy a house are worried sick about the costs Their worry strikes at a core of our national welfare. They're at least entitled to know the score.

The buying of houses and making of homes is a big buttrses in our economy — and a marvelous influence toward good citizenship. But the first requirement in any understanding of the costs is to debunk the myth about our so-called "population explosion"

The cost pressure problem is simply not due to a population push

It took the country until 1915 to reach the first 100 million By 1967 we reached the second But the highly publicized "population explosion" has been slowing down for a very long time and, in truth, there isn't any explosion at all.

PEAKED IN 1947

Actually, we reached our highest annual birth rate in 1947 — 22 years ago. It was then 24.8 per thousand population and has been droppinbg steadily ever since. The population gain last year was only about 1½ per cent.

More automobiles than people are now "born" in the United States each year. More automobiles than people also are "dying" each year. The annual vehicle scrappage rate far exceeds our mortality rate.

Only about 800,000 new family formations a year have been created in the past 10 years. The average family today consists of 3.71 persons. The number of households is an estimated 84 million compared to 76 million in 1959. And about two-thirds of all house-owners now live in metropolitan counties where apartments abound. In fact, in our 202 million population we have fewer than 13 million — about 6½ per cent — living in rural communities on farms.

Beyond the past 10 years' general inflation, and such as special boosts as the current lumber squeeze, the wage-rate increase of more than 50 per cent is the overwhelming cause.

In April last year the Dayton, Ohio, bricklayers struck $100 million worth of general construction work for 73 days in a strike that raised their pay to $9.75 per hour; $19.50 an hour for overtime for bricklaying. In Michigan and northwestern Ohio eight construction unions struck for 85 days to win a 15 per cent increase each year for two years. A Toledo ironworkers strike boosted their rate to $7 63 an hour

The average boom crane operator in New York City gets $7 an hour for operating the boom, plus 35 cents an hour vacation pay. He also gets double time for going up onto his crane, double time for an hour for coming down from his crane, and double time for half an hour for staying up for lunch. With that wage rate and the overtime they now make $30,000 to $40,000 a year — and some up to $50,000 — as a crane operator.

VACATION STAMP PAY

The builder pays the union 35-cents-an-hour "vacation pay" in cash and gives the worker redeemable stamps for it. If the worker keeps these stamps a year the union will give him his money. But many immediately discount the stamps for money in cafes, stores, etc, at about 50 cents on the dollar The discounter can discount them at the union at a second discount. Where the buyer of the finished house or building comes out in all this you can only guess.

As one result, glittering buildings in the center of cities obscure the fact that the bellwether segment of the construction industry — housing — is very sick, indeed. This year's housing construction is estimated at about 1.5 million units In spite of the population upsurge since 1950, the record still holds at 1.9 million units in 1950 — 19 years ago.

In dollarette volume housing starts to look up. In physical volume it is down. Public utility building looks up in dollars. But deflate these and the physical volume has hardly changed throughout the entire postwar period since 1945. In fact, it is no higher today than in 1945 and far below 1942. School construction looks up. In dollarettes the money figure has more than doubled since 1955. But we are building no more school space than 10 years ago. Land and construction costs have eaten up the increase.

This is how the love and yearning of the house buyer is being knouted to death.

Bill Would Remove Disclaimer in State Presidential Primary

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Acting on the experience of the revised Wisconsin presidential primary election law which had its first test last spring, the legislature appears ready to make some revisions and improvements which most persons interested in a fair and representative election process are likely to approve.

The major change, proposed by Speaker Harold Froehlich and others, but actually representing the bipartisan view of the Assembly as shown in a top-heavy vote, has already passed the lower house and is now before the Senate.

It would remove from the law the provision that any person who is listed on the Wisconsin ballot as a de facto candidate by the state electoral commission can have his name removed if he files a disclaimer with an affidavit asserting that he is not running.

FOLLOWS OREGON RULE

When the 1967 legislature rewrote the ancient presidential primary law, it followed in the main the provisions of the Oregon law That law for many years has had the same rule: that the ballot shall list the names of persons who appear by their activities and their statements to be candidates for the nominations of their parties but which also permits them to withdraw their names if they insist they are not candidates.

On the face of it, that appears to be a reasonable provision, and especially in Oregon where the election office administrator makes the choice on his own responsibility.

But the Wisconsin experience of last year shows that the system has a mortal weakness — from the viewpoint of those who believe the voters should be given a true choice among true candidates — in that sometimes the politician is willing to stretch the truth just a little to suit his own strategical or tactical purposes.

ROCKEFELLER EXAMPLE

The Wisconsin experience with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller last year illustrates.

There never was much real doubt to anyone reading the polls, or watching his activities or even applying common sense that Rockefeller was the only realistic opponent in sight for Richard Nixon for the Republican presidential nomination. And, of course, a short while after the Wisconsin ballot commission identified him as a candidate, he removed all uncertainty by making a national campaign for delegates at the Miami convention.

Yet the governor formally filed a disclaimer of his candidacy in the Wisconsin primary, his name was duly removed, the voters on the Republican side of that ballot as a result had no real choice, and the Nixon vote without a competing candidate was almost meaningless.

POSITION CITED

It is idle to speculate about "what might have been," but the disclaimer provision recalls the awkward position of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy in the early months of 1968.

It was strictly through happenstance that Kennedy was not obliged to make a decision to withdraw his name in Wisconsin. One member of the Republican half of the ballot commission failed to attend the meeting when the candidates were being listed with the result that the Democrats managed to keep his name off the ballot.

Yet a few weeks later Sen. McCarthy ran surprisingly well in New Hampshire, thus disclosing President Johnson's weakness, Kennedy promptly acknowledged his own candidacy — although too late to get his name on the Wisconsin ballot.

SPECULATION IS TEMPTING

It is tempting to wonder about the course of affairs if Kennedy had in fact been listed in Wisconsin in competition with McCarthy. It is reasonable to assume that McCarthy would not have won by the substantial margin he recorded here. It is conceivable that he might not have won at all, and that Sen. Kennedy would have been the favorite anti-administration candidate.

All such possibilities, of course, would not have turned away the assassin's hand that held the gun after Kennedy's California victory, but they are relevant in considering improvements in the primary election machinery for the future as the legislature is now wisely doing.

Strictly Personal

Unpleasant People Should be Put Away

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What the bulk of society really wants is for unpleasant people to go away and not bother anybody. "Unpleasant people" are the poor, the convicted, the mentally ill, the old, and the troublesome young.

So-called "poverty programs" keep the poor just where they are, barely hanging on, and discreetly out of sight. "Urban redevelopment" means putting the poor where out-of-town visitors can't see them.

Our jails and prisons are devoted to keeping unpleasant characters out of circulation as long as possible, providing minimum opportunities for their rehabilitation, and then throwing them back into cells as fast as they get out and demonstrate their inability to break the law again successfully.

We will spend millions for new Our mental hospitals are grossly under-staffed, relying on drugs to keep patients tranquil instead of positive therapy to make them well. We will spend millions for new buildings to put these patients in, but we won't pay enough for doctors, nurses and orderlies to establish a system in which hope, and not despair is the chief climate. Our old people are simply a drag. Most have no place to live, no income to live on, and little to live for. We scarcely even pretend to be concerned about this social problem embarrassing though it is.

The troublesome young are told to cut their hair, brush their teeth, keep going to school (no matter how rotten school may be), and face the delightful prospect of being drafted at 18.

If they get into real trouble with the law, they are either put on probation and allowed to keep doing the same things until the boom is dropped, or else they are stuck into a "training school" where they are trained to be professional criminals in a short time.

Despite our massive programs, and our appropriations, and our public and private welfare agencies, the plain fact of the matter is that the average American doesn't give a damn about anyone outside the mainstream of our society — and everybody outside the mainstream knows it. So do the few dedicated people who work with them.

We ought to stop congratulating ourselves on our Gross National Product, and start reflecting on our gross attitudes toward the disinherited, the feeble, the troubled and the torn. They won't go away, and we can't build stockades big enough to hold them all.

Attendance Off At AAU Cage Meet Opening

Alcindor-less LA Team Fails to Show For First Game

MACON, Ga. (AP) — The National AAU Basketball Tournament, moved out of Denver, Colo., because of declining attendance, got off to a disappointing debut in Dixie.

Macon fans were disappointed in the AAU, and the AAU was disappointed with Tuesday night's opening crowd of about 1,500.

The disappointment was caused by the absence of the Kitchen Fresh Clippers of Los Angeles, which had indicated it would be on hand with UCLA's Lew Alcindor.

Not only did Alcindor not show up—which was really not surprising because there had never been a flat commitment that he would be here—but neither did the Clippers.

And so when Coach Hal Fischer met with his defending champion Armed Forces All-Stars during the afternoon all he had to say was, "We no longer have an opponent."

Cocoa Beach Wins

The All-Stars moved into Thursday's quarter-finals by default, and will meet the Cocoa Beach, Fla., Headhunters. Cocoa Beach advanced with a 77-55 triumph over Searcy, Ark., in the only Tuesday night game.

The All-Stars played an exhibition game against a make-up team which quickly became the crowd favorite although it was trounced 104-46.

The other 12 teams in the tournament continue first-round play today with six games set for the afternoon and evening.

Tournament officials were hoping for a bigger turnout, and Bill Summers, national basketball director for the AAU, said that during the tournament's long run in Denver attendance picked up as play progressed.

Regional Drew Better

"I was disappointed in the crowd," Summers said. "We had a bigger crowd for our regional tournament in Indiana."

But he said the slim turnout may have resulted from the mixup over the Los Angeles team. And he said that the turnout was larger than crowds in Denver in early rounds in recent years.

"AAU basketball isn't dead," Summers said.

"But it may soon be if tournament teams don't keep their commitments," said the tournament director, Dr. Andy Lawrence of Macon.

"Stuff like this is going to kill AAU basketball." Lawrence said.

Tournament officials said they did not know Los Angeles was not coming until they contacted a member of the team about 1 p.m.

Maud Hardacker Wins Pair Of State AAU Swim Titles

Appleton's Maud Hardacker won a pair of first places in the senior women's Wisconsin AAU indoor swimming championships at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Miss Hardacker captured the title in the 200-yard butterfly, in 2:42.4, and the 1,650-yard freestyle (21:43.2). She also took third place in the 500-yard freestyle event.

The Green Bay YMCA took first place in the team event, with Madison second and the Neenah-Menasha YWCA third.

Paul Ciske achieved the highest finish of any Appleton YMCA swimmer in the recent boys area swim meet at Racine. Ciske placed third in the 100-yard individual medley. He also placed fifth in the 50-yard breaststroke and sixth in the 100-yard freestyle. (In the latter, he set a team record of 1:01.6)

Jim Hewitt placed fourth in the 100-yard individual medley (setting a team record of 1:20.7) and seventh in the 50-yard butterfly.

Woes Plague Golf Stars

Trevino Has Jammed Thumb, May Miss 'Airlines' Tourney

MIAMI (AP) — Lee Trevino has a sore thumb, Arnold Palmer has an aching back, Jack Nicklaus has an attack of tee wildness and that's the casualty report for the $200,000 National Airlines Open Golf Tournament, starting Thursday.

Trevino, the voluble U.S. Open champion, became the newest on the hospital list when he jammed his left thumb into a door on his arrival here Tuesday, forcing him out of the pro-am tournament today.

He's still not sure he will be able to tee it up Thursday and go on to play in the Masters two weeks hence.

A doctor put a cast around the thumb and Lee's wrist and said: "Nothing's broken, but when we take the cast off Thursday morning we won't know whether he can play or not. It just depends on how he feels. He may be out 36 hours or two weeks."

It would be a big disappointment for Trevino.

Warm-Up Test

"I felt I was really getting ready for the Masters," he said.

Palmer, who gets injections twice a day for his ailing hip, said, "I don't know how it will be—it's a day-to-day proposition."

Nicklaus, who found his booming drives soaring off course in the Jacksonville Open last week, complained, "I don't know what's happening—I just seem to come up dry."

Palmer, Nicklaus and Trevino are three of the favorites in the 156-man field which tees off Thursday in one of the year's richest events. First prize is $40,000.

Bill Casper, pro of the year and top money winner in 1968, is among the contenders as are virtually all of the top 100 money winners.

The list includes such foreigners as Gary Player, Bobby Cole and Harold Henning of South Africa, Tony Jacklin and Malcolm Gregson of England and Bruce Crampton of Australia.

Angels Solid at Four Positions

By BOB MYERS

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Manager Bill Rigney of the California Angels may not be as openly optimistic as his general manager. But things are looking up for the Angels, which is about the only direction to look after the team's eighth place finish last year, just a tick or two out of the American League basement.

Dick Walsh, new front-office boss, has visions of winning the Western Division title and regards the Minnesota Twins as the team to beat.

Rigney, in his 14th year as a major league pilot and ninth with the Angels, says he has four positions set for 1969, plus what he believes will be effective pitching.

The fight for the so-called open jobs is interesting rather than worrisome.

Aurelio Rodriguez retains his hold at third base and Rick Reichardt is the man in left field.

Vic Dacalillo appears to have an edge for right field but Bill Voss, acquired in a trade with the Chicago White Sox for Sammy Ellis last January, and Jarvis Tatum, who spent most of last year at El Paso, Tex., are making a run for it.

In the same fashion, Jay Johnstone might well be the regular center-fielder. Rigney also has other outfielders, such as Roger Repoz, Bubba Morton and Chuck Hinton, to juggle around.

Speaking of juggling, a talent Rigney possesses, he has weighty decisions to make involving first base and catching.

Tom Satriano is an established catcher who can also play most any position on the field, including first base. To make the matter more complex, the Angels hope young Tom Egan can take over the catching. Also, Bob Rodgers, the original Angel catcher, is still around.

If Satriano goes to first, he'll find it quite crowded. Two real veterans, Dick Stuart and Bob Chance, are desperately trying to stay alive. Either or both may make it.

The Angels' starting pitchers at this stage include George Brunet, Jim McGlothlin, Tom Murphy and Andy Messersmith.

Rich Clark, Clyde Wright, Rudy May and Minnie Rojas are bidding for the fifth spot and the bullpen has, among others, those old masters of the knuckleball, Hoyt Wilhelm and Eddie Fisher.

NHL Rookie Fires Goal in First Game

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Freckle-faced Ron Snell caught everybody, including himself, by surprise when he scored his first National Hockey League goal in his first big league game.

"The puck hit the side of the net and came right out to me." Snell said after the marker started the Pittsburgh Penguins to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota North Stars Tuesday night.

"If I would have missed it, there would be something wrong with me," he said. "I caught everybody by surprise. I was even surprised that it came so easy."

The Penguins kept their hopes alive of leaving the West Division cellar, moving without four points of the fifth-place North Stars.

It was the only NHL game scheduled Tuesday night.

Snell's goal moved the Penguins into a 1-1 tie in the second period after they had been badly outskated. The North Stars outshot Pittsburgh 28-6 through two periods.

Jean Pronovost provided the winning goal and an insurance tally for the Penguins in the third period.

OK Deer Season

Water Analysis for Lake Winnebago Gets Approval at Hearing

CHILTON — An estimated 75 persons endorsed a straight buck deer season, Lake Winnebago water analysis study and 1970 sturgeon spearing season Monday night at the annual Calumet County Conservation Congress meeting at the courthouse.

Members also backed proposals to re-district Calumet County from Conservation Congress district 8 to district 7, endorsed a move to lower the delegates voting age from 21 to 18.

A straight nine-day buck season with variable quota party approved by a 69-0 vote. permits allowed locally was approved by a 69-0 vote.

Either Sex Season

The present deer season calls for a two-day either sex and seven-day buck season. The shift would place Calumet County in a game management zone 64 with Door, Kewaunee, and Brown Counties. Calumet County is now in a game management unit with management zone 64.

Variable quota permits would be equally distributed among the counties.

Conservation warden Richard Streng, Chilton said 594 deer were killed in Calumet County in 1968, compared to 796 killed in 1967.

A Lake Winnebago water analysis study by the Department of Natural Resources was endorsed at the meeting. The proposed study would determine existing water conditions and provide information about water conditions.

A 72-0 vote backed a sturgeon spearing season proposed from Feb. 7 to March 1, 1970. Presently the season starts on the second Saturday in February and lasts until March 1.

Calumet County is in district 8 with Door, Brown, Kewaunee, Manitowoc, Sheboygan and Ozaukee Counties.

The move would group Calumet with Winnebago and Outagamie Counties. Streng said the proposal was made because "our interests in Calumet County are not the same as in district 8 as we are the only inland county in that district."

The county proposals will be presented at a district Conservation Congress meeting and will go to a state-wide meeting in late April or early May.

At the state meeting three delegates from each county will discuss the proposals before endorsement as official recommendatins to the Department of Natural Resources.

Delegates elected to represent Calumet County are Myron Jandry, Chilton, to a two - year term; Daniel Vollmer, Hilbert, a three-year-term; and Donald Hillmann, Potter, to an unexpired 1-year-term caused by the death of his father Edward Hillmann.

Possession of Switchblade Knife Denied

A 46-year-old Lindstrom, Minn., woman pleaded innocent Monday afternoon to a charge of possession of a switchblade knife.

Mrs. Joanne Cross, who appeared with her attorney in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, was charged in a complaint stemming from a recent search of her car.

Appearing with her was Chris J. Rodenkirchen, 50, of St. Paul, Minn., who faces the same charge. He witheld a plea until he could contact his attorney.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer set $500 bail for each and continued the case to March 28 for review.

Sheriff's investigators took out a search warrant for the couple's car on March 20 after they had been arrested on a shoplifting complaint from the K mart 2400 W. College Ave.

Both are being held in jail without bail on the shoplifting count.

Smoke Inhalation Fatal to Rural Fond du Lac Boy

FOND DU LAC (AP)—A 5-year-old boy died Wednesday when a pre-dawn fire swept his family's rural home about seven miles southeast of Fond du Lac.

Authorities said Donald Schmidt, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leander Schmidt, died of smoke inhalation and was not burned. The boy's parents had managed to get five other children out of the brick two-story structure, but his father could not reach the victim's room because of smoke and flames.

The family had no telephone, authorities said, and had to drive half a mile to a neighboring farm house to summon firemen. When fire fighters arrived, the boy was dead. The family lost all its possessions.

Two Sentenced On Beer Charge

A 21-year-old rural Bear Creek man and 22-year-old New London man each was sentenced to 30 days in the Outagamie County Jail Monday afternoon after they pleaded guilty to furnishing beer to a minor.

John Frasier, of New London, and James Bessette, of route 1, Bear Creek, waived preliminary hearings and admitted in Branch 2 county court that they brought a six pack of beer to the home of a 17-year-old Black Creek girl on March 17. The youths reportedly had been told earlier by authorities to stay away from the girl, who was home alone at the time.

Judge F. Schaefer told the youths they had better listen when authorities give them a warning. The complaint was brought against the men by the juvenile division of the sheriff's department.

Youth Pleads Innocent To Charge of Doing Criminal Damage

Duane Bauman, 19, route 2, Appleton, pleaded innocent in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Monday afternoon to a charge of doing criminal damage to the 1969 auto of a Hortonville man.

Bauman, who said he had an attorney, appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer on a charge that he caused $492 damage Feb. 23 to the station wagon owned by Glen Leeman. Bauman is alleged to have spun the wheels of his car to throw stones and mud on the right side and top of the Leeman car after Leeman told him to leave his cafe.

Schaefer set a July 24 trial and bail at $50 cash or corporate surety.

Police Find Cache of Hypodermic Needles

BOSTON (AP) — Police said they found about five million hypodermic needles and syringes Tuesday in a closed warehouse in East Boston.

The building, once owned by a manufacturer of surgical instruments, was purchased earlier this month by the Massachusetts Port Authority.

Police searched the building after learning it was the source of needles found in possession of drug suspects.

Nixon Drops Hints

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has given fresh impetus to the growing belief that the private talks he favors for ending the Vietnam war already are under way.

But in doing so, the President made it clear he wants to keep those talks—whether they actually have begun or are about to—as secret as possible.

"That kind of negotiation cannot take place in a goldfish bowl," Nixon told the National Association of Broadcasters Tuesday in an off-the-cuff speech.

The President, however, came to the convention obviously anxious to talk about private negotiations to end the war.

"Real Progress"

"I can tell you," he said, "that it is our conviction and our belief that it is through private talks with the North Vietnamese and others involved that the real progress toward peace will be made."

Nixon went on to say that if anyone in the administration is asked "as to whether private talks should begin, as to what has occurred, we will say nothing."

Although this seemed to indicate fullscale private negotiations were not actually now under way but were about to start, the President commented a little later on:

"We think we are on the right track, but we are not going to raise false hopes. We are not going to tell you what is going on in private talks."

Nixon's comments on secret negotiations were the first public remarks by an administration official since Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told a subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last Friday that peace was being sought "not only through formal diplomatic channels formally in Paris, but privately as well."

The Nixon speech came just a few hours after South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu said in Saigon that his government was ready for private meetings with the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

New Element

Thieu's statement was viewed in Paris as only a slightly new element in that it was made openly.

It also suggested the Front had been dragging its feet—turning around the accusation that until now Hanoi and the NLF had directed at Saigon.

The Hanoi-NLF delegates to the Paris talks had no comment on Thieu's statement, a departure from custom that pointed up still another element in the Thieu statement——that a message actually was passed in Paris from the Saigon government to the NLF. This suggested that at least something was going on backstage.

This in turn, however, points up another possible interpretation of the sparse public comments that have been made. Despite use of the word "talks" what actually may only have occurred up to now is diplomatic "contacts" that would open the way to real discussions.

And there is no way to be certain that the talks or contacts have involved the Washington-Hanoi kind of dickering that is now believed necessary to starting mutual troop withdrawals.

Message to Congress Says Government Will Make Spending Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, declaring that "inflation is a form of economic aggression," proposed to Congress today that the problem be met by extending the income tax surcharge for another 12 months and by making significant cuts in federal spending.

In a special message, Nixon reported that at least half of the budget surpluses envisioned in January by former President Lyndon B. Johnson already have evaporated—in some cases because of inflation and in others because of overly optimistic estimates.

Faced with that situation, Nixon said he will propose budget revisions for the fiscal year starting July 1 that will reduce spending "significantly below the amount recommended in January." He gave no details.

The chief executive, in calling for a continuation of the 10 per cent federal income tax surtax beyond its scheduled June 30 expiration, declared:

"As I have said before, the surcharge is a temporary tax that must be ended as soon as our commitments in Southeast Asia and economic conditions permit."

In the Senate, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the majority leader, said earlier that Congress should insist on a second big spending cut as its price for extending the surcharge

Nixon left open the possibility that he might call for scaling down or repeal of the surcharge within the year of its extension should the Vietnam war end and inflationary pressures ease.

The surtax is expected to yield $9 5 billion if extended.

In addition, Nixon called for postponement of scheduled June 30 reductions in excise taxes on telephone service and automobiles and enactment of unspecified federal user charges. He said these actions would produce nearly $1 billion in revenue in the coming fiscal year.

Tax Reforms

Touching on another tax matter Nixon promised that the administration, through the Treasury Department, will submit in April its first specific proposals for tax reform. Again he did not go into details.

In these times, Nixon said, the government cannot risk budgets narrowly in balance but must seek meaningful surpluses to put a brake on inflation.

He said this was necessary "because the problem of inflation was neglected far too long."

Just Tuesday the Labor Department reported a new spurt in living costs, bringing the increase during the last 12 months to 4.7 per cent. It also reported a stepup in wholesale price levels—usually the prelude to higher prices at the consumer level.

In discussing his approach to inflation, Nixon said:

"Only a combined policy of a strong budget surplus and monetary restraint can now be effective in cooling inflation, and in ultimately reducing the restrictive interest rates forced on us by past policies. This is fundamental economics, and we intend to deal with fundamentals."

He described inflation as "a form of economic aggression against the very young and the very old, the poor and the thrifty." He said his administration is "determined to keep faith" with the victims of spiraling prices.

Anticipated Surplus

In reviewing the Johnson budget for the coming fiscal year, Nixon noted his predecessor anticipated a surplus of $3.4 billion.

He said, however, that interest on the federal debt "will be

Outlook Gloomy

Doctors Say Ike Remains Critical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army doctors reported today the condition of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower remains critical and evidence of his congestive heart failure persists "despite the fact that all appropriate therapeutic measures are being utilized."

A morning medical bulletin read to reporters by Col. John L. Bradley, executive officer of the Walter Reed Army Hospital, also said Eisenhower "slept comfortably through most of the night."

"He continues to enjoy brief visits with members of the immediate family," it added.

Reporters had asked whether use of the word "critical" in Tuesday night's bulletin and again today meant that Eisenhower was "near death." Doctors replied "not necessarily."

But in reply to another question they said it was "uncertain" how long a patient in Eisenhower's general physical condition "and not responding to treatment" could be expected to endure severe congestive heart failure.

Asked to compare the 78-year-old general's condition at the present time with his condition last August—at the time of his seventh and most recent coronary heart attack and when doctors described it as "very critical,"—they replied: "His condition is considered to be critical."

They attributed Eisenhower's "remarkable ability to recover from so many major illnesses" to "his inherent stamina."

The physicians also said Eisenhower is always conscious "except when sleeping" and added he is lucid enough to converse easily with those around him.

In their bulletin late Tuesday, his doctors said Eisenhower "has shown no deterioration in the last 24 hours, his condition continues to be critical." This was the first time they had used critical to describe his condition.

Earlier Tuesday, the doctors added to the gloomy outlook when they said it was impossible to predict whether the former president would recover from this latest setback in his 11-month battle against serious heart disease.

They did, however, temper their statement by adding that Eisenhower "has always shown remarkable recuperative power in past illnesses."

The medical bulletins have not been optimistic since doctors announced Monday the general had suffered his second serious congestive heart failure in little more than a week.

An encouraging sign Tuesday was the absence of a late night medical report as had been issued in days previous.

Doctors said Tuesday evening the general had rested comfortably during the day "despite persistence of evidences of congestive heart failure," a condition caused when the heart muscle is unable to pump a sufficient amount of blood through the body. This causes a congestion of blood in the lungs and other vital organs.

The hospital also said members of Eisenhower's immediate family had visited with him for brief periods Tuesday.

Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—A rural Darlington, Wis., youth was on the latest list of U.S. servicemen killed in Vietnam, released by the Pentagon Tuesday.

Mass Transit's 'Mess'

By KEN HARTNETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe says it may be necessary to curb the use of automobiles in the nation's cities unless a mass transit breakthrough is achieved within two years.

"Some type of mass transportation has got . . . to get into operation pretty rapidly or we do face the real possibility that either we have to shut off to rubber tires certain limited areas within a city or charge a fee to come in there," Volpe said in an interview.

The secretary acknowledged the need for new highways but said "we wouldn't be in the mess we're in today" if mass transit systems had been built as fast as expressways.

Volpe predicted that the motorist would begin looking for alternatives to being mired in traffic jams.

"If you get down to a point where automobiles have to travel five miles an hour, well, you know how long people are going to use them," he said. "They are going to walk to work instead of ride. Of course, it wouldn't hurt them if they did, either, I might add."

"Bold new ideas" are needed Volpe said. But he added it would probably be five years before new developments could be in service.

"We can't wait that long for some of these things," he said.

Here are excerpts from the interview:

Q. What veto power, if any, should central city residents have over freeway construction in their neighborhoods?

A. Any responsible group should certainly have an opportunity to voice its opinions strongly and in the clearest terms. I think it is up to public agencies . . . to listen to these inputs on the part of neighborhood groups or citywide groups, action-oriented groups, . . . or whatever they might be.

But in the final analysis it is the elected or appointed officials who have to make some final judgments.

. . . Expressways are only one form. I'm convinced that you just don't stop a highway program because, perhaps, a few additional homes will have to be taken.

"Final Judgments"

But, by the same token, you just can't depend on a highway program to do the job completely, because it can't do the job. This has been proven in New York City . . . where over half a century ago—1917, I guess—the pushcart era—the average speed was 11 miles an hour. Today it's 7 miles an hour in New York. So we haven't made much progress in over half a century. So something needs to be done. And it needs to be done in a bold and imaginative way.

Q. Some urban experts propose a series of user charges to discourage use of the automobile in central cities during business hours. Do you believe it necessary to ration the use of the automobile in some way?

A. Well, either we make a great deal more progress in mass transportation than we've made in the last five years, or within the next year or two, you're going to have to come to some type of restriction on certain areas within . . . the core city on the utilization of the automobile.

It could be the utilization of the trucks. I mean the delivery of goods during certain hours. It could be the separation of pedestrian and vehicle traffic . . . We are going to have to come to some type of solution along those lines . . .

I would prefer to see the alternative of taking some people off the automobile tires if you provide good, swift, safe, economical mass transportation . . .

Q. How do you think the highway lobby would greet such a step?

A. I think they recognize the highway user himself is going to become so frustrated that, he is going to be willing to experiment with anything rather than spend 13 per cent of his day and, maybe within a year or two, 20 per cent of his daily working hours behind another automobile and taking in all the fumes that come from it.

. . . It means the automobile

Pentagon Won't Put Marines On Planes to Halt Hijackings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has rejected the use of military armed guards to ride shotgun on commercial airliners to prevent hijackings because the potential dangers to passengers and crew are too great.

"The potential danger to the lives of all persons aboard the aircraft, due to possible death or injury to the crew or critical damage to the aircraft itself, will greatly limit the effective use of (the guard's) firearm," officials said.

Also, the Defense Department said, the use of a gun or physical force to deal with a hijacker holding a hostage "is extremely difficult in the cramped quarters of a commercial airliner without placing the life of the hostage in extreme jeopardy."

The suggestion for armed guards was made by Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., of the House Armed Services Committee, a Pentagon spokesman said, in the wake of many hijackings of airliners to Cuba.

The Defense Department considered the proposal of furnishing Marines or other military guards on planes carrying government personnel in possession of military secrets.

In addition to the safety factor, the Pentagon said "the size of the Marine guard force required to ride the aircraft involved would be very large" because of the many military and civilian personnel having highly classified information travelling on commercial planes.

The Defense Department also noted that "discussions would have to be undertaken with many countries before the United States could authorize the use of armed military guards aboard U.S.-registered aircraft traveling to foreign countries."

It dismissed the idea of transporting classified matter only on government planes, saying this would require possible establishment of a military mail service and an "immense logistic effort."

"There is no evidence that Cuba authorities have tampered with U.S. mail aboard any hijacked aircraft to date," the Pentagon said.

It reported that the State Department "has taken diplomatic initiative" in the matter of hijackings, and that "efforts are being made to gain an international agreement concerning the handling of hijacking incidents."

Army Accused of 'Boo-Boo' on Tank

Weapon Reportedly Rushed Into Production Despite Bugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee has accused the Army of a "billion-dollar boo boo" in developing a new tank because

—Although the tank is for reconnaisance, it can be heard three miles away.

—It has a "rooster tail exhaust" system that makes it an easy target.

—Its caseless ammunition is ultra-inflammable, leaves burning residue in the breech which can prematurely ignite a round, and is adversely affected by moisture, oil and rough handling.

—"Due to a problem with fuel-tank leaks, frequent checks for spilled fuel should be made to prevent fires."

—"When operating in jungle or heavy underbrush, vegetation will clog air intake grilles and the radiator, requiring frequent cleaning to avoid overheating."

—"The "Shillelagh) missile must not be fired when the launch vehicle is in motion."

—"Under extremely dusty conditions, the present air cleaner requires cleaning or replacement every 1½ hours."

These were the findings of a previously classified document that Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., ordered the Army to release Tuesday after six days of secret testimony on the Sheridan tank.

Stratton, chairman of the subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, said "the people have a right to know this incredible story."

Stratton charged that the Army had rushed the weapons system into combat and mass production in order to eliminate its possible cutback or elimination by the Bureau of the Budget and the secretary of defense.

He succeeded during the hearings in winning admission from one Army officer, Lt. Col. Stan Sheridan, that the tank was recommended for production for budgetary reasons although tests had indicated there were many problems.

Later, Sheridan's superiors heatedly denied this, despite an internal memorandum in the subcommittee's possession in which this point was stressed by Sheridan.

Higher Minimum Age Sought

Marriage 'No Cure' to Unwanted Pregnancy

MADISON (AP) — Marriage, as a means of statistically eliminating illegitimate children, may do more harm than good, a member of the Home and Family Council said Tuesday.

"Experts tell us pregnancy is never a good reason for marriage," John Devitt, outgoing secretary for the council and a spokesman for Milwaukee County, told the Senate Public Welfare Committee.

"If a couple loves each other they can wait until the legal age and at the time of marriage, the child becomes legitimate," he said.

Devitt spoke in favor of bills to raise the minimum age for females to marry from 16 to 18 and to require a waiting period of 30 days instead of five for a marriage license.

"It's harder to get a fishing license than a marriage license in Wisconsin," he said, "and that's one reason our divorce rate is one of the highest in the world."

Msgr. Edward Kinney of Madison, also a Home and Family Council member, said he found high school students strongly in favor of the proposal to raise the age for women to marry.

"There has been some myth you can cure illegitimacy by marriage," he said, "but the cure may be worse than the disease."

Sen. Arthur Cirilli, R - Superiod, chairman of the committee, said it seemed to him the bills would "close the door absolutely" when that might not be wise.

"You can't say that two people can't make it just because they're under 18," he said.

Senators Told U. S. Making 'T-Day' Plans

Total Withdrawal Would Take 2 Years Once It Is Started

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army staff officers estimate it may take as long as two years for a complete withdrawal of all U.S. soldiers and equipment from Vietnam when the order finally comes to pull out of the war zone.

Although no decision has been reached on a timetable the Army is working on plans now to avoid the waste and confusion that accompanied the first pullback of U.S. troops from battle zones in past wars.

The staff officers made the time estimate after Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor told the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday that "a deliberate rather than a hasty timetable" is the best way to avoid the difficulties that followed World War II and Korea.

"We are therefore planning now, in a much more detailed and orderly manner than at any time previously, for actions to be taken when hostilities decrease to a level at which the South Vietnamese no longer require the assistance of our own combat troops," Resor said.

At the same time, Resorts aid, "we have emphasized the accelerated completion of our formal T-Day plans, since we want to be able to react quickly and efficiently to any developments and directions growing out of the Paris negotiations."

"T-Day" stands for "Termination of hostilities."

More Than Troops

The planning involves not only the removal of the 360,000 Army troops and billions of dollars worth of arms and equipment, but also their repositioning in the United States and elsewhere "to meet worldwide commitments," as Resor phrased it.

The Army staff also must take into account the overall reduction of the Army to manpower levels which were in effect before President Johnson ordered large numbers of U.S. ground troops into the war nearly four years ago.

The Army now stands at about 1.5 million men, some 500,000 more than when the Vietnam war buildup started in the summer of 1965.

The other services also have pullback problems, but the Army's is by far the greatest because of its size and the amount of gear it has in Southeast Asia

Veterans of World War II and Korea still recall how huge amounts of arms and equipment were dumped, destroyed or left behind when American forces withdrew from overseas battle areas.

Resor's testimony reflected the view of senior military men that preparing the South Vietnamese to take over the main burden of the war is not something which can be done quickly

"We must recognize ... that full Vietnamese military self-sufficiency will not be achieved in the near future," Resor said.

'No Other Ambition'

Pakistan's Military Chief Promises Free Elections

KARACHI (AP) — Pakistan's new military dictator, Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan, told his turbulent nation today he would "bring back sanity" to set the stage for free elections.

"I wish to make it absolutely clear to you that I have no ambition other than the creation of conditions conducive to the establishment of a constitutional government," he said in his first broadcast after taking over from President Mohammed Ayub Khan.

Sixteen hours before, Ayub Khan resigned after appointing Yahya supreme commander of Pakistan's armed forces and chief martial law administrator. Yahya's promise to "bring back sanity" was the same made by Ayub when he seized power in 1958 and ruled by martial law for three years.

Mob Violence

Ayub, who announced earlier he would not seek re-election next year, admitted Tuesday night this did not satisfy his political opponents and he could not cope with mob violence wracking Pakistan's eastern half, on the other side of India.

"My first task is to put the administration back on the rails," Yahya said. "Strikes and industrial unrest have brought the nation to the edge of an abyss.

"The nation has to be pulled back to safety and normal conditions have to be restored without delay. I and the armed forces could not remain idle spectators of this state of near anarchy."

He assured the people the armed forces "have no political ambitions and will not prop up any individual or party," and he indicated he would go through with constitutional reforms promised by Ayub before his resignation.

Yahya, 52, is considered to have pro-Western views despite visits to Moscow and Peking earlier this year. He fought with British forces in Italy and the Middle East during World War II and was appointed Ayub's military commander in East Pakistan in 1962. In the 1965 Indian-Pakistani war he commanded an infantry division and was decorated for bravery." He became commander-in-chief of the army in 1966.

In India, situated between East and West Pakistan, members of the ruling Congress Party expressed fear that the turmoil in Pakistan would lead to "political adventurism or religious fanaticism," meaning new attacks in disputed Kashmir or on Pakistan's Hindu minority.

Martial law regulations announced by Radio Pakistan banned all strikes, demonstrations and political meetings; imposed strict press censorship, and provided for establishment of military courts.

Despite the strike ban, plants remained closed in Karachi's industrial area and police were hard put to separate rival mobs of workers.

Nationwide Strikes

Nurses announced they would strike across the nation today because the government has not accepted their wage demands. Gas workers called an indefinite strike. Railwaymen threatened a nationwide stoppage unless their wage demands are met within two days.

In the East Pakistani capital of Dacca, most Pakistani airline flights were cancelled when pilots and other employes of Pakistan International Airways walked out.

Reports of murder and mob violence continued to come in from East Pakista, although Gov. Mirza Huda told a news conference Tuesday there was a "distinct improvement" in the situation. He said the army had been reinforced to assist civil authorities in maintaining order.

Huda said 111 deaths had been reported in East Pakistan since last December, 55 of them because of police action. But unofficial estimates ran as high as 700.

East and West Pakistan, divided by the bulk of India, erupted in opposition to Ayub's regime four months ago. The 61-year-old president first tried to use force, then acceded to opposition demands and said he would not seek re-election when his term expires in January.

In subsequent talks with opposition leaders he promised East Pakistan virtual autonomy, with the central government in Karachi handling only defense, foreign policy and national security.

But some opposition leaders in East Pakistan wanted more. The eastern province has 70 million of Pakistan's 120 million people, and they wanted proportional representation in the central government.

Michigan Authorities Probe String of Killings

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Authorities say the sex-killer who left Maralynn Skelton's nude, abused body near a lover's lane may have been responsible for the unsolved deaths of three other girls in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area.

Maralynn

Miss Skelton, 16, was the fourth girl slain in the area in the last 19 months and the second within a week.

Her mother said she left her home in the Detroit suburb of Romulus Saturday afternoon saying she was going to a dance at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

Workmen in a subdivision found the girl's body Tuesday morning. A garter belt was wrapped around her neck, other garments were strewn nearby, and "She had been unmercifully beaten about the face," said Police Chief Walter Krasny of Ann Arbor.

Karsny said the girl had been dead one to two days and theorized she had been killed elsewhere and her body taken to the spot where it was found.

He said he believed there was a connection between the murder and at least two earlier ones, those of Joan E. Schell, 20, of Plymouth, found last July, and Mary Flezar, 19, of Wills, found in August 1967. Both were stabbed and, like Maralynn, sexually abused.

In the fourth death, Jane Louise Mixer, 23, a University of Michigan law student from Muskegon, was found in a cemetery near Ypsilanti last week. Shot several times in the head, she was not assaulted sexually.

"The Mixer murder may not be by the same person, but there are enough similarities in the other two and in the Flezar murder to warrant a second look," Krasny said.

"There's somebody mentally deranged around here who has to be caught quickly—I mean fast," said Sheriff Douglas Harvey of Washtenaw County, where the four unsolved murders have occurred.

Constitutional Amendment

Direct Presidential Election Picks Up Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — A secret vote among Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee has indicated overwhelming support for a constitutional amendment providing direct election of the President.

The pledge of support was the second big boost in recent days for the proposal which appears to be gaining strength in Congress.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said last week he favors direct elections.

Ford's stand, disclosed at a private meeting with a few newsmen, caught his Republican colleagues by surprise. He had earlier endorsed the view of President Nixon that a direct election amendment could not win ratification by the necessary 38 states.

Ford now feels a direct elections amendment would have strong support throughout the country and is probably the only proposal for changing the present system that would demand the two-thirds majority needed in the House and Senate.

By the same token, he feels the plan for dividing the electoral vote among the candidates as proposed by Nixon has little chance in Congress.

Ford's support could be crucial. Since heaviest opposition to the plan comes from Southern Democrats, GOP votes will be needed to pass it.

The vote of the Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee at a caucus Tuesday night showed that Republican support may be needed even to get the plan out of committee. Of 18 Democrats who showed up, 16 said they were in favor of direct elections Two Democrats were absent. It will take 18 votes to tip the scales in the 35-member committee.

Big 4 Talks on Mideast Ready to Begin

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After weeks of private discussion, the Big 4 delegates at the United Nations are ready to gather around the table and consider how to get a durable peace in the Middle East.

Some sources say the four-man talks, motivated more by fear of failure than by hope of success, will get under way next week.

President Nixon appears to be counting most heavily on Soviet cooperation to bring about a settlement that would give Nixon a major achievement in the foreign field. It also would be a big boost for Secretary-General U Thant and the United Nations.

The United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France appear to agree that they should utilize Gunnar Jarring, Thant's special Middle East envoy.

Jarring, Sweden's ambassador to Moscow, has been trying since December, 1967, to get Israel and the Arabs to work out peace terms based on the U.N. Security Council's Nov. 22, 1967, resolution. The resolution called for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory occupied during the 1967 war and Arab recognition of Israel as a sovereign state with defined frontiers.

Israel, however, has made clear it has no intention of giving up the Old City of Jerusalem, the Golan Heights in Syria and other strategic pieces of Arab real estate acquired in the war.

Since Feb. 11, U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost has been holding talks separately with Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik, French Ambassador Armand Berard and Britain's chief delegate, Lord Caradon. But U.S. consideration for Israel's position and Soviet consideration for Arab views delayed enough agreement to make a four-power conference productive.

Israel has rejected the concept of a solution imposed by the Big 4, the Arabs have rejected territorial concessions to Israel.

Neutral Zones?

The Big 4 delegates will be seeking agreement on guidelines for peace which Jarring then can relay to Israel and the Arabs. There is speculation the Big 4 might recommend the return of a U.N. peacekeeping force to the area and establishment of neutral zones in such territory as the west bank of the Jordan River.

But since U Thant's speedy withdrawal of the U.N. peace force in 1967 at Egypt's demand, and the failure of the Big 4 to get the Arabs to make peace with Israel, the Israelis have no faith in U.N. peace forces or other international guarantees.

No one expects the Big 4 talks to result in a quick agreement. But the fear that another war in the Middle East could bring about a nuclear confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union is enough to keep the diplomats talking.

Repeated Commercials Should be Taxed, 2 Legislators Claim

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Two state representatives have proposed a bill that would tax television commercials whenever they are repeated.

Reps. Harold B. Clark and George Montgomery, both Democrats, also introduced a bill that would allow voters to express approval or disapproval of stations in their area through advisory referenda.

The proposed tax would start at a rate of about .0005 cents and double with every repetition of the commercial unless at least 15 per cent of the message were changed.

Results of the advisory referendum on television stations would be forwarded to the Federal Communications Commission in Washington.

K-C to Construct Warehouse Wings At Neenah Paper

NEENAH — Kimberly-Clark Corporation has received approval from the state Department of Natural Resources for warehouse additions to the Neenah Paper plant which are expected to cost about $500,000.

The pair of additions to the plant on N. Commercial Street would extend over the Fox River on concrete columns, adjoining a present similarly constructed section of the plant, located on the east side of the street.

Approval of the three- and four-story structures also must be given by the Winnebago County zoning office and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

In an announcement Tuesday, Richard J. Appert, vice president, pulp and paper division, said plans have been drawn and the C. R. Meyer & Son Construction Co., Oshkosh, has been chosen as the contractor, all on a tentative basis while awaiting approval from the Corps and county.

A three-story high unit of the present plant extends partially over the river on concrete columns. The warehouse additions would include a four-story unit between the existing unit and the Commercial Street bridge, and a three-story unit upriver to the east of the existing section of building.

The additions will be of brick exterior to match the present buildings.

The natural resources department gave its approval, company spokesmen said.

The plant produces cotton-content business papers and employs about 300 persons.

Despite Recent Winter-Like conditions easterly winds and earlier balmy weather have caused a 20 foot opening in the ice along the east shore of Lake Winnebago near Quinney. This particular piece of shoreline was the recent gateway for numerous ice fishermen. (Connors Photos)

Firemen Hurt When Engine, Truck Collide

Unit on Emergency Run, Semi Loaded With Steel in Crash

Five persons, including four Appleton firemen, were injured about 10:15 a.m. Tuesday when a fire engine answering a call and a semi-trailer truck collided at N. Mason Street and W. Wisconsin Avenue.

Apparently no one was seriously hurt, but two firemen — Robert Grothe, 32, driver of the fire truck, and James Adamski, 30, riding on the rear platform, were hospitalized. Grothe suffered a forehead laceration and Adamski complained of a sore back.

The two were taken by Appleton Fire Department rescue squad to Appleton Memorial Hospital, along with a third fireman, Roland Hermes, 36, also on the rear platform. Hermes was treated for a back injury and released. Both firemen on the rear platform were thrown to the pavement as the truck struck the driver's side of the engine.

Police said the fire pumper truck from No. 3 Station was on an emergency run to a residence on N. Mason Street when a hot water heater was reported smoking. The emergency lights and siren reportedly were in use.

Damage to both vehicles was estimated at $1,500 to $2,000.

The truck reportedly had a full load of steel stripping bound for an Appleton industry and weighed a total of 70,000 pounds.

Tuttle Press To Expand Facilities

Another Appleton firm — Tuttle Press — is embarking on a $250,000 expansion project in the city's Southwest Industrial Park.

A building permit was issued recently for additional factory and warehouse facilities.

The major construction, which will provide the company with 881,000 square feet of floor space, is taking place at 1200 S. Perkins Street.

The building, measuring 222 by 365 feet and 26 feet high, will be of masonry-steel construction with a concrete foundation.

Theo. Utschig Construction Co. is the general contractor.

State and federal payments totaled $127,720, an increase of about $28,000 over last year.

Ex-GI Given Jail Term on Drug Charge

Appleton Youth's Sentence Includes Period of Probation

A 19-year-old Appleton ex-serviceman who earlier this month was found guilty by a 12-member jury of possessing marijuana was sentenced Tuesday to six months in the Outagamie County jail.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer, of Branch 2 court, also put Robert G. VanDenWildenberg, 1424 N. Richmond St., on probation for an 18-month period following the jail term.

VanDenWildenberg, who was discharged from the U. S. Army Feb. 13, 1969, because of a combat injury received in Vietnam, has served about half his jail sentence while awaiting trial.

In passing sentence, Schaefer warned VanDenWildenberg of the consequences of being convicted again for drug possession. He indicated that he was making the "assumption you're not going to have any further involvement with drugs."

Mother Testified

The defendant never admitted possession of the marijuana which was found by his mother in their home of Jan. 6. Mrs. Norman VanDenWildenberg testified at her son's March 10 trial that her three-year-old daughter found some of the drug in a sewing box in an upstairs room.

The defense counsel argued that if VanDenWildenberg was incarcerated for a long period, his 30 per cent disability qualification would be in jeopardy. He must take an annual physical examination to maintain eligibility, the attorney said.

"He would lose a valuable right given him by the United States," the attorney argued. He noted it was more difficult to re-apply.

Schaefer turned the defendant over to the State Department of Health and Social Service for two years probation after staying a two-year sentence to the reformatory at Green Bay. The first six months will be spent in jail with Huber (work) Law Privileges if VanDenWildenberg desires.

Needed by Agriculture

Pesticides Defended At Committee Hearing

MADISON (AP) — A spokesman for the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation says he is concerned about the "unwarranted hysteria" that has been in efforts to have the pesticide DDT.

William Kasakaitas told the Senate Conservation Committee Tuesday opponents of DDT have given biased presentations in efforts to have the pesticide outlawed in Wisconsin.

Kasakaitas testified on a measure to establish a state pesticide review board and set up licensing requirements for commercial pestifice applicators.

The pesticide review board concept is sound, Kasakaitas said. However, he would prfer to see the board under the State Agriculture Department rather than the Department of Health and Social Services.

A spokesman for the National Agricultural Chemical Association, Donald A. Spencer, suggested the review board be attached to the governor's office and that its responsibility be advisory.

Spencer described pesticides as "tools" similar to a physician's medicines.

He said medicines can "not only be hazardous but lethal if incorrectly used."

Charles M. Creuziger of Sturtevant, president of the Vegetable Growers Association of America, called pesticides essential to farming in Wisconsin.

Harold Sargent of Antigo, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Potato and Vegetable Growers Association, said the proposed review board should be advisory only.

The committee took no action on the bill.

Full-Time Man Is 'Necessity'

New London Firemen Urge Retention of Chief Engineer

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEW LONDON — Eliminating the position of chief engineer would have serious effects on the efficiency of the New London Fire Department.

The Post-Crescent learned this from a meeting with department officers Monday on problems facing the city with a state order to replace or remodel the fire station and consideration by the city government on how to handle fire calls.

Chief Robert Besaw said the department hasn't given much consideration to new quarters, but will look into the matter more closely after the city council makes its decision, he said.

After a decision is made, Besaw thinks it would be best for representatives of the department, police and fire commission members, and city council members to visit new facilities in the area to determine what is best suited for New London.

'Think Ahead'

Besaw said, "I don't see how we can get by with less than six stalls — I'm thinking ahead to tomorrow instead of just today. Training, work and storage areas also will need to be examined."

Location of a new station is extremely important. Besaw said the station must be situated to give quick access to any point in the city plus any point outside the city.

Joe Timar, assistant chief, pointed out that the present location causes many problems because most firemen live on the South side of the Wolf River, while the station is on the north.

The officers said the chief engineer is the key to quick response to fire calls.

Back Tracking

Timar said without a chief engineer firemen would have to buck traffic to get to the station to pick up the equipment and, in most cases, back track to the scene of the fire. Now most firemen head right for the fire and know the equipment will be there when they arrive, he added.

Capt. Sylvester Larson said, "The chief engineer isn't only important to the department, but ot John Doe Public in this town. We've proven the quick response we can make on rescue runs ... it's those precious few moments that count in a case of life or death."

Besaw said, "The last two runs we had, we could have lost both houses without a full-time man here. If we would have had to wait for the men to get down here and get the equipment to the fire, that would have taken just long enough to give the fires time to really kindle."

It's the first five minutes which determine if you are going to save or lose a building, Besaw added.

Elimination of the chief engineer would create "mass confusion," according to Besaw. "How would you determine who comes to the station and who goes to the fire scene?" he asked.

Truck Storage

The officers were asked about storing a fire truck in the city sheds and if this has worked out suitably. They also were asked if all equipment could be stored there.

Besaw said, "I don't know who they would get to take care of it. I don't think there is a man who would want the responsibility on a part-time basis to insure that the equipment will be ready to go when the time comes to use it."

The deterioration of equipment would be so great that eliminating the chief engineer doesn't make sense, Besaw added.

Volunteer fireman Izzy Pelkey said, "Too many people would have access to the equipment who aren't members of the department."

Cities Alliance To Open New Headquarters

The Alliance of Cities — the newly formed statewide lobby pushing for property tax relief and legislative-tax reform — is expected to open an office in Madison within a few weeks.

Mayor George Buckley of Appleton, Alliance treasurer and member of the board of directors, announced Tuesday a tentative office site has been secured and is located near the capitol.

"Action on leasing the office space will be taken this week," Buckley said. It is one of the items on the agenda when the representatives of 18 Wisconsin cities meet at Milwaukee Friday to add up the legislature's box score on urban bills and Tarr Task Force recommendations.

At Friday's meeting, to be held at the Milwaukee Inn, Alliance members will be asked to take positions on a series of new bills which will be up for hearings at Madison within the next two weeks.

Buckley said in his capacity as Alliance treasurer, he has opened deposit and checking accounts for the organization at an Appleton bank.

Calumet County Schools

Student Program Set On Mentally Retarded

CHILTON — A committee of students from four Calumet County high schools have set up programs to help all students learn more about mental retardation. Work on several programs will be underway soon.

The first is an Easter party planned for the special classes in the New Holstein area. Christine Koenigs is general chairman for the New Holstein area.

Chilton area chairmen are Kathy Weber and Hal Hoerth. The Brillion representative is Faye Tamm and Hilbert's is Judy Pilling. Several students also are interested in Stockbridge, so all schools soon should be represented in the County Youth Association For Retarded Children (ARC). Charles Nikolia, University Extension youth agent, is serving as adult advisor to help organize the local and county associations.

An orientation meeting will be held Tuesday evening at the Courthouse in Chilton for all Calumet County high school students. A film on research and education programs currently underway at the University of Wisconsin and at Central Colony and Mendota State Hospital will be shown. Some of the procedures will then be discussed.

The youth group will meet at 8 p.m., but the film also will be shown at 6:30 p.m. for adults and others who cannot attend later. There is no admission charge.

The other county-wide event planned is a bus trip to Central Colony and Mendota State Hospital on Monday, April 7. This is for anyone interested in the problems of mental retardation and what is presently being done about it. Students will take a sack lunch. A $2 bus charge is expected. No high school student will be allowed on the tour without being present April 1 to view the film of the areas to be visited.

Senator Raps Beer, Liquor Restrictions

MADISON (AP)— State Sen. Wilfred Schuele, D-Milwaukee, Tuesday criticized a ban on beer and liquor in state parks during spring months, saying the ban would prevent outdoor enthusiasts and fishermen from having "a little snake bite medicine to ward off the chill."

The ban, from March 31 through June 15, was designed to prevent vandalism by drinking teen-agers, the State Department of Natural Resources said.

Schuele said there already were laws against those things and the new ban would only "stop fishermen from having a beer with the batch of fish they may catch."

Senate Voices Approval

Resolution Voted to Increase Milk Parity

MADISON (AP)—A resolution urging U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin to increase the supportof manufactured milk to 90 per cent of parity passed the Wisconsin Senate 22-6 Tuesday after a partisan debate.

The measure was sponsored by Sen. Walter J. Chilsen, R-Wausau.

Chilsen faces Democratic Assemblyman David Obey of Wausau in an April 1 election for the 7th Congressional District seat vacated recently by Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird.

"The reason the matter is urgent at this time is that the secretary of agriculture must decide by April first whether to increase milk supports or wait another quarter," Chilsen told Risser.

The present support level for milk has dropped to about 87 per cent of parity, Chilsen said.

Bill Proposes to Legalize Bingo for Charitable Units

MADISON (AP)—A proposal to legalize bingo in Wisconsin for charitable purposes was introduced in the legislature today by Assemblyman William Atkinson, D-South Milwaukee.

Under the proposed constitutional amendment, religious, fraternal and veterans groups could operate bingo games.

Assemblyman Fred Kessler, D-Milwaukee, submitted a bill to prohibit employers from requiring employes to submit to lie detector tests.

A co-sponsor, Assemblyman Edward Nager, D-Madison, said he has received reports of employes being fired from their jobs because they refused to take such examinations.

Statewide Referendum Questions ... I

Shall State Run Vocational Schools?

BY MALIA PENIKIS
Post Crescent Staff Writer

One of the major referendum issues to face voters April 1 will be whether property taxpayers should continue to support vocational schools or whether the expense and control should be shifted to the state.

At present, vocational schools are supported largely by a property levy which ranges up to two mills.

The schools have become so large and expensive, advocates of the change contend, that the state must step in and relieve local governments of the burden. A total of $38.9 million was spent on the system in fiscal 1968.

$85 Million Estimate

However, the opponents estimate it would cost the state at least $85 million to take over the system's facilities and point out that this will have to come from somewhere.

Under a 1965 law, 18 vocational districts were set up, with the provision that all areas of the state be included in a district by 1970.

Proponents of the change claim that the local character of vocational education has been eliminated by transfer agreements and specialized programs which draw from across the state and that the system should, therefore, have a state board, such as that controling the university system.

Five statewide referenda questions will be on the ballot Tuesday when voters go to the polls. While three are advisory, two will bring about changes in state law if they are adopted by the voter. To clarify the five referendum questions, The Post-Crescent has prepared a series of articles, one on each question. Today's article on vocational school control is the first of the series.

In 1968, for instance, they point out, 7,000 of the system's 27,000 students came from outside the area in which they were enrolled.

Question of Control

Opponents, who include many legislators, as well as the state and local boards of vocational, technical and adult education, argue that the issue of control should be decided separately from that of funding.

Joseph Noll, Kenosha, state vocational board chairman, says, "All this does is shift the source of the system's income. The taxpayer's bill will stay the same. The difference," he said, "is that the increase would be in the sales and income tax rather than the property tax."

Noll also noted that the two mill limitation on vocational taxation is "hardly extreme."

Concurring with this, is the local District 12 board, which also has urged the citizens to vote "no" on the referendum.

Tax Increase

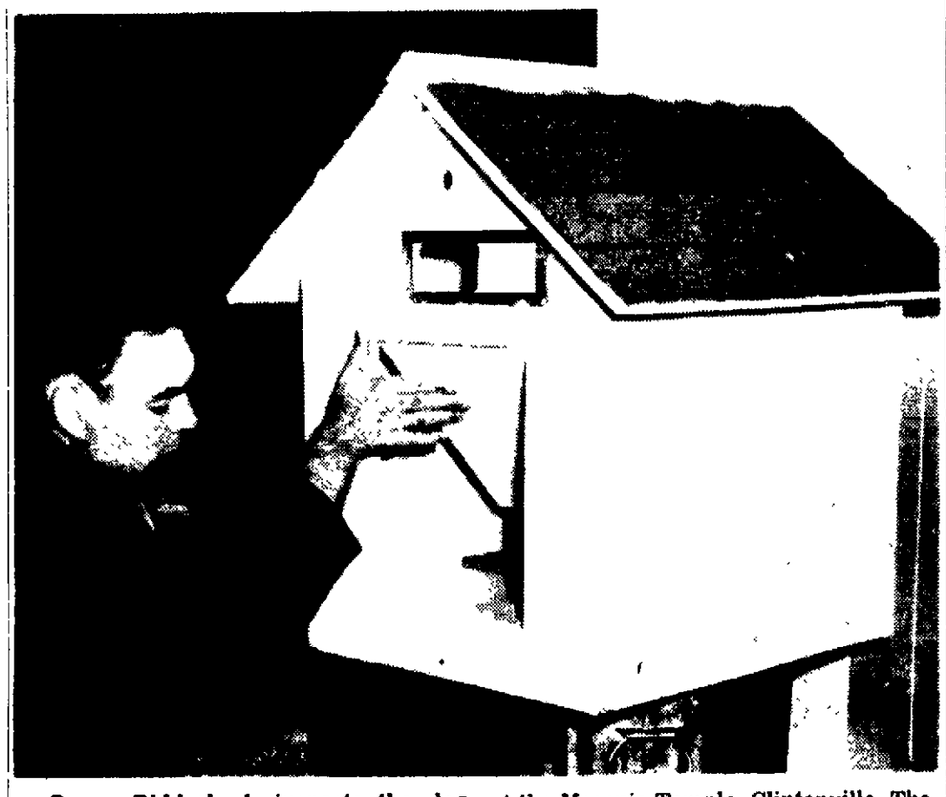

According to William Sirek, area director, this area could end up paying more taxes than other parts of the state because the level of income is higher here than in many areas.

The issue of finances apart, however, both local and state board members feel that the area concept should be retained in whatever scheme eventually comes out of the Legislature.

The Legislature has not given local school authorities sufficient time to show they can handle the system, Philip Lerman of the state board, said.

"The board should say to the Legislature and the people that you haven't given us a chance to complete our job and until we have finished our

Students Request Foreign Exchange Program be Formed

HILBERT — Preliminary plans are being made at the high school here to form an American Field Service (AFS) chapter, which would eventually bring a foreign student to Hilbert.

The initiative was taken by the students, according to LeRoy Meles, guidance counselor, who is in charge of the project. Several freshmen approached him about two months ago regarding the possibility and the requirements.

After several area schools which have both student and adult AFS chapters were contacted, additional information was supplied through the AFS New York office. About 80 students, not including seniors, signed a petition requesting the plan be started here, and the board of education Monday night approved the intentions.

This week an application, seeking permission to start student and adult chapters, will be filed with the New York headquarters. If approved, next year will be spent forming sponsoring groups which will then be involved in fund raising to bring a student here for the 1970-71 school year. No tax money is involved in the project.

Only after the school has hosted an AFS student can a local student apply for the year-abroad program.

The cultural benefit derived from AFS exchange and the enrichment gained by both nationalities are among the objects of the program. Local chapters are responsible for recommending host families for the visiting students.

Hilbert Plans Purchase of Two 60 Passenger Buses

Added Enrollment, Obsolete Vehicles Prompt Board Action

HILBERT — Bids on two 60 passenger buses are being sought by the board of education. Action was taken Monday when it was agreed the district will need additional buses next school year.

The board took into consideration the obselete condition of one bus, plus the added enrollment in high school and kindergarten. Consolidation of the two Sherwood area parochial schools also is expected to bring about the need for a bus in that area.

Also approved was the installation of a new motor costing about $1,000 for another bus and the purchase of two bus tires costing $64.89 each. The new motor will be installed by Van Haren Implement here during Easter vacation.

Testing Station

Replies to letters sent recently to Assemblyman Gervase Hephner, D. Chilton, and Sen. Myron Lotto, R. Green Bay, concerning the proposed closing of the driver testing station here were read. Both had written to the Department of Transportation in behalf of the school.

Sen. Lotto said he had been informed that when the stations at Brillion, Hilbert and New Holstein were closed testing would be conducted three days a week at Chilton and five days a week at Manitowoc. Board members expressed their disapproval of the proposed plan.

The Hilbert testing station is open two afternoons a month and closing it would mean inconvenience and costs to students enrolled in driver education as well as school bus drivers and others in the area, they argued.

Surplus Funds

Approval was given to invest surplus funds for short terms until needed to realize interest and to invest the annual $12,500 debt retirement. The finance committee composed of Paul Kees, Clem Palmbach and Lester Kasper will handle the matter at a local bank.

The board was informed that a school crossing had been approved by state officials at Milwaukee Street and State 57 and that two pedestrian crossings located at Calumet and Main streets also would be established as safety measures in the school area. The possibility of hiring a combination teacher aid and school crossing guard was discussed, however, no action was taken.

An enrollment of 80 kindergarteners is expected next fall, compared with 54 this year the board learned with the added enrollment necessitating additional classrooms. The possibility of renting a building was mentioned.

Approval was given LeRoy Meles, guidance counselor, to go ahead with plans to formulate an American Field Service (AFS) chapter here. The foreign exchange project is a self-supporting student program. Board members said they recognized the need for the cultural enrichment in the school.

Driver Education

The after-school driver education program being conducted by Tom Fleming is now underway the panel was told and it was clarified that the program would cost $24 a student based on $4 an hour for the six hour on-the-road course. Some 15 students are expected to complete the course under the arrangement.

Merrill Olson, senior class adviser, explained to the board that less than half of the class had intentions of participating in the class trip to Chicago May 23-24. The board had previously agreed to provide transportation for the students and stated that the agreement would still hold. It was pointed out, however, that students not participating would not be eligible to equal amounts of cash if they elected not to go. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bish and Olson will serve as chaperones.

Judging fees of $10 were approved on the request of the band director for Denmark teachers judging the local solo and ensembles here March 20.

Firemen Say Full-Time Man Is 'Necessity'

man, said, "Even if the area was fenced off, anybody could get to it if they wanted to."

Besaw said you can have an emergency sometime and go to pick up the equipment and find dead batteries, flat tires or something else wrong.

Dry Gas Tank

One incident has arisen since the fire truck has been stored at the city garage. One meeting night the truck was to be picked up for testing, but couldn't be started because of a dry gas tank. The tank is filled prior to storage.

Besaw said, "We have $100,000 of equipment and if it doesn't warrant having somebody take care of it, we might as well have a bunch of buckets."

Wilfeur noted it is necessary to keep equipment clean and ready to go. Volunteer departments without fulltime services can't do it.

Some general statements were:

"The chief engineer lives with these trucks. He knows them better than anyone else. You have to have one man who knows a little more than any of the engineers because they can't keep up with the equipment."

"A full-time engineer recognizes when something is wrong and can compensate for it in an emergency because he knows the equipment."

"This is as close to a full time department as you can get."

"Taking away the full-time man could have an effect on insurance rates. At this time a determination on new rates is being held by pending action on the fire station."

"If nobody else shows up, you will have people around to man the hoses. Operating the equipment is a different matter."

At a recent early morning fire in a motel, the chief engineer was at the scene and had all equipment set up by the time volunteers reached the scene.

Turns in Alert

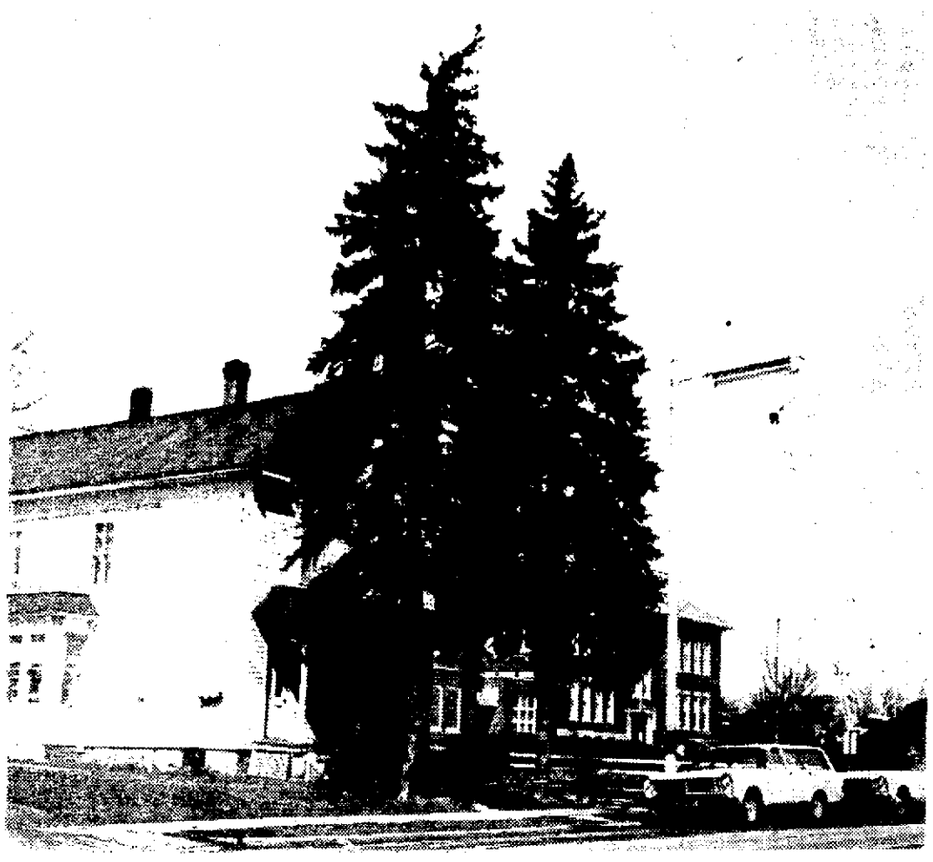

On city fire calls, the chief engineer turns in the alert and firemen learn of the fire location on radio monitors. All firemen with the exception of two engineers go to the fire scene. One engineer brings a second truck while a second remains at the station to receive any calls that may come in.

Besaw said all equipment responds to industrial fires.

On rural runs all men respond to the station and five men, including an officer, engineer and three firemen go to the fire.

Several industries also have automatic alarm systems and equipment is on the way in less than one-half minute.

The chief engineer resides in an apartment above the fire station. He is on duty 24-hours per day, seven days a week. When he is not at the station, a stand-by is on duty.

The Brillion Board of Education has purchased this home adjacent to the public school for $15,000 and plans to have it removed to make room for a new circle drive and parking area in front of the school to be completed this summer. Parking area supplied by the addition of the 77 by 117 foot lot will replace space lost by construction of a school addition, shown in the background. (Coenen Photo)

Fr. Jerome Tremel

Post Crescent News Service

DE PERE — Pealing abbey bells, late Tuesday afternoon announced the election of the Rev. Jerome Gilbert Tremel, O. Praem., as coadjutor abbot of St. Norbert Abbey.

Named and confirmed in a centuries-old ceremony, the new coadjutor abbot will work for the next year in association with the present head of the De Pere Norbertine community. On Jan. 6, 1970, he will become abbot of the institution upon the retirement of Abbot S. M. Killeen.

The 39-year-old Abbot Tremel is a native of Luxemburg who grew up in Green Bay and is a member of the order for 22 years. Until his election he was associate professor of mathematics and chairman of the mathematics department at St. Norbert College.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Tremel, Green Bay, Abbot Tremel was born Sept. 12, 1929. After graduating from SS. Peter and Paul Elementary School and Central Catholic High School in 1947 he received his bachelor of arts degree from St. Norbert College in 1951.

He was vested in the Norbertine Order in August, 1947, just ten days after Abbot Killeen was elevated to the office of coadjutor abbot. He was ordained a priest on June 11, 1954.

Abbot Tremel earned a master of arts degree from Purdue University in 1959 and his doctorate in mathematics-education from the same university in 1963. He has been a member of the St. Norbert faculty since that time, having previously served on the faculty of Premontre High School.

Abbot Tremel was elected on the third ballot of a day-long election that began about 10:45 a.m. Tuesday. Although officially three ballots were cast by 158 professed members of the order assembled from all over the United States, there actually were four.

The opening ballot was declared invalid when a mistake in counting resulted in two more votes than the actual number eligible.

Abbot Tremel

Although the actual vote count was not publicly announced, Norbertine statutes require a majority on either of the first two ballots or a plurality on the third.

As soon as the results were announced in the closed election chapter of the order, the new coadjutor abbot was asked by the presiding officer, Abbot General Norbertine J. Calmels, worldwide head of the order, if he accepted. The reply being affirmative, Abbot Killeen gave his approval and Abbot General Calmels issued the confirmation required by Rome.

Proceeds will be used to benefit children who attend the parish school.

Judge Orders Examination on Arson Charge

Jules E. Klapps, 1520 Cold Spring Road, was charged following a March 9 fire which gutted a residence at 747 Cleveland St., owned by his brother, David, and owned by Gary Mark, 93 S. Lake St.

The request for the 60 day examination was made by Klapps' attorney, David Smith. Smith told Judge Sitter there was some doubt whether Klapps could assist in his own defense.

Further proceedings were set for May 29.

Card Party

ROYALTON — The Altar Society of St. Bridget Catholic Church will sponsor a public card party Sunday evening in the church hall.

Hilbert Kiwanis Give Scholarship

HILBERT — The Kiwanis Club recently decided to continue to provide a $100 scholarship to a deserving local high school graduate. The recipient may be an A, B or C student who is selected by the high school faculty. The award may be used toward a four-year college course or for vocational training.

job, I would oppose any legislation of this type," Lerman said.

The fact that local autonomy would be lost in a day when the general feeling is that the state is taking over everything, was the main objection of the local board members as well as VTE-12 officials.

"This idea isn't good for local communities," said Frank Sprister, Appleton. "Now the people know who to turn to and the staff and board can work more closely and understand each other's problems."

"After all, we are serving the immediate businesses and industries and a local board is much more sensitive to the needs of the community," added Donald Steinfort, Oshkosh.

All the board members felt that policies can't be dictated to cover everyone. "Every area has its own problems that only those close to them can appreciate," said C. G. Russell Johnson, board president.

The bill seems to be even more distasteful now because of the many problems the state university board of regents has faced lately.

Deeper Problems

Indicative of this were comments such as "The people serving on the boards are too far away to really evaluate the local problems and we may be struggling with something deeper than what it looks like on the surface."

Gaylord Unbehaun, a VTE-12 board member from Brillion, felt that many of the equipment and facility needs in vocational and technical education are unique to parts of an area and need local members to appreciate them.

"Many areas need strong unified guidance, but there comes a point where you can remove the governing bodies too far from the people and this may be just such an area," Johnson said.

Knowles Veto

Even if approved by the voters and passed by the Legislature, the measure may still run into trouble, because Gov. Warren Knowles has warned that any measure which does not include a funding proposal will be vetoed.

The only mention of money was advanced by Sen. Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, who proposed the state's selective sales tax be increased to finance the state cost.

It was defeated by a vote of 20 to 2 in the Senate.

But for many legislators, funding is a distant concern with the immediate problem that of securing a voter mandate for the general consent of state control, which is only advisory.

Clintonville AAUW Has Program on Education

CLINTONVILLE — "Withdrawal to Education" was the program topic of the Clintonville Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) Monday night at the Longfellow School library.

Mrs. James Wilker, program chairman, introduced two guests, Mrs. Raymond Phillips, who is in charge of the activity class for the adult retarded, and Miss Verna Schoepke, who teaches a special education class at Longfellow.

Mrs. Clifford Ralph, an AAUW member, reported on camping at Camp Vis-to-Rae, near Northport, and told of the camp's many approaches in helping the leaders, how the camp was sponsored, and how students were eligible to become enrolled.

Mrs. Phillips explained the functions of the activity center, which is now located in the basement of the Masonic Temple, and said that material and help were needed. She announced the center's annual open house would be March 31.

Miss Schoepke spoke briefly and then the group visited her room to see the many projects on display.

Husbands of members and friends will be guests at the April 29 dinner meeting of the AAUW at the Clintonville Riverside Golf clubhouse.

Guests Monday night were Mrs. Milton Celden, Mrs. Robert Ellis and Mrs. Lionel Fuchs, Marion. Hostesses were Mrs. Milton Beverreitz and Mrs. Patrick Wicker.

Senate Okays Appointments Of UW Regents

Mrs. Sandin Faced Opposition; Walker Unanimously Backed

Special to The Post-Crescent

MADISON — A Racine industrialist gained unanimous endorsement Tuesday from the state senate for his appointment to the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents, but an Ashland woman's appointment was confirmed reluctantly

Gordon R Walker, a prominent GOP fund raiser, received unanimous confirmation, but the vote for Mrs. Howard Sandin was 19-9, with five Republican senators and four Democrats opposing her

The Republicans opposing were Milo Knutson, La Crosse; Reuben LaFave, Oconto, Alex Meunier, Sturgeon Bay, Gordon Roseleip, Darlington, and James Swan, Elkhorn

Democrats in opposition were Joseph Lourigan, Kenosha; and Casimir Kendziorski, Wilfred Schuele and Wayne Whittow, all of Milwaukee.

Senators voting against her confirmation indicated they did not agree with Mrs. Sandin's stand on the Daily Cardinal, the UW campus newspaper. She opposed charging the Cardinal rent and opposed cancelling the UW's subscription subsidy

The senate's Republican majority delayed confirmation several weeks ago to allow the Republican caucus to interview the potential candidates for the UW board and the state universities' board.

The delay came when disorders and a student strike were at their peak on the UW campus

Sen. James Devitt, R-Greenfield, made the motion Tuesday to bring the Walker appointment to the floor, noting the delay in confirmation "might have been construed as a slap at him, which it wasn't."

Sen Arthur Cirilli, R-Superior, then moved that the senate consider the appointment of Mrs Sandin

Walker replaces the late Kenneth Greenquist in a term ending May 1, 1971 and Mrs. Sandin succeeds Arthur DeBardeleben, Park Falls, in a term ending May 1, 1977

Menasha Corp. Breaks Ground For New Plant

Groundbreaking ceremonies for a new Menasha Corporation corrugated container plant at Airlake Industrial Park, Lakeville, Minn., were Tuesday with Minnesota Gov Harold LeVander in attendance.

The new plant will be the first large industrial complex to be built at Airlake Park, which is a new concept in industrial sites, putting paved airline runways at the door of the industries Several small manufacturers already have built on the 1,500-acre site

Menasha Corporation has its headquarters in Neenah, although it has plants and offices in several states The new plant due for completion and full operation by early 1970, will be the first full manufacturing facility located in Minnesota

The building will occupy 20 acres of land adjacent to airport buildings at the industrial park and encloses 150,000 square feet of manufacturing and office space It will house a corrugator and modern flexographic printing and finishing equipment for producting corrugated containers

Site of the new plant is 25 miles south of Minneapolis-St Paul in an area that was farmland a year ago

Medina Girl Fined $50 for Shoplifting 84 Cent Wig Stand

"All my friends were doing it, and I figured I could do it, too," commented a 19-year-old Medina girl after she pleaded guilty to shoplifting and was fined $50 and costs or 12 days in jail when she appeared Monday afternoon in Outagamie County Court Branch 2

Judge Nick F Schaefer, in passing sentence, reminded Miss Leanna L Conn, that she now has a criminal record She waived preliminary hearing rights and admitted attempting to steal a wig stand, valued at 84 cents from the K mart, 2400 W College Ave, on March 24

An employe testified he saw Miss Conn take the stand from a display, put it in her coat pocket and walk outside without paying for it

She admitted that she had over $5 on her person at the time.

Wisconsin Man Upsets Southern Republicans

Jerris Leonard's Remark on Political Strategy for 1972 Feared as Policy

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — At a private gathering here last week, a top Justice Department official astonished Southerners present by saying that President Nixon would probably do better in the 1972 election by following a hard-line Northern political strategy and write off the South.

What shocked the Southerners

Evans Novak

— including the usually imperturbable Harry Dent, Sen. Strom Thurmond's former assistant and now associate White House counsel — was the identity of the outspoken Justice Department official Jerris Leonard

Leonard, a moderate Republican who unsuccessfully ran for the senate from Wisconsin last year, happens to be Assistant Attorney General in charge of the civil rights division. Thus, a chance remark by Leonard could soon be transformed into Administration policy.

Futhermore, Leonard's words symbolize the fears of Southern Republican politicians in the first two months of the Nixon administration that the South, responsible for both Mr. Nixon's nomination and election, is being discounted as a future source of strength within the national Republican party.

Southerners Protest

Leonard's assertion that the President would do better to court the North than the South, even against Sen Ted Kennedy for President jn 1972, did not die at last week's social gathering. His words are now being used by Southern Republican leaders in Congress as a significant piece of evidence in their battle for recognition. In fact, Southerners have delivered an informal but hard-hitting protest of Leonard's words to his boss, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell (ironically, an architect of Mr. Nixon's 1968 Southern strategy).

Just how concerned Southern Republican leaders are these days is clear from two backstage events, occurring simultaneously with Leonard's words.

The first of these is a decision by Southern Republican Congressmen, led by Sen. John Tower of Texas, to ask President Nixon for a private audience to air their grievances. They are now waiting for word from the White House.

The second was a closed-door meeting of Southern Republican state chairmen at the Lafayette Hotel March 10, called by Clarke Reed of Mississippi, head of the Southern State Chairmen's Organization.

Morton Sympathetic

This was Reed's second attempt to impress Southern discomfort on administration leaders, and it was less emotional and more successful than the earlier meeting with White House aides here Feb. 17. This time, the Southern leaders had a most interested listener in Rep. Rogers Morton of Maryland who will take over as the party's national chairman early next month.

Besides being a good listener, Morton was sympathetic He made no commitments but assured the Southerners he understood their problem ("and that," one Dixie chairman told us, "is as far as anyone in Washington has gone so far").

Beyond Morton's presence, the state chairmen mapped out a tentative plan to broaden the Voting Rights Act of 1965 so that federal registrars (who so far have been conspicuous in five Southern states) could be dispatched from Washington to Northern states.

Just how this can be done, in view of the heavy Negro voting in most northern states, is still undecided But Justice Department agents hinted to the Southerners that the law, which expires next year, could be broadened and given a more national application

Regional Discrimination

The effect of this, the Southerners admit, would be almost entirely psychological in easing the anger and frustration throughout the South that the act is discriminatory against one region.

Similarly, in a long briefing to agents of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), the Southern chairmen pleaded for the government to move into Northern school districts with blatant de facto segregation, and thus remove the onus off the South The HEW officials replied that that is their plan.

What is most remarkable is the limited nature of these Southern demands, far more modest than Dixie Republican aspirations during the campaign, the transition, and even the first days of the new administration

In short, the Southern party leaders now seem more willing to settle for almost any token that Mr Nixon still loves them. The words of Jerris Leonard, so ominous to Southern Republican dreams, have helped reduce them to that.

Forestry Tax Repeal Bill Is Defeated

Froehlich Among GOP Leaders to Sponsor Measure

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — In spite of its sponsorship by Assembly Speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, and six other leading members of the assembly Republican majority, a plan to repeal the state property tax for forestry died a quick and silent death Tuesday

Not a word was spoken in explanation, defense or objection of the joint resolution before it was killed on a voice vote in the lower house of the Legislature as it resumed its deliberations for the week.

Froehlich earlier had explained that he does not feel that the state should levy any property taxes, for any purpose.

The two tenths of a mill tax for the state forestry fund, authorized by a constitutional amendment four decades ago, is the only property tax surviving in the state revenue system. Its receipts are dedicated exclusively for the state forestry program

Opposed Increase

Four years ago the voters of Wisconsin defeated a revision of that constitutional amendment proposing to permit a slight increase in the state's property tax levy for forestry

Conservationists then returned to the Legislature and succeeded in winning approval for a constitutional amendment of the internal improvements clause of the constitution, to permit supplementary appropriations of general stated tax funds from the state treasury to accommodate rising costs of the forestry services That amendment was ratified by the voters a year ago, but the legislature has not acted to enlarge the forestry budget through that avenue

The two tenths of a mill tax currently yields about $5 millions a year

Atlantic City Hopes to Make Gambling Legal

Group Promoting Changeover in Convention Center

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A group of businessmen is trying to legalize gambling in Atlantic City, home of the Boardwalk, the Miss America Pageant and hundreds of conventions

They are betting $2 million that the rattle of dice and click of roulette will be pumping cash into the city's economy within two years

The 150 business leaders organized as the Action Committee for Legalized Gambling say they want casino gambling on the style of Puerto Rico or Monte Carlo.

"We are not interested in having gambling as it exists in Las Vegas," said Meyer I Segal, the furniture store manager who heads the committee.

His committee is opening a $2 million campaign to sell to legislators and voters the proposal to make gambling legal in Atlantic City It must be approved by the legislature, a state referendum and then a city and county vote

"No Question"

"If the state referendum approved it, there is no question Atlantic County and Atlantic City would accept it," Segal said He said he based his prediction on a coupon survey conducted by the Atlantic City Press which showed 100 to 1 in favor of legal gambling.

The five-member City Commission has endorsed the drive.

But the road to legal gambling still is long

Gov Richard J Hughes, who leaves office this year, has recommended a state lottery and has said he would be for legalized gambling at casinos if the idea were approved by a referendum But he opposes a constitutional amendment to let Atlantic City have gambling exclusively.

Some churchmen are opposed. Dr Samuel A Jeanes, legislative chairman of the New Jersey Council of Churches, contends Atlantic City would become the "sin city of the world"

Legal gambling in Atlantic City would attract bettors from New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore, all within three hours' drive

Only at Night

Segal's committee proposes only nighttime gambling That way tourists and conventioneers could visit the beaches or conduct their business during the day without interference In Las Vegas, gambling is a 24-hour-a-day business

"The type of people we hope to attract would be the affluent tourist who would fly here from anywhere in the world," Segal said

The committee proposes dice, blackjack and roulette—and adamantly opposes the slot machines which whir constantly in Nevada, now the only state with legalized gambling. Liquor would be forbidden in gaming areas A state gambling commission would license casinos

Mayor Richard S Jackson thinks gambling would beckon visitors, create employment and reduce illegal gambling.

Bill Pending

The unemployment rate in the summer tourist season is only 3 per cent But during the winter, despite the conventions, the rate soars to 10 per cent—one of the highest in the nation

Betting at the racetrack is legal in New Jersey and the committee says it is hypocritical to ban casinos

A bill to legalize gambling throughout the state is pending in the legislature That was introduced by Assemblyman Robert E Littell, a Republican from rural Sussex County at the other end of the state from Atlantic City A similar bill by Littell got nowhere last year.

Miss America of '66 Hostess for Pageant

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Debbie Bryant, Miss America of 1966, will be the NBC television hostess for the Miss America Pageant here this September

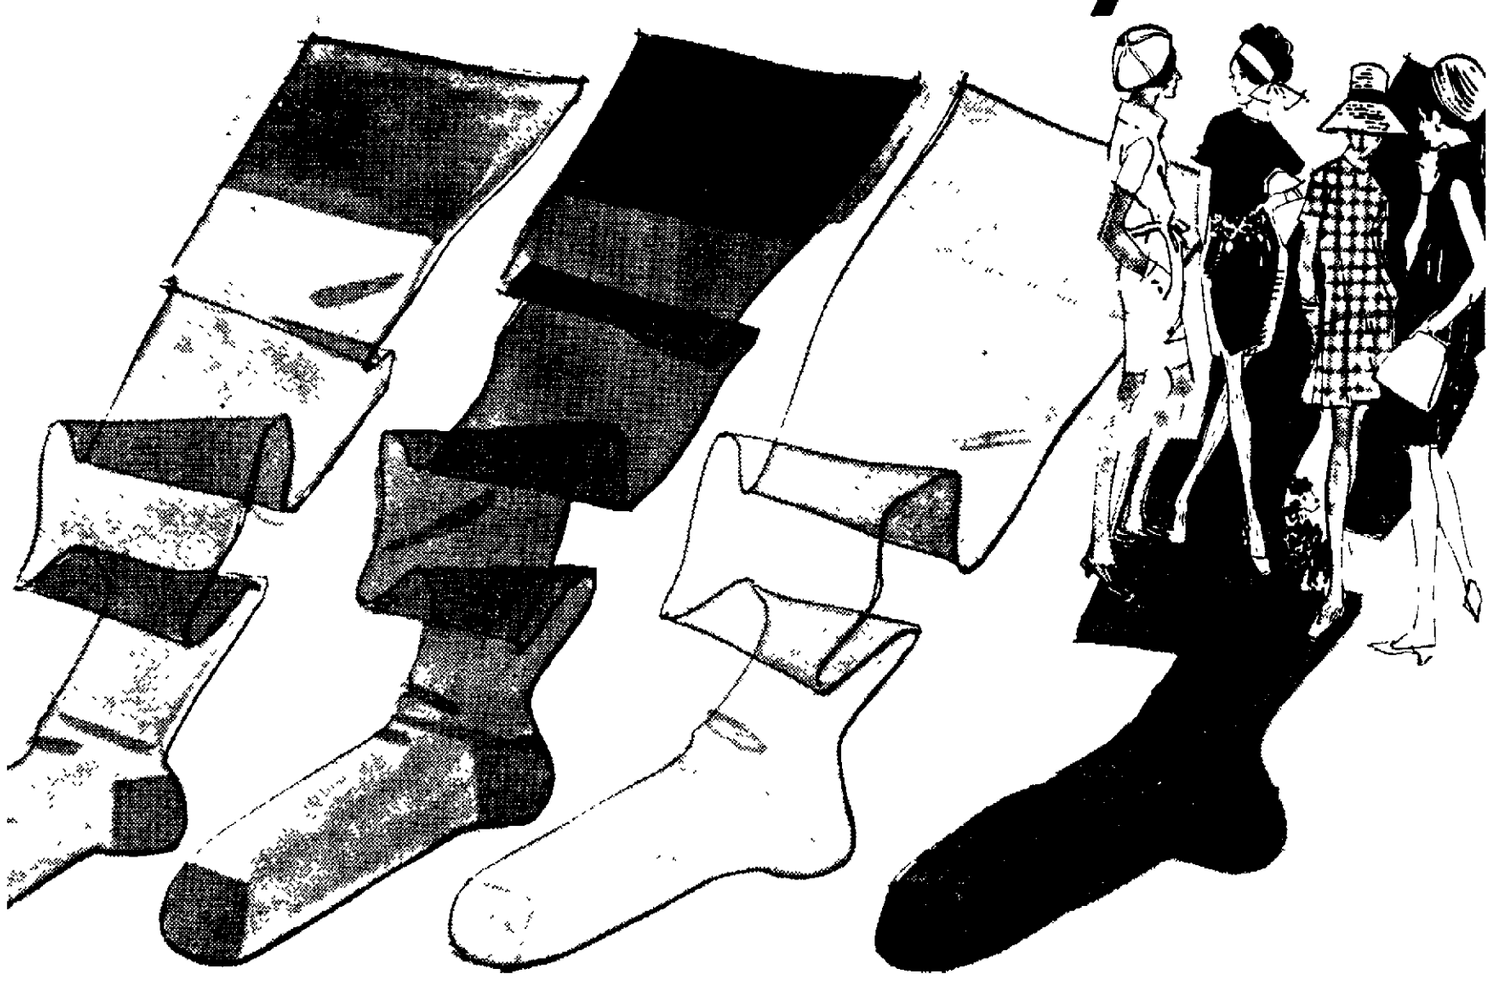

The Kansas beauty queen replaces Bess Myerson who is curtailing all other commitments to devote more time to her post as New York City commissioner of consumer affairs.

Bert Parks will return as master of ceremonies for the 14th year, pageant officials said
